Spring Run of Alewives Now at It's Height

Now that the town meetings are over and the people are waiting impatiently for the resumption of street car service, the East Weymouth people have a new attraction. The run of the alewives, or herring, began early in the week, and is of interest to many.

Every day many thousands are taken out of the trap near Jackson Square. The larger percentage is carted to Whitman's pond to keep it well stocked, while hundreds are sold at retail.

The fisheries are conducted by the town, and the Selectmen have appointed Joseph H. Sherman as superintendent. Four one-horse teams are employed in carting the fish to the pond. These fish are out of the water but a few minutes, being put into barrels for transportation.

Each time, after the teams are loaded, there are hundreds to sell at retail to the people who assemble.

The Selectmen have established these prices:

To residents of Weymouth, 10 cents per dozen, 25 cents per 100 up to 400.

To non-residents, 25 cents per dozen, $1 per 100 up to 400.

All the fish find a ready sale. The run will continue for about two weeks. Usually the run starts about the 19th of April, but this year we are having a cold spring.

The town is required each year to put 30,000 fish into Whitman's pond. These fish go out in the fall, but will return in three years to spawn. Those that went out in 1918 will return in 1921, and those that went out in 1919 will return in 1922. The fish this year are of good size, eight or ten inches long. Probably 50,000 will come up stream this spring.

Street Cars Soon.

The Street Railway Transportation Committee will meet the Trustees this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The committee expects to put the cars in operation in a very short time.

Messrs E. W. Hunt and William A. Hodges have both tendered their resignations from the Weymouth committee, but have been prevailed upon to continue until June 1.

Accident Suits

Sums aggregating $4500 are sought by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Thompson of Weymouth in two separate suits brought in the Norfolk superior court against Susan H. Morton of Boston for injuries Mrs. Katherine E. Thompson received, while the husband desires compensation for the expense and inconvenience resulting from his wife's injuries. Mrs. Thompson sues for $3000, while her husband asks for $1500. The injuries are said to have been caused Aug. 26, 1919, while Mrs. Thompson was walking in Weymouth. The defendant's automobile is alleged to have run up on the sidewalk and struck Mrs. Thompson.

Braintree Bandits Arrested

Three men suspected of being the Braintree bandits have been arrested. The Herald says: Two Italians arrested at Brockton Wednesday night as suspicious persons were identified Thursday afternoon, the police say, as members of the party of armed automobile bandits who killed Special Officer Alexander Beradelli and Frederick A. Parmenter at Braintree and stole the payroll of Slater & Morrill, Inc., and a third man arrested yesterday is also thought to have been implicated in the crimes.

The police also believe the men are part of the gang which attempted to steal the payroll of the L. Q. White Company of Bridgewater, and escaped after a fusillade of bullets.

State and local police officers said they were of opinion the men under arrest had planned another hold-up yesterday in which they had intended to obtain a large amount of money from the paymaster of a shoe factory and then escape to Italy.

Vote Was 387 to 302 In Favor of Street Railway

After a hot debate of over two hours the special town meeting of last Friday evening voted $28,000 to secure street railway service for one year, and also accepted the Act permitting sports on Sunday afternoons under certain conditions.

The vote on the Street Railway question was taken by Australian ballot, the check lists being used. The question submitted to the voters read as follows:

"Will the Town, through its Selectmen, unless a committee is appointed for the purpose, enter into an agreement with the Trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, under the provisions of Chapter 247 of the Special Acts of the extra session of the Legislature of 1919, and raise, appropriate and make available the sum of $28,000 for the satisfaction of the Town's part in such agreement?"

The voters were asked to make a cross against the YES or NO, and the result was: YES 387; NO 302. And there were a few blanks.

It will be seen that there were over 700, possibly over 900 in attendance. But there was room enough for all, and in fact for all the 3200 voters of Weymouth. The meeting was held in the old car barn on Iron Hill street. No seats were provided except on the raised platform for the Moderator and Town Clerk erected midway on one side, and at the reporter's table directly in front.

The deliberations are reported at length in the second section.

Town Clerk Merchant read the warrant and Hon. George L. Barnes was unanimously elected Moderator.

Under Article 2, Bradford Hawes reported for the committee on Resolutions on the death of John A. Raymond for 40 years town clerk of Weymouth, the resolutions being unanimously adopted.

The debate on the transportation began under the same article.

William A. Hodges, the clerk of the committee, read an exhaustive report, which stated that ten meetings had been held, also a public hearing, and several conferences with the Trustees (Continued on Page 9)

FIRE DEPARTMENT

The board of Engineers of the Fire Department met at the Town Offices on Tuesday evening, having organized last week by the election of Philip W. Wolfe as chief.

The new engineers reinstated the following members of Combination 2 who were recently dropped by the old board of engineers: Frank Larmey, Ira K. Sturtevant, Herman S. Pratt and Benjamin J. Elkington.

George C. Sprague was appointed superintendent of fire-alarm.

The companies have organized as follows:

Combination 1, Captain, Herman Collyer; 1st Lt. Hiram Nadell; 2d Lt. William Woodworth; clerk, Fred Miller.

Combination 2, Captain, Frank E. Lowney; 1st Lt. Ira K. Sturtevant; 2d Lt. Patrick Higgins; clerk, Benjamin J. Elkington.

Combination 3, Captain, Dennis McCarthy; 1st Lt. James A. Pray; 2d Lt. W. A. Phillips; clerk, W. S. Our. The new member is Russell E. Dexheimer.

Combination 5, Captain, W. B. Baker; 1st Lt. William Kennedy; 2d Lt. William Blanchard; clerk, John F. Kennedy.

MUSICAL HISTORY

To John Harris Gutterson has been assigned the duty of compiling the chapter on music in the new history of Weymouth. He has an advertisement in this issue and asks the co-operation of the townspeople, especially those who have been prominent in the musical organizations in Weymouth, or whose ancestors were prominent. Today's advertisement is a call to musicians in the Civil War.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Turk Problem Settled So That All the Allies Are Fairly Well Satisfied.

ARMENIA LEFT FOR AMERICA

Germans Warned to Carry Out Pledges and Summoned to Conference—Peace Resolution Framed for Senate—Troops Ready to Guard Mexican Border.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

It was easy to predict that the allied premiers would reach an amicable settlement of their differences concerning Turkey and the pressure to be put on Germany. That was what they did, and each of the allied nations most interested seems fairly well satisfied with the results. As for the United States, it is offered the mandate for Armenia. If it declines to accept this great and expensive responsibility, President Wilson is requested to determine the boundaries of the Armenian state, and its protection is to be arranged later. Fixing the limits of Armenia will be no small job, and if Mr. Wilson undertakes it he may find his generous tendencies curbed by the strength of the Turkish nationalists. For instance, their leader, Mustapha Kemal, is in possession of Erzerum, which Mr. Wilson has considered the capital of Armenia, and no one seems inclined to try to dispossess him. The nationalists, it is said, will have representatives in Paris when the treaty is delivered to the Turkish delegates.

Supposing that the British have not materially modified their imperialistic desires, they appear to have profited hugely by the Turkish settlement. They are given possession or control of Mesopotamia, Palestine, the Caucasus with the ports of Baku and Batum, the Bagdad railway, and naval control of the Dardanelles. Also Turkey is compelled to recognize the British protectorate over Egypt, which insures sole rights to the Suez canal. However, there has grown up in England a strong feeling against further expansion of the empire and a recognition of the fact that some of its most important boundaries are weakened and thrown open by the acquisition of Mesopotamia and other territory in that part of the world. It is felt that the material benefits to be derived will not nearly compensate for the added burden on the British taxpayer, for certainly a strong military establishment will have to be maintained permanently in those regions.

France, Italy and Greece were granted most of their demands in the Turkish settlement, and even Turkey itself was considered, for it retains Cilicia and has a chance to keep Erzerum.

When the supreme council came to the settlement of the dispute over the enforcement of the German treaty Premier Millerand scored a decided victory. Backed to a degree by Lloyd George, he was able to convince Premier Nitti that it was necessary to warn Germany that the allies were ready to take all measures, even to the military occupation of more German territory, to assure the carrying out of the treaty of Versailles. A stiff note was sent to Berlin saying the allies cannot even consider the German request for an army of 200,000 as long as Germany fails to meet the most important obligations imposed by the treaty, and adding the warning of forcible action. The council said, however, that it "does not seek to impose too narrow an interpretation of the treaty," and instructed Berlin to send the chiefs of the government to Spa on May 25 for an exchange of views. If the Germans then can make satisfactory explanations and propositions, the council will be willing to discuss questions that affect the internal order and economic well-being of Germany. Premier Millerand on Wednesday assured the French chamber of deputies that the treaty would not be revised at the Spa conference, though certain alterations might be made.

The French have come around to the British and Italian view of the question of reparations and all now agree that the sum to be exacted from Germany must be fixed at the earliest possible moment. The general belief is that 200,000,000,000 marks will be decided upon as the approximate figure Germany can pay. That is the figure the Americans and British agreed upon a year ago, when the French demanded more than twice as much.

The Republican members of the senate committee on foreign relations have prepared a new peace resolution in lieu of the one passed by the house. Its principal features are:

1. It flatly repeals the joint resolution passed by congress declaring war on Germany, and then adopts the language of the house resolution declaring the war ended.

2. It requests the president to open negotiations with Germany for the purpose of restoring friendly relations and commercial intercourse, although as a matter of fact trade has already been resumed.

3. It protects the claim of American nationals against Germany for damage suffered during the war, by holding up all the money accumulated by the alien property custodian or other agents of the government until such claims have been adjusted.

4. It retains for the United States all property or rights obtained under the terms of the armistice and the treaty of Versailles until a satisfactory settlement is made between the United States and Germany.

5. It repeals all war-time legislation, in the language of the house resolution.

The advocates of this method of ending the war found encouragement in a statement from P. B. Noyes, American member of the Rhineland high commission, in the course of which he said:

"The big thing for the Americans with the interests of the world at heart is to ratify the treaty. It doesn't matter what sort of a peace; this is her obligation. Ratify with reservations, by treaty, by compromise or by resolution—that's immaterial now. The league and other disputes can be settled later after calm and careful deliberations. Now it is necessary—more necessary every day—that America's counsel and resources be unhampered in the present deplorable position of the world of affairs. A formal declaration of peace by the United States is the only possible cure for Europe's ills."

The Poles, partly to protect their frontier and partly to aid the Ukrainians, with whom they have formed an alliance, have been attacking the bolsheviks on a long front west of Kiev. Their advance, which was not strongly opposed, took them some fifty miles and gave them possession of a number of cities. This territory they promise to evacuate as soon as a stable government has been established in the Ukraine.

In Siberia, though the Japanese were victorious around Vladivostok and along the Ussuri railway, correspondents there assert the red troops are so numerous that they could crush their foes at any time, but are satisfied to push them steadily eastward, not wishing to give the Japanese cause for an open and extensive campaign against them. According to Colonel Blunt, a railway engineer officer who has reached Harbin after being held prisoner by the bolsheviks two months, the soviet forces are functioning in Siberia in a most efficient, business-like and orderly way. The red army, he says, is well disciplined, well equipped and finely equipped, and no looting or disorders of any kind are permitted when they enter a city.

Over here in the western hemisphere our own war—the rebellion in Mexico—is progressing about as well as its most ardent friends could wish. That is, if one may believe the reports issued by the leaders of the revolution. They claim that the size of their army and the extent of the affected territory increases daily and that the federal district is practically surrounded. There were rumors Thursday that fighting had begun in Mexico City self. On the other hand the Carranza generals expressed full confidence in their ability to put down the uprising. They claimed to have defeated the rebels at Chihuahua City and driven them from that place. The administration at Washington woke up enough to send two warships down the west coast and to have the American troops at El Paso put in readiness for action in case the border were endangered by events at Juarez or elsewhere in that vicinity.

General Villa, who is in the state of Chihuahua, offered to join the rebels with his bandits provided he were permitted to execute General Escobar and any other federal officers who had to do with the execution of Felipe Angeles.

The house committee on rules has under consideration a resolution designed to lead up to impeachment proceedings against Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of labor. He is accused of causing the release of many alien anarchists taken for deportation, going over the heads of his superiors and practically nullifying the law. These accusations, which have been made on the floor of congress by both Republicans and Democrats, are not surprising to those who have been acquainted with Mr. Post and his tendencies.

Event of the past week were of utmost importance to the several candidates for the Republican presidential nomination. Primaries or state conventions were held in New Jersey, Ohio, Massachusetts, Washington, Missouri and Idaho. The most exciting of these was in New Jersey, where General Wood and Senator Johnson were contesting for the delegation. The general came out ahead by about 1,200 votes, and the senator's campaign manager announced that a recount would be asked in Essex, Gloucester, Morris and Camden counties. There were vague charges of crooked work. The delegates at large will be Senators Edge and Frelinghuysen, pledged to support the choice of the people as shown by the primary, and E. C. Stokes and W. N. Runyon, pledged to Wood. Of the district delegates it was likely Wood would have eleven and Johnson ten, with three unpledged.

According to the political experts in Washington, the results in Ohio virtually eliminated Senator Warren C. Harding from the race for the nomination, for while he received the state's presidential preference endorsement, he failed to capture the solid delegation, and this is usually considered fatal to the chances of a favorite son. Furthermore, Harding's campaign manager, Harry M. Daugherty, was defeated for delegate at large, according to unofficial returns. Wood, it was estimated, might have about one-fourth of the Ohio delegation.

Massachusetts' delegates will give Governor Coolidge a complimentary vote and after that they will go where they are led by the big four, Senator Lodge, Speaker Gillett, Winthrop Murray Crane and Edward Thurston. Washington chose delegates pledged to Senator Poindexter. In Idaho eight unpledged delegates were chosen, led by Senator Borah, who is for Johnson. Three of the delegates are for Wood and the others doubtful. Missouri will send two contesting sets of unpledged delegates to the convention, and so will Arkansas and North Carolina.

Not a great deal is heard just now of Herbert Hoover, but his chances as a compromise candidate are not injured by the remarkable retraction made by the Providence Journal and spread broadcast throughout the country. That paper had asserted that Hoover was really Wilson's heir and stood for the president's ideas on national and international affairs, and that he was being supported for the Republican nomination by those of the Wilson coterie who wished to see their doctrines hold on even though their party was ousted from the White House. The Journal now admits its mistake, affirms its full belief in his sincerity and declares positively his opposition to the "political, economic, industrial and international policies of the president." The fight between Hoover and Senator Johnson for the California delegation has been awaited with the greatest interest.

ENGINE CLEANER IS LABOR SAVER

Contrivance Is Regarded as Indispensable Where Number of Cars Are Kept.

PRACTICAL FOR QUICK WORK

Owner Is Enabled to Reach All Greases Around Carburetor and Water-Pump and Remove All Grease Deposits and Dirt.

Motorists usually pride themselves on keeping the car engine clean by giving it a bath in kerosene every so often; this is to remove the heavy grease deposits that accumulate on its exterior. To get into all the crevices, beneath the carburetor and around the water-pump is almost impossible, for the brush used in the operation is much too large to permit this.

Where There Are a Number of Automobile Engines to Clean, This Contrivance Is Indispensable as Both a Time and Money-Saver.

Remove Grease and Dirt.

A gasoline or kerosene spray, under air pressure, will quickly remove grease and dirt from the engine or the chassis.

The contrivance that throws this spray is shown in the illustration, being made at practically no cost, and will prove its weight in gold to the man who has much of this work to do.

Can Use Foot Pump.

A tank holds the liquid, and an aspirator is used for forming the spray. The aspirator is nothing more than a copper pipe which passes through the center of the tank, one end being connected to the air pressure line, and the other end being drawn down into a nozzle. A small copper tube connects this pipe, so that the cleaning solution is drawn from the tank and forced into a spray by the passing air. A foot pump can be used to inject air if no other pressure is available.

The foregoing proves that this cleaner is practical for quick work in either the public or home garage. It can be stowed away when not in use.—R. L. Prindle, in Popular Science Monthly.

SOME AUTOMOBILE DON'TS.

Don't drive fast around turns or over rough roads.
Don't apply brakes suddenly, except in cases of emergency.
Don't attempt to shift into reverse gear when going ahead.
Don't allow your clutch to engage suddenly.
Don't drive on crowded thoroughfares until you thoroughly master the operation and driving of your car.
Don't attempt to start motor with any of the transmission gears in mesh. Have gear shift lever in neutral.
Don't leave your ignition switch "on" when motor is not running.
Don't tamper with your carburetor unless you know it is out of adjustment, and not even then unless you know just what you are doing.

AVOID GRITTY SUBSTANCES

Dust Reflectors With Feather Duster or Soft Cotton Cloth—Wipe With Grain Alcohol.

To guard against gritty substances dust the reflectors carefully with a small feather duster or with soft cotton. Wet a piece of absorbent cotton with grain alcohol, if such can be procured, and wipe the reflector from the bulb socket outward and dry with a clean piece of dry cotton.

IN DESCENDING STEEP HILLS

If Brakes Are Applied So Hard That Wheels Cannot Turn Machine Is Very Apt to Skid.

In descending long, steep hills, if the brakes are applied so that the wheels cannot turn the car is apt to skid in a most precarious manner. Under such conditions tire chains with cross chains on every link and a transmission brake form the best method of descent.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

If oil is running out at the ends of the rear axle onto your brake bands the chances are that the oil level is too high.

The car owner should not forget that ordinary vaseline is perhaps the best medium available for coating battery terminals and connectors.

Drive using the lower gears. Shifting of the gears readily shows a good driver and at the same time often prevents stalling the engine in a dangerous place.

Broken flywheel teeth can be replaced by drilling and tapping a hole where the tooth has been lost and screwing into this opening a short steel peg, as hard as can be filed.

A cause of engine noise sometimes not suspected is the slapping of worn pistons, which, of course, is likely to occur only when the engine has been run a long time and the cylinders are worn.

Any type of tire will be injured by abuse. Riding on a soft or flat tire, dented and irregular rims, excessive loads, the fillers and stiff rollers are the common causes for cutting and breaking above the beads.

AUTOMOBILES NOW HAUL TROLLEY CARS

The photograph shows an automobile put to a new use in the city of Apeldoorn, Holland. The car has been converted into a "locomotive" for the purpose of hauling one, two, or more trolleys through the city's avenues. The trolleys were previously horse-drawn, and many of the townsfolk preferred walking to riding. Today the trams are well filled during business hours.

VIBRATION IS QUITE INJURIOUS

Small Iron Bracket Should Be Installed to Prevent Flange From Breaking.

In fitting a new carburetor be sure that there is no looseness to cause vibration, because if there is a broken flange will be the inevitable result. If vibration is present a small iron bracket should be installed from a nut on the engine frame to the instrument to steady it, also taking the strain off the intake pipe.

A car should always be started in low gear. Open the throttle a little and pick up to five or six miles an hour.

A good grease, mixed in the right proportion with selected flake graphite, forms the best lubricant for bearings.

Many car owners are finding that oil cups may be substituted for the grease cups commonly used in many locations on the chassis, with eminently satisfactory results.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

On talking to Dort owners you will find that they not only speak enthusiastically regarding the economy of the Dort in gasoline, oil, and tires, and the ease with which it rides, but they refer repeatedly to the advantages that accrue to them as a result of the remarkable simplicity and accessibility of Dort construction.

EAST WEYMOUTH and WEYMOUTH CENTER

—Peter Healey, the well known orator of South Weymouth, caused a good many laughs for the crowd during the recent Town Meeting. As each voter was checked off at the entrance he was handed a ballot relative to the appropriation for the street railway. Each man was to register his opinion by marking a cross. When it came time to vote, Peter called the attention of Moderator Barnes to the fact that his ballot had been stolen from him, thereby disfranchising the aforesaid. It seems some practical joker had seen where Peter had put his voting ticket, and deftly abstracted it. His vote counted, however, as the Moderator said that any voter who did not have one, could receive another upon application, which Peter promptly did.

SUGAR VIA OUR OPINION

The sugar question today is the most serious question the public have to encounter. Sugar is being used to gamble with. Should it be? Are the public going to sit still and allow it to continue? Sugar is high at present but it is cheap compared to what it will be if steps aren't taken at once.

One year ago today we could buy 100 lbs. sugar for $9.75, today the same amount costs $22.15. We are told that leather concerns are investing money in sugar and holding it for a higher market.

The bakers, restaurants and candy manufacturers get what they want but if you want it to place upon the table you find it difficult to buy.

The grocer is up against it. The Boards of Trade, Chamber of Commerce and the grocers associations have taken steps toward bettering conditions. We ask you to help. Write your Congressman by making an appeal to him to put a stop to this high handed high price sugar situation.

Do your duty. Write now.

Dr. Fisher was educated at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky.; Boston University School of Theology and the Harvard Divinity School. Previous to his Boston pastorate he served as a missionary in India for the Methodist Church.

HE GETS THE TRADE

The constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone. The constant know of Towser masticates the toughest bone. The constant wooing lover carries off the blushing maid. And the constant advertiser is the man that gets the trade. Don't ever think that printer's ink is money to the bad. To help you fall a role of ome there's nothing beats an ad. You can't fool people always, they've been a long time here. And most folks know that man is slow who toothed not his horse. —Buckeye.

Article XVI.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

The history of Russia begins with a legend. Nestor of Kiev, an old monkish chronicler, tells the story. Kiev is the mother of Russian cities. In the ninth century Slavs and Finns lived in a tribal state in the forest region near Lake Ilmen, between Lake Ladoga and the upper waters of the Dnieper river. Bands of military adventurers from the land of Rus, which is supposed to have been a part of Sweden, exacted tribute from the tribes. In the year 859 the tribes threw off the yoke of the Norsemen and drove them out of the country. It was Russia's first revolution, so the old chronicler relates, and it was successful. Freed from the tyranny of the tribute takers the tribes began to quarrel among themselves. Their land was large and fertile, but civil war destroyed order. Then as now, order was the first essential to peace and happiness. It is told that after three years of tribal war they confessed their inability to manage their own affairs and they sent a mission to Rus to invite their old masters to come and rule over them.

According to the legend, three brothers, princes of Rus, Rurik, Sineus and Truvor, accepted the call and founded a dynasty, from which many of the Russian princes of the present day claim descent.

While much discussion has been provoked as to the identity of the warriors from the land of Rus, the founders of the Russian empire, it is generally believed that they were the hardy Norsemen, who in the ninth century roamed through various countries of Europe. These roving bands invaded and conquered territory and lived as the dominant military caste until they were gradually absorbed by the native population.

Novgorod First Capital.
Prince Rurik built his capital on the banks of the River Volkhov, which with Lake Ilmen formed part of the great waterway connecting the Baltic and Black seas. By this route, the tall, blonde Norsemen, who composed the famous Varangian bodyguard of the Byzantine emperors, traveled from Scandinavia to Constantinople. Russia's first capital was Novgorod.

These new rulers from the land of Rus brought with them the spirit of adventure of the Norsemen. They were not contented to rule the tribes who had invited them. They set out to conquer the surrounding country in all directions, and before two hundred years had passed they had invaded Byzantine territory, established themselves at Kiev, threatened Constantinople with a fleet, secured as a consort for Vladimir I, one of their princes, a sister of the Byzantine emperor, adopted Christianity for themselves and their subjects, learned to hold in check the nomadic hordes of the steppe, and formed matrimonial alliances with the reigning families of Poland, Hungary, Norway and France. They became a great power in eastern Europe.

They had great appetite for conquest, but they lacked the power to organize the territory they conquered. The political future of the new state was destroyed when the princes of the Rurik dynasty divided the state into a number of independent principalities. For a time these were weakly and loosely held together by the patriarchal authority of the senior member of the family, the grand prince, who ruled in Kiev. Family quarrels became frequent. These princes were strong men. They wanted power. They strove to enlarge their territories at the expense of their rivals. The traditional authority of the grand prince declined. Yaroslav the Great was the last of the grand princes. With his death in 1054, family feuds multiplied and disintegration set in. During the next 170 years, from 1054 to 1224, Russia was split into over sixty principalities. Disputes over the question of succession led to eighty-three civil wars.

Ruined by Internal Struggle.
During these interminable struggles of rival princes, Kiev, which had been a long the residence of the grand prince, was repeatedly taken by storm, and ruthlessly pillaged. Finally the whole valley of the Dnieper fell a prey to the marching tribes of the steppe. Thereupon Russian colonization and political influence retreated northward, and from that time the continuous stream of Russian history is to be sought in the land where the Vikings first settled, and in the adjoining basin of the upper Volga. Here the principalities were founded, some of them having a grand prince, who was supposed to profess allegiance to Kiev. These appeared the grand princes of Novgorod, of Tver, of Ryazan and of Moscow—all irreconcilable rivals with no feelings of blood relationship. The more ambitious and powerful among them aspired not to succeed, but to subdue the others and take possession of their territory, and the armed retainers, who were wont formerly to wander about as free lances, gave up their roving mode of life, settled down permanently, became landed proprietors and sought to share as boyars the princes' authority.

The greatest of these principalities was Novgorod. Since the days when Rurik had first chosen it as his headquarters the little capital on the Volkhov had grown into a great commercial city and brought under subjection a vast expanse of territory, stretching from the shores of the Baltic to the Ural mountains. Unlike the other Russian principalities it had a democratic, rather than a monarchical form of government. The republic of Novgorod was the first and only flicker of freedom in the long night of Russia, and it glowed but for a short moment.

Novgorod had a prince, but he was engaged by formal contract. He was merely the commander of the troops. All the political power remained in the hands of the civil officials. They had a popular assembly which was called together in the market place as occasion required, by the tolling of the great bell. The maxim of the state was: "If the prince is bad, into the mud with him."

In Moscow a different state of affairs obtained. There the supreme law was the will and whim of an autocrat. Democratic Novgorod and autocratic Moscow became bitter rivals. The future of Russia was in balance. The question was light or darkness, day or night, freedom or slavery for the future Russians. Had Novgorod won out in the thirteenth century we might not have the problem of bolshevism in Russia today. But it was to be otherwise, and with the success of Moscow, autocracy was enthroned. The Russian night came on.

Tatar Invasion.
Then came the Tatar yoke. The "Golden Horde" conquered Russia. The conquerors built their capital at Sarai on the lower Volga. The Mongols pillaged and robbed. Tax gatherers kept the people's backs bent in toll. The first trail to Siberia was blazed, the cruel road that was to play such an important part in the horrors of Russian history. Oddly enough the first wayfarers who journeyed on this road were Russian autocrats, the degenerate and corrupt descendants of Rurik. The grand khan, the chief of the Mongol empire, lived with the "Great Horde" in the valley of the Amur in Siberia. Russian princes were puppets in the eyes of this autocrat of autocrats. He commanded them to appear before him. Before making the perilous trip the prince made his last will and testament and gave direction for the guidance of his children. Few ever came back. The road to Siberia then, as later, was a journey into the shadow of death. Some died on the trip, others found execution the reception at its end. The few who returned escaped the wrath of the great khan by sycophancy and bribery.

The princes of Moscow were the most willing and pliant tools of the great khan. They outraged and robbed their own subjects to satisfy the Mongol court. Muscovy grew strong under the Mongol empire. The betrayal of the Russians was the price. This is the taint in the blood of the czardom of Muscovy; out of this line the czars came. When the Russian princes became strong enough they turned on the Mongol empire. It was weakening. At the battle of Kulikovo, 1380, the Mongol yoke was broken.

Three czars, Ivan III, known as the Great, his son Basil, and his grandson Ivan IV, called Ivan the Terrible, whose united reigns cover a period of one hundred and twenty-two years, 1462 to 1584, forged and fixed the shackles which clanked until the execution of the last Romanoff, Nicholas. It was Ivan III who snuffed out the last spark of liberty in Russia, the democracy of Novgorod. Ivan IV finished the job; popular assemblies were abolished, freedom of conscience was killed. The complete doom of the Russian people began.

TO BUILD WORKERS' HOMES

Belgium Allocates 100,000,000 Francs to Be Handled as Long-Term Loans.

The Belgian government has decided to allocate 100,000,000 francs in 1920 for building workmen's houses. This money will be lent to the local authorities or approved building societies at 2 per cent for twenty years, at the end of which time a new agreement will be entered into.

The conditions are that no loan may exceed half the cost of the building or a maximum of 6,000 francs and the rent charged must not amount to more than 4 per cent of the total cost of building.

It is officially calculated that the cost of building in the devastated areas will be about 10,000 francs to a house. A garden city of 100 houses in Roulers was begun September 21 and is to be finished in 120 working days.

Predicts Soviets for World.

A soviet wireless message received from Moscow flashed New Year's greetings to the world. The message after celebrating 1919 as a year of victory for the soviets, says: "In 1920 we shall attain a victorious end of civil war. Siberia, the Ukraine, the Don region and the Caucasus desire soviets. There also will be soviets at Berlin, Washington, Paris and London. Soviet authority will be supreme throughout the world."

Early Days of Tobacco.

While tobacco was getting a foothold in England marvelous medicinal properties were ascribed to it, and until Raleigh blew smoke ostentatiously from his nostrils because he liked it the addicts of the time usually professed to be smoking for the good of their health. By the year 1614 the number of tobaccoists in and about London was estimated at 7,000. Just before that time began the "great tobacco persecution."

Car Tracks Wear Tires.

The severest wear on solid tires is caused by driving on the car tracks, according to an official of a rubber company, quoted by the Scientific American. He says that when on the tracks most of the load is concentrated on a limited portion of the tread, so that it is overloaded and quickly worn away, besides, a sharp pointed frog may actually cut a piece off the tire just as a knife would.

Beware of Lost Minutes.

"In the dynamics of human affairs," said a learned man, "two qualities are essential to greatness—power and promptitude. The former is often the fruit of the latter. A man or woman who is impressed with the value of time will make every minute count to such purpose that his or her life will inevitably bear the stamp of power." —Orison Swett Marden in Chicago Daily News.

No Fear of Phosphate Famine.
Reserves of phosphate on the Island of Nauru, in the Pacific, are believed to be sufficient to meet the demands of the world for 200 years. Anything from 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 tons are available, and possibly more.

Widely Varied Styles in Suits

THE Egyptian and the Chinese inspiration in fashions have made themselves conspicuous; the Egyptian in dinner and evening gowns, and the Chinese in suits. Both are represented in millinery displays along with head dresses that have been patterned from the headwear of other countries, far and near, so that anyone can acquire a head dress that will accentuate either the Chinese or Egyptian flavor in a costume.

The Chinese suit model was introduced early in the season, and a darling little coolie hat, with a queue of plaited ribbon trailing from its crown, was shown with it. It made a great impression and both suit and hat have been more or less faithfully copied—the hat suffering the amputation of its queue and substituting a long tassel for it. The queue was a little too eccentric, but the tassel is quite as Chinese and much more beautiful.

The success of the suits that are indebted to the Orient for their lines and decorations, is evident in the example pictured above at the left in the illustration. There is a jauntyness and trimness in the style that is fetching. The short Chinese coat is embroidered in an odd design with silk, and has a double band set on at the bottom under a tuck. The original oriental jacket would have pockets in the sleeves probably, but here the model is unfaithful to its prototype. Little slit pockets find a place in the border at each side of the front. The flaring sleeves have narrow turned-back cuffs, and there is a flat collar. The skirt is plain and straight, narrow enough to give the slender lines which are needed with this jacket.

One hardly knows where to place the responsibility for the suit at the right, but its origin is on the other side of the world from China. The body of the coat is more than semi-fitting and its skirt is made to ripple with plaits. On the hip at each side there is a box plait and lest we overlook them, close-set, satin-covered buttons are placed in a row on them. Another row accents a narrow set-on panel of cloth at the back and possibly the front depends upon them for fastening.

Some Novel Shopping Bags

REALLY good shopping bags of leather have done so much varying in price since days of the war, that a good many bags of other materials are replacing them. Those of silks and of heavy and handsome ribbons, which women make for themselves, using celluloid or German silver mountings, have taken the place of the better leather bags to quite an extent. There are many more bead bags than ever before, although they are, as they always have been, expensive. The most practical of these substitutes for the regulation leather bags are those of ribbon and silks and it is a pretty fad to have a bag and street hat to match, using brocade ribbon or plain, or either figured or plain silks. The bags are usually lined with satin in a contrasting color.

This hat and bag to match idea is responsible for the very novel bag shown at the left of the picture above. This bag is made of small iridescent green feathers, which have been most painstakingly sewed to a silk foundation. It is mounted on a frame and lined with satin, after the manner of a silk bag and has much the same appearance as a bead bag. Small all-feather hats or turbans made of brilliant little feathers inspired this novelty and it may have been a companion piece to one of them. Whoever is looking for the unusual in bags will find it in this one.

A short-lived fad for carrying dolls which was accredited to Parisiennes, may be responsible for the silk bag which simulates a doll. This little mid-Victorian lady has a wide skirt, a poke bonnet and a small cape of silk in which to face an admiring world. The skirt accommodates a mounting for the bag, which shows only on one side of it. This enticing creation in bags is suspended by a silk cord.

SAY RAILROADS NEED BILLION

The Executives Present Proposed Freight Rate Increases

EASTERN R.R.'S ASK 30.4 P.C.

Need Rolling Stock—Farmers and Millers Ask Congress for $300,000,000 to Aid Railroads

Washington, (By the Associated Press)—The nation's railroads will need an additional $1,017,000,000 to bring their income to the 6 per cent. basis provided in the transportation act.

Through the association of railway executives, the railroads proposed to the interstate commerce commission today that this sum be raised through increased freight charges, leaving the passenger rates at the present level.

The advances in freight rates proposed were:

Eastern roads, 30.4 per cent., to yield an advance in all revenues of 21.1 per cent., or $544,000,000.

Southern roads, 30.9 per cent., to provide 20.7 per cent. larger revenue.

Western roads, 23.9 per cent., to advance all revenues 17 per cent.

Presentation of the figures marked the formal opening of the railroad rate case. While detailed statements submitted to the commission covered only the eastern lines, estimates of the increases needed by the western and southern groups accompanied the initial suggestions upon which the commission is to determine an entirely new rate structure.

The rate figures of the eastern lines, embracing 144 systems, terminal and switching companies, were laid before the commission by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio and chairman of the executives' rate committee for the eastern territory. Similar statements, showing the requirements of the western and southern carriers, the relationship of operating expenses and revenues and the questions of refinancing are largely the same in each case and the representations of the eastern lines were said to indicate the questions with which the commission will deal in establishing the western and southern rates.

Net income of all of the country's railroads fell from $1,056,000,000 in 1916 to $510,000,000 last year, the railroads claim, while their investment has increased more than $2,000,000,000. These figures were given to serve as basis from which the commission could work in developing a scale of rates to meet the government guarantee.

An estimated valuation of $20,616,000,000 was placed on the transportation systems of the country by Mr. Willard. While there has been an increase in operating expenses of 99.1 per cent. since 1916, the roads' basis of revenues for the period has been increased only 36.37 per cent., the executives' statement declared, and the operating expenses of the lines now are 99 per cent. of the revenues against 68 per cent. in 1916.

This year and next the eastern lines alone face the renewal of nearly $250,000,000 in maturing obligations, Mr. Willard said in discussing the problem of financing the roads. Some of these loans and bonds have been bearing an interest rate as low as 3 1/2 per cent., and Mr. Willard declared that in taking care of this amount of obligations at the current rate of interest necessitated the most careful study of the revenue production question in order that the roads' credit be kept unimpaired.

PRESIDENT SITS AGAIN AT CABINET MEETING

Washington.—President Wilson met with his cabinet again and went over a variety of subjects at a session which lasted for an hour and a half. It was the fourth weekly meeting since his consultations with the members of his official family were resumed.

Valuable Spanish Products.

Spain is an important producer of a number of essential oils, including spike, rosemary, thyme, sage, pennyroyal, and geranium. The plants grow wild and distillation is carried on by large steam distilleries as well as by many small direct-fire stills.—Exchange.

WILBUR THEATRE

With a notable cast to present Victor Herbert's latest triumph, "Oul Madame", the Wilbur Theatre is certain to be the rendezvous for many of Boston's socially elect as well as the regular patrons of the theatre. "Oul Madame" has scored a veritable triumph in Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Victor Herbert is a great favorite in Boston, and in order that the music lovers of this city might have the opportunity to hear his new musical comedy at its best, he insisted on personally selecting the musicians who compose one of the largest and best orchestras ever heard in the Wilbur Theatre. Mr. Herbert never has written anything superior to the music that he has composed for "Oul Madame" and the fact that he positively will lead the orchestra on the opening night is certain to make the event one of more than usual importance. That the producers have spared no expense in producing the best talent available is revealed by the fact that Georgia O'Ramey is the featured player. Miss O'Ramey is admitted to be one of the cleverest comedienne on the stage.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

John Golden, in introducing "Howdy, Folks", at the Majestic, gives further illustration of his unswerving adherence to purely American topics for his comedies. The predecessors of "Howdy, Folks" have been "Turn to the Right", "Lightnin'" and "Three Wise Folks". The newest of the Golden string is a lighthearted study of a mountain community in North Carolina in which the comic types do not have to be drawn in contrast with "city folks." There is no love affair between the visiting rich man's son and the benighted maid of the hills.

The commanding figure is an itinerant preacher who rules the neighborhood with brawn if he must. His charges include moonshiners and feudists, but his principal concern is a girl who has run away from a circus. The play is by Miss Pearl Franklin long associated with Winchell Smith, who found her inspiration in the "Azaela" stories by Mrs. Ella W. Peattie.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

The deadly seriousness of youth is amusing to everyone, but the young themselves, to whom its consequences are very tragic—while the consequences endure. Which, happily, are not for long. It is on this familiar groundwork that Alice Duer Miller has based her delightful tale of "The Charm School", which Robert Milton presents at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. "The Charm School" was first published as a "Saturday Evening Post" serial, later published in book form and now dramatized by Alice Duer Miller and Robert Milton.

"The Charm School" is described by Mr. Milton as a comedy with a bit of music. The music being supplied by our ever popular Jerome Kern. In dramatizing "The Charm School", all the youthful romance and delightful humor have been retained and Mr. Milton searched New York for months for just the "right" cast to portray the various characters of the story.

Massachusetts Pastor Leader in Interchurch Movement

DR. JOHN YOUNG AITCHISON.

Rev. Dr. John Young Aitchison of Boston, Mass., executive secretary of the $100,000,000 New World Movement of the Baptist Church, has been made one of the principal representatives of his denomination in the higher councils of the Interchurch World Movement for an alliance of American Protestant Churches in World-wide missionary advance.

Dr. Aitchison is now associate general secretary of the Interchurch movement and is a member of its general and executive committees. He still retains his position at the head of the National movement of the Baptists which is part of the interchurch campaign. For three years Dr. Aitchison was secretary, in Chicago, of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society. Since 1916 he has been in Boston as joint district secretary of the American Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Societies. He was born in Cascade, Ia., and educated at Central College, Pella, Ia., Des Moines College and the Divinity School of the University of Chicago. He has been pastor of Baptist Churches in Milwaukee, Wis., Shenandoah, Ia., and Galesburg, Ill.

Vote Was 387 to 302
In Favor of Street Railway

of the street railway, with bus companies and operators of busses, and with a committee of the town of Braintree. The committee made no recommendation, but recited at length the result of their deliberations and conferences.

The report made twelve type-written pages, and no attempt will be made to print it in full. "In our interview with Trustees of Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company," says the report, "the fact was developed that the operation of electric cars in the town of Weymouth as a whole, or as individual lines, had never been at a profit to the company."

The engineers department of the company estimate the cost of one-man cars in Weymouth for one year beginning June 1, 1920, to be $164,330, as follows:

Wages, car operation	$19,515
Power and line	13,470
Maintenance of track	63,675
Maintenance of equipment	18,855
General expenses	10,775
Six per cent on investment	18,000
2.67% for depreciation	8,040
Taxes	1,500
Car house expenses	7,000
Supervision and office expenses	3,500

Total cost $164,330
Estimated revenue 117,500

Estimated deficit for one year $46,830

The Weymouth district includes the East Weymouth-Braintree route, and the Rockland-Braintree route. The deficit would probably be reduced each year.

A contract satisfactory to the trustees was submitted, the total payment by the town not to exceed $28,000 in one year. The town to appoint an advisory committee to make suggestions and recommendations in regard to operation. The trustees and committee to strive to keep the deficit as small as possible consistent with good service.

Relative to busses, "The committee is of the opinion that it is not feasible nor desirable at this time to consider the formation of a company with the capital stock to be furnished by the citizens of the town of Weymouth."

Propositions were submitted by Thomas L. Gammon and David P. Barry of Quincy, also by Anton B. Nelson of East Braintree, for the operation of busses.

The report of the Committee on Transportation was accepted.

Peter Healey moved that when a vote was taken it be by wards, but it was quickly voted down.

Mr. Guertin asked if committee had considered plan for town to operate busses?

Chairman Heald said no, as they did not consider it would be legal.

The Moderator suggested that the whole transportation question might be considered at once if Articles 2 and 4 were taken up together.

Selectman Humphrey moved to take up Article 4, with article 2, which prevailed.

John White moved that $28,000 be appropriated and raised under the contract outlined in the report, and spoke in favor.

Selectman Hawes moved as a substitute, that the Selectmen or a committee be authorized to make a contract with the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company under Chapter 247, and that the vote be taken on the question printed above in bold type, the Australian ballot being used.

Mr. Healey opposed any appropriation for the street railway. (Applause) He did not think the town would be sane. He criticized the Selectmen, also large expenditures by trustees for cars.

Mr. Wright asked for report concerning proposition of Mr. Whiting. Chairman Heald said committee had received an exhaustive document from Mr. Whiting, but he made absolutely no proposition, merely what town could do.

John L. Bean called for reading of Chapter 247 of 1918 which was quoted in the question to be voted upon.

The Town Clerk read the Chapter. Mr. Bean queried if Trustees were guaranteeing any service. Thought town had no assurance that appropriation would decrease. Would probably increase. Company has never kept its promises. Was the same in other towns.

Mr. Howe moved to indefinitely postpone the question.

E. W. Hunt did not think that would be fair to the committee. We have got to have transportation, either cars or busses. Committee had furnished no guarantee of reliable bus service, and the only service offered is by the street railway. (Applause) Every part of the town should be considered. What is best?

Mr. Healey said the street railway company had money enough. What are they doing with $2,000,000 in the surplus? Don't vote any money to the street railway.

T. P. Vaile wanted to hear what committee thought. Their report was a disappointment. Were told to bring in a recommendation. Read it; not what was wanted. Did not think committee was in favor of street railway. Criticized increasing demands of street railway. What do they promise? What does "at cost" mean? Has any Weymouth man ever seen the books of the street railway? Transportation can be made to pay in this town. If we cannot get service, then tell them to get out. (Time expired).

By request Town Counsel Worthen explained the contract drawn up. Town was not to pay $28,000 outright, but to raise and appropriate that amount. Street railway was to render monthly report, and each month town would pay only 40 per cent of its share of the deficit, the company standing for the balance. If deficit was $46,000 in year, the town would pay only $23,000. All profits over and above operation must be turned over to town. Of course there will be a deficit, but a local committee are to operate the Weymouth division and should know the cost.

Mr. Healey argued that a Yes vote was not 100% American.

Mr. Taylor asked if Mr. Worthen was employed by the Street Railway or the town? Did not believe any electric cars would be operated in five years.

George E. Cunniff of the committee thought Weymouth should be congratulated upon having a town counsel of the calibre of Mr. Worthen; he was 100% American, and 200% Weymouth. (Applause). Town did not ask committee for a recommendation. Committee did not feel that they should make a recommendation.

Thought Trustees would be glad to be relieved of running cars in Weymouth, but Trustees were appointed by the Governor to operate the Eastern Massachusetts Company. Weymouth can have any service it wants, but she must pay for it. Town would make no payment unless there was a deficit. Street cars can be operated in Weymouth at a profit, and at reasonable cost. The deficit at end of year will not be alarming. We have no proposition from any bus company, and none from the "Mysterious Man" (Time expired).

Mr. Whiting took the platform and serious man. Asked why Mr. Cunniff should knock him? The speaker claimed that he had made a proposition, and quoted from the document he had submitted. Other towns were watching Weymouth. (Time expired).

Mr. White said the gentleman has not told us that any company was ready to establish service. It could not be done for $75,000. If you will support the street railway instead of knocking it, it will be successful. Women were more intelligent than the men. They have begged me to fight for the street cars. Jitneys are not fit to ride in. Busses would require better streets, and cost more than cars.

Mr. Guertin—It has been said that prices have advanced. Have not fares on the street railway advanced?

John L. Bean said there was a difference between busses and jitneys. Good busses were better than street railway.

Mr. Vaile argued that the $28,000 was merely to rebuild the street railway, and then it would be returned to its owners. The Weymouth committee cannot find out where the trouble is.

J. W. Linnehan moved the previous question.

Ten minutes were allowed for debate, and E. W. Hunt and Henry E. Hanley argued in favor of the street railway.

The Moderator ruled out of order the motion to indefinitely postpone as a vote by ballot was required.

A committee was appointed to supervise the voting and the same tellers who checked the lists at the door took positions in front of the platform to check the voters. It took a long time to receive the votes, and it was not until 10:30 that the polls closed.

While the ballots were being counted, Article 3 relative to authorizing sports on Sunday afternoons was taken up, and the question came on ac-

The Extremist.

"Your friend, Miss Blank, is a very strict teetotaler," said a man commenting on a girl who had refused to eat brandy sauce with plum pudding. "Strict doesn't express it," replied the girl's friend. "Why, she's that particular she won't heat her curling tongs over a spirit lamp!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Puzzler.

"Ma, when any one steals anything from you, mustn't you forgive him until he gives back what he took?" "Of course not, my child." "Then I'll tell Dick when he comes tonight that you say he must give me straight back the kiss he stole from me yesterday."—

"Oculists' bills are particularly irritating."

Why so? Because in their very nature they calculated to develop eye-rate possibilities."

Jerusalem Buried Under a Blanket of Snow

That abnormal weather conditions have not been confined to America during the winter that is passing, is shown by the above photographs, just received from Palestine. They portray Jerusalem lying under a heavy blanket of snow, the first that had fallen on the Holy city for a great many years. Gangs of workmen were out the next morning shoveling the "beautiful" off the streets and sidewalks, just as in an American city. The upper photograph shows the Dome of the Rock, and the lower gives a view of David street, the busiest shopping street in old Jerusalem, the day after the surprising snowfall.

"I suppose that has to be the answer. Well—"

"I'll tell Embree you didn't accept," Hilliard reached for his hat. "And I mustn't bother you any more this morning; we've both too much to do. I only wanted to see you a moment and tell you the news and get your check. But when Cullen and I come back—" His smile was glorious.

They were shaking hands at the door of the ante-room.

"That'll be before the holidays, won't it? We expect you to take Christmas dinner with us, of course. Mrs. Durant and Carol would never forgive you if you didn't—and neither would I."

Hilliard flushed with pleasure. "Nothing would please me better . . . and you'll tell Mrs. Durant and Carol how grateful I am . . . and how sorry I am I can't even stop now to say good-by, won't you?" As a matter of fact, he wasn't going to stop because he knew that if he did he might never get to Montana. And there was need of quick action against Harmon's cut-throat partners in New York.

"Surely I will. Good-By. Good Luck—My Boy!"

"Surely I will. And I'll also tell them what an altruist you are. I still don't feel exactly right about it—but the world's the world. . . . And I'm not going to refuse an investment just because there happens to be money in it! Good-by! Good luck—my boy!"

CHAPTER XV.

Already at daybreak it was a white Christmas; white underfoot, white overhead, dancing, swirling white of snow in the winter air. Hilliard, lifting himself on his elbow to watch it from the car window, was unreservedly thrilled by the appropriateness of it. Nature, which had been sulking for a week or more, had finally consented to dress the season. But the thrill dissolved, and anxiety took its place when he discovered that it was past eight o'clock, and this was only Buffalo!

His watch, and the railway folder, gave him indigestible food for thought, and the snow, taking upon itself the role of a barrier to traffic, was suddenly less agreeable to look at. Wreaths in the windows of nearby houses, holly berries and red ribbon, glimpses of feathery fir boughs and tinsel through the curtains—all these awoke within him a new and a disturbing fancy that at the end of two thousand miles of visioning he might be irretrievably late! Illogically he made haste to rise; he wanted to flavor his impatience by counting landmarks.

The diner was half filled when he arrived for breakfast, and the train was still standing in the yards. As the conductor wished him a perfunctory Merry Christmas, Hilliard smiled obliquely.

"Not unless you make up some speed between here and Syracuse," he said.

"Not much chance of that," said the conductor, punching the order slip. "It's deep snow from here on, sir. Lucky if we're in time for your turkey!"

Hilliard sighed, brightened as the train dragged itself into sluggish motion, and gave his attention to the landscape. It was typically a scene from a Christmas card; all it needed, at any moment, was a few lines of engravings in the foreground to be a very fair counterpart of the cards which Hilliard had ordered sent out to all his friends. He smiled, expansively, at the conception of what the name of Hilliard on those cards now meant to Syracuse. They were undoubtedly magnifying his grandeur now; he knew enough of human nature to realize that in his home-coming he was certain to be greeted as a multi-millionaire. And it wasn't multi—it was only the possibility of a single one!

The thought of riches turned his mind to the individuals who would share in them; Dr. Durant, who, unless he chose, need never keep office hours again—he could devote himself to the research he loved; Cullen, whose blind, bulldog faith had made him forever independent, even Rufus Waring, whose modest contribution, accepted out of spleenless commiseration, had swelled to the dignity of four figures, and given him the means to show the world to Angela. And Hilliard himself had made far more than all the other ventures combined—not in money, perhaps, but in dividends payable in the medium of his self-respect.

And yet, as the realities stood, now, he was sensitive to the nothingness of his triumph, until such time as he had some one to divide it with him. For there is little pleasure in a monopoly of happiness; not even a joke is fully established until some one appears to share it; a secret is delectable only when it's repeated, a conquest is empty without the popular acclaim, or the arrival of the historian. He felt this keenly; he reflected that of all the syndicate, he alone was without a beneficiary. And today, when he had steered himself to speak to Carol . . . Like countless generations of men before him, he began vaguely to wonder what he should do if she refused him.

What would be left? Only the shell of achievement. Would he go back to France? or would he remain in America, and struggle for success by endowing war charities out of his glorious income-to-be? Also . . . and this was enervating . . . what should he say to her? It is given to few men to propose twice, in different characters, to the same girl.

The train plowed and panted through the thickening drifts; Hilliard's watch was coming out of his pocket at five-minute intervals; here was Rochester at last . . . three hours late . . . and there, shining dimly through banked clouds, was the sun! The train seemed warmed to greater effort by its mere appearance; Hilliard, who had measured time by weeks, then by days, and more recently by reluctant hours, began to mark the minutes from his mental calendar.

And then, after an interminable century of impatience, the outlying villages, gray and smoky; the flat wastes of Solway; the road slowly becoming streets; the buildings adding height . . . Syracuse!

His feet were on the platform; he was hurrying forward. Ahead of him . . . and in his excitement he stumbled heavily . . . there, coming toward him . . . Carol and the Doctor, befringed and rosy . . . no question of the welcome they were bringing him!

His own initial remarks were grossly incoherent. There were no words to fit the situation; perhaps he did it greater justice by the disconnected sounds he made. And then he was entering the Doctor's closed car; they were bouncing over the cobbles of the lower city; they were attacking the grade of James street, and he was peering out in an ecstasy of memory at the houses where he had played in boyhood.

Two o'clock . . . on time for dinner to the second! A house hanging with evergreen; a Christmas spirit permeating every nook and cranny; Christmas odors—not all of evergreen—drifted in tantalizing whiffs to meet him.

A joyous interlude; a gay procession; a hush; a gravely spoken blessing—Oh, that Christmas!

There came a time early in the evening when Hilliard found himself alone with Carol. He had a vague recollection that they had been sent to look for something . . . a corn popper, or some other equally futile article . . . and for an instant he marveled at their expecting to find it in the sun-parlor, where they had wandered. But the sun-parlor was happily unoccupied; and there were comfortable chairs in it; and something very green and red and seasonal in all the windows; so that they both delayed prodigiously, and exchanged a number of highly inconsequential remarks about the decorations. Presently, without so much as a transient thought for the corn-popper, they sat down with one accord. From a distance the murmur of cheerful voices in the living room was an adequate accompaniment to their thoughts.

Hilliard's head was dropped low; his reverie was so profound that not even Carol's voice could rouse him—not until she spoke a second time.

"I said a penny for them," she repeated, amused.

"Oh!" Hilliard's awakening was explosive. "Why, that's queer . . . I was just thinking about that myself! I mean the first Sunday I ever came up here to dinner. You said the same thing then. Remember it?"

"Yes, indeed . . . and they were a wonderful bargain at the price!" He didn't seem to recall that she had ever looked so mischievous.

"They are now, then," he said. "Because it's just as it was before—I was thinking about you." Regarding her, he was transported anew by her love liness. And it wasn't only her external loveliness that he adored, it was what she had of sympathy, and kindness, and sweetness of disposition. A very womanly girl she was . . . not a flaming character to blaze and die, but a steady and enduring soul . . . such as he craved . . .

She turned her head away. "I was very angry at you this morning," she said; "I thought you'd forgotten about me entirely."

Hilliard affected alarm. "How could that happen?"

"Not even so much as a little card with 'Merry Christmas' on it," she said. "Father and mother had one from you, but as for me—" She opened her hands in emptiness. "I looked over every one of them twice."

Hilliard felt his pulses quicken. "Doesn't my coming to you make up a little for it?"

"No, I'm afraid it doesn't—not in that way. I'm still very childish about Christmas. I have to see it—even if it's only in the tiniest little remembrances. I'm very much hurt. I've been telling myself it must be the postman's fault."

He denied it bravely. "It wasn't the postman's—it was mine. Because I didn't intend to send you a remembrance at all—I intended to bring it. I planned to give it to you before dinner, but when I was so late, and everybody was waiting—"

She turned with gratifying quickness.

"Did you bring it?"

"Yes," he said, "I brought it. I'm not quite sure whether you'll like it or not—"

"I'll like anything you brought!" The pronoun had an infinitesimal emphasis all to itself.

Hilliard cleared his throat. "When I was young—" "I beg your pardon?"

He laughed at high pressure and began over again.

"When I was young, Mother Grundy had a very small collection to choose from—books and candy and flowers. If I'd send you anything by mail, I think I'd have had to obey the rules. My early training was pretty severe. But I thought if I brought it myself, perhaps I could be more original."

"How original?" she asked, with pretty animation.

His heart was pounding relentlessly; he had lost the elaborate recital which he carefully prepared; and it was gone without a trace. He had to depend on presence of mind.

"Since I couldn't keep to my schedule, I've been saving it up to give you when everything was propitious." He tendered her a package, tied with holly ribbon; it was smaller than a book, and smaller than any orthodox carrier of confection. "Don't open it just yet, please."

She looked at it, plucked it, dropped it in her lap, and laughed softly.

"Is there such a mystery about it?" "Yes, there is," Hilliard felt himself begin to go with the current of his mood. He sat up awkwardly. "All that you could ever think of asking about me . . . where I've been and what I've done . . . is in that box. It's everything . . . a biography, and a history . . . and it's my gift to you, too. But before you open it—" He had to pause to collect himself. "I'll have to make an explanation." He fought with it and found his lips strangely sealed.

"It's My Gift to You. But Before You Open It."

"Is it so very hard to make?" she asked at length.

"Almost impossible . . ." He was seeing black and red. Even if "everybody" had expected him to do this thing (as Angela had long since assured him) what reason did he have to hope for pardon? "What would you think," he asked, perily, "of a man who cared enough about you to risk everything he had in the world . . . not his valuables in the sense of money . . . but all his ambitions for everything; all his dreams; all his ideals; all his hopes . . . on a Christmas gift? What would you?"

She frowned adorably. "And . . . he's not just a little bit quixotic?"

"Not at all . . . suppose he did it deliberately, and after a great deal of thought. Just on the chance that it might please you? When it would either do that—or end their friendship?"

She fingered the small package over and over.

"Why, I should think that if this . . . mythical person were so very anxious to please me he wouldn't take quite so much risk."

"But when I'm the mythical person myself—that's different, isn't it?"

"Why should it be?" She gave him no opportunity to see her face.

"You've forgotten a great deal. I told you once that if you knew all that I've been . . . all that I've done . . . you might not be so willing to have my friendship, anyway."

"No," she said, subdued. "I've not forgotten, but you have! I said that I didn't believe you."

"You're holding it all in your hands," said Hilliard. His expression, as he gazed at her, was infinitely yearning; but his voice was even and low. "I spent a good many hours over this . . . wondering whether it was right for me to take such a risk on this day, above all others . . . and finally, I thought it out this way; if it pleases you, it ought to make the day better yet . . . if it doesn't, it would have been just as unwelcome to you at any other time. Understand, I'll never attempt to excuse anything . . . we're beyond that. All I can do is to wait. I'm giving you . . . will you open it now, please?"

Her fingers bungled with the knot, and he made as though to help her.

"No," she said, holding the package away from him. "I want to open it all myself!"

Hilliard, rigid, watched her. A phrase was beating heavily against his consciousness . . . one of the Proverbs . . . something about the bread of deceit, and ashes . . .

The knot gave way; and the tissue wrapping, falling aside, disclosed an oblong pasteboard box. Carol lifted the lid and Hilliard caught his breath.

There were two cabinet photographs; underneath was a very excellent likeness of Hilliard himself. She looked at him perplexedly; he was getting out of his fountain pen. His hand was cold, unsteady.

"It lacks something, doesn't it?" he said, in an undertone. "Let me have it a moment." While she followed his every movement, he wrote, with his left hand and somewhat painstakingly, an inscription and gave back the picture.

"Christmas, 1916," she read, "with love from Henry Hilliard." She flushed hotly.

"Now look!" he said, ignoring her reaction. "The . . . next one." Mechanically she took out the second photograph; it was a duplicate of the picture of Dicky Morgan on the Doctor's desk. Her cheeks were suddenly devoid of color, she stared fearfully at him without speaking.

"That lacks something, too," he said; and his voice was yielding to the tremendous strain upon him. With conspicuous care he shifted the pen to his right hand; held it poised for a moment, gave her a smile of ineffable pathos, closed his teeth hard. "I have a very useful little trait," he said; "I'm ambidextrous." And wrote his message.

She had the evidence before her—the inimitable, unmistakable, ornamental script of another personality. "Christmas, 1916—and love from Dick to Carol."

"The real gift is underneath," he said, and his diction now was foreign even to himself. "But . . . no, no; go on . . ."

Her uncertain, exploring fingers had touched a smaller box; it sprang open in her palm; within, was a gorgeously flashing, scintillating, living gem, set in platinum. Her hands, unsteady now as were his own, closed over it as though to guard and shelter it. Her eyes sought his, and held them—fright was meeting fright.

"And in my thought," he said, "are all the sweet memories I have of you . . . and all the fragrance of you . . . and in the stone there . . . there's a story for you to read . . . bigger than any book could hold . . ."

She still made no answer; she was holding her three gifts tightly, and staring at him, staring . . . not in the revulsion he had imagined, not in the measureless contempt he had feared, but with the writhing of a smile trembling on her pale lips. "Only one of the photographs is to keep," he said thickly. "One of the two . . . I'm giving you the chance to say which it is . . . which one of the two you want to live . . . if you want either of those men to go on loving you . . . or if you want them both to go away—for always!"

In her eyes, there was another miracle; her eyes were soft, and indicative of a great relief, rather than of a great shock; and as he watched, spellbound, he saw that tears were creeping into them, and not of sorrow but of great joy. In that moment his most stupefying discovery was made, and the magnitude of it, the portent of it, set his brain at naught, and left him destitute of reason.

"Carol!" he said, petrified. "Carol!"

Mute, she shook her head. Looking him full in the eyes, she flinched suddenly, and a great sob burst in her throat. The photograph of Dicky Morgan was in her hand; she held it a moment, trembling, and then, while her breath came faster and her shoulders quivered, she tore it across and across, finer and finer, until only fragmentary scraps remained—and these she let fall in her lap, unheeded. The likeness of Hilliard, the lying, radiant face of the man nobody knew—this she had seized, and this she had clutched to her breast, spasmodically, as though in fear to have it snatched away from her.

Hilliard was very close to her; and his whole being was concentrated in his eyes.

"Carol!" he said to her again in that stranger's voice. "Carol . . . You . . . you knew!" To him the fact was unbelievable.

Tardily, unwillingly, she raised her head.

"From the very first day," she said brokenly. "Both dad and I . . . and no one else; not even mother . . . your eyes told us both, and we've trusted you so . . . and waited so surely . . . we knew it would come out all right in the end, somehow . . . and . . . and . . . I do like my gift! It does make the day better." And then, in a soft whisper, "Henry!"

She had called him "Henry" and even in the spell of his confusion, he throbbed to the significance of it.

The lover was eager, but the prodigal was startled back from the very threshold of love.

"From the first day!" he breathed, electrified. "And you trusted me like that . . . when you knew what I was doing—"

She was laughing and crying at the same time; his hungry arms went out to her and found her; words were coming tumultuously to him and he said them as they came. Somehow the ring was on her finger; and she had kissed it there. Between them, partnered, a sacred understanding as imperishable as bronze had arisen; they both knew, without the necessity of prolonged speech, what his future was to be. They both knew in what capacity he was to face the world; they knew the brimming fullness of her pardon and the brimming fullness of his regret. These truths were mutually confirmed; the shabby past was indistinguishably merged with the fresh and vivid present; their pledges to this end were upon their lips. The world was lying helpless at their feet . . . the wonderful, sensitive, receptive world which had respected and honored and admired him in the days of his regeneration, and would continue, paying the reward of his request.

In an irresistible passion of humility and shame and courage, he tried to tell her the sums of his debts; her lips prevented him.

"You mustn't!" she murmured. "Never! You let me choose—I want it this way."

Dazed, triumphant, he was re-living by-gone incidents, seeing faint clues develop into mighty revelations, comprehending at last the supreme love and supreme faith of the two who had waited for his victory, and kept his secret shut within their hearts, that he might stand the ordeal, and prove triumphant. And now, the reputation that was already his . . . the loftier reputation which he should consecrate himself to build . . . not only for the pleasure of the building, but also because there were those to whom he owed it . . .

Behind them, a firm footfall. Hilliard was on his feet, his arm instinctively protecting Carol. Doctor Durant was smiling on them from the doorway . . . grave, benevolent, paternal. He, too, became a common partner to the understanding; an interchange of glances was sufficient. He came in swiftly; his hands outstretched, his head lifted high in the pride of a father who has looked upon his children, and found them true to each other, and to him.

"What!" he said. "Have you proved it already—my son?"

THE END.

Tunis Agricultural State.

The regency of Tunis, having its northern or Mediterranean limit in the same latitudinal position as the state of North Carolina and, like North Carolina, supporting an estimated population of 2,000,000 on an area of about 50,000 square miles, is essentially an agricultural country, deriving its wealth from farm and mine.

The Sunflower in Russia.

Sunflower cultivation has become an industry in southern Russia, where the people have found the seeds a substitute for olives in making oil. The Russian eats the kernel. An acre of sunflowers yields about 60 bushels of seeds, and these in turn yield more than 50 gallons of oil.

POULTRY FACTS.

PRODUCTION OF DUCKS' EGGS

Demand at Good Prices Is Limited Except Around Easter—Indian Runner Is Favored.

The demand for ducks' eggs at a good price is limited and not nearly as general as the demand for hens' eggs. The quality of the Southern and Western duck eggs on the average market was poor until people began to keep Indian Runner ducks and to build up a trade in first-class eggs. A good demand for ducks' eggs exists about Easter time at prices usually several cents a dozen higher than for hens' eggs. Most buyers make no quotations for ducks' eggs except early in the spring. Since three ducks' eggs weigh about the same as four hens' eggs, ducks are not as profitable for the production of market eggs as fowls, unless a higher price is secured for the ducks' eggs.

A trade is gradually being established in some markets for fancy nearby ducks' eggs, which bring higher prices than hens' eggs, and the demand seems to be increasing. Pure white eggs are preferred and usually bring the highest price. These eggs should be marketed frequently, as they depreciate in quality more rapidly than hens' eggs, especially during hot weather. The market for eggs should be carefully investigated by those who intend to raise breeds of the egg-laying type of ducks, such as the Indian Runner, especially for the production of eggs, say poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

PROVIDE FOWLS CLEAN FEED

Carelessness on Part of Poultryman in Cleaning Utensils Will Cause Much Trouble.

Fowls that are fed grain are pretty sure to receive pure feed, as all one has to watch is to make sure the grains are sweet and clean, and not moldy or decayed. However, it is seldom advisable to make grain the sole ration of the poultry.

Soft feeds (or mash) will have to be fed to some extent and troughs must be used for this kind of feed. Where the residue is left to sour, the fowls will show the effects in time. Fermented feeds do not appear to be readily digested by poultry and may also spread disease germs.

Carelessness in the matter of cleaning the troughs has brought disaster to many a poultryman. The same thing is true of the drinking vessels. It requires only a little effort to have the feeding and watering vessels always clean, and it certainly is the thing to do.

PLENTY OF RANGE ESSENTIAL

Discouraging Results Have Come From Attempting to Raise Turkeys Under Confinement.

Given plenty of range, turkeys will rustle for grasshoppers and other insects, green vegetation, weed and grass seed, waste grain, waste nuts, and convert them into delicious meat at a minimum expense. Plenty of range is essential to success in turkey raising, and usually the discouraging results have come from attempts to raise the fowls under close confinement.

Be sure chicks do not become crowded.

Ship or deliver eggs twice or three times weekly.

Market white-shelled and brown-shelled eggs in separate packages.

Overgrown fowls are no better in any particular than those of normal size.

Cull the flock so as to eliminate the early molter and other unprofitable producers.

The important thing in getting started in turkey raising is to be careful to get healthy stock.

Uniform poultry products command the best prices. Pure-bred fowls produce uniform products.

When selling eggs to the country merchant or cash buyer, insist that the transaction be on a quality basis.

located in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Francis H. Cowing, Nora Sheehan and Elizabeth Delorey, of said Weymouth; Louis Grossman, of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk; Alice C. Emerson, of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth; Aberthaw Construction Company and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, duly existing corporations having their usual places of business in Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Charles Meuse, of said Weymouth, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Weymouth, bounded and described as follows:

Northerly by lands of Charles J. Lincoln and John L. Peckham; Easterly by lands of Nora Sheehan and the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad; Southerly by land of said Railroad and land of Mary R. Walker; and Westerly by Commercial, sometimes called East Commercial, Street.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-fourth day of May A. D. 1920, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-third day of April in the year nineteen hundred and twenty.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Troop six of North Weymouth, Harold C. Lincoln, scoutmaster, at its regular meeting Monday evening laid out a plan of action for the coming spring and summer months that includes many interesting features. It plans to make the people of the community more familiar with the nature of it's work and invites the inspection and criticism of all interested parties.

A feature of the Monday evening meetings is to be the drill and exercises which will take place in Beals Park and to which the public is invited.

A keen competition is already on foot between the different patrols and thus far, patrol one leads the troop. A renewed interest is being taken in this contest since the best scouts in the troop are to be picked for the color squad in the drills.

Troop 6 has challenged Troop 5 of South Weymouth to a contest in scout work which will be held in the near future.

The Boy Scout movement is one that is sweeping rapidly over the land and gathering in interest and numbers. North Weymouth has a troop which it has every reason to be proud of and every person in the community should avail themselves of each opportunity to cooperate with the local troop in helping them put across their share in the great program which is to be the greatest factor for building the future that the world knows.

COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

A group of various teams of men are putting on a series of Sunday evening Community Programs at 7:45 at the Union Church which are decidedly non-sectarian in nature. These meetings are entertaining, educational, and morally uplifting with the message of the religion that is in the hearts of all men. The programs themselves present great variety, opened with community singing, led by orchestra, piano and pipe-organ and chorus choir.

The Union Church is one of the first churches to use motion pictures as sermons preached thru the eye gate to man's soul. The following are the bookings for the next two months:

April 25, O. Henry: "The Church with the Overshot Wheel", a Vitagraph motion picture, and "Carrying Old Glory to the Seven Sea."

May 2, William Farnum in "The Sign of the Cross", a Paramount motion picture, and "A Little Bit of Heaven—Yosemite Valley."

May 9, Travelogue in China: Tien tsin, Where East Meets West", 72 beautiful colored slides.

May 16 motion pictures: "Man and His Soul"—"Community and God's Handiwork"—"Scenic wonders in the Canadian Rockies."

May 23, A combination program, "The Story of the Pilgrims", two-centenary year, motion pictures, "The Coming of the Mayflower", and "Quaint Provincetown." Also 40 colored slides, "The Pilgrims' Journey from Scrooby to New England."

May 30, Patriotic service, motion pictures, "The Story of Abraham Lincoln." Also, "Where the spirit that Won was Born."

June 6, Motion pictures, "The Message from nature, River Green and River Gray", and Ford Educational, "Eventide."

June 13, Musical program.

June 20, Motion picture sermon, feature, "The Stoning" Community.

June 27, "Turkey and the World War", with 89 new colored art slides. At the church where there is always a Welcome waiting for you.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell, at all druggists for 35 cents a large box."

Dear Sirs:—
"I was an untold sufferer from old running sores and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars' worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6 inches, in all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again."

"You may use this to recommend your ointment, if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson's Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

FROG IN THE THROAT

By R. RAY BAKER

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Gezunk!" called the bullfrog in the pond.

Sam Bristol, lying flat on his back, his face turned toward a sky unmarred by clouds, smiled good-naturedly.

"Good old Nebuchadnezzar," he whispered. Nebuchadnezzar was Sam's name for the frog. There was no apparent reason for that appellation, unless it was that the animal's back was of the same color as the field fodder the ancient king was said to have eaten at one erratic period of his career.

"I detest that frog!" said Amelia Whitton, sitting nearby. "Frogs are so homely, and their voices are worse, except when they sing at night, and Nebuchadnezzar never does. He just croaks all day long. I don't see what you can find about him that is so charming. I can't tolerate any sound that isn't musical."

Sam pursed his lips and whistled meditatively.

"That's not musical either," Amelia observed.

"There isn't much about me that is—any more," he whispered. "Ever since I caught a severe cold five years ago I haven't had even a speaking voice. I don't see how you can stand it to have me around Amelia; I'm so unmusical."

"Of course you know I care for you," she said "in spite of the fact that you have no voice. I should have liked to know you when you could sing though. Isn't there any remedy?"

"The doctor says no," he rasped; "so you see if you marry me you'll either have to do all the talking yourself or have me for a constant note of discord in your life of harmony."

"I wish you could sing as folks say you used to," Amelia sighed. "I think it would reconcile me more—to my fate," and she finished with a laugh—a musical laugh.

Her "fate" was her marriage to Sam, which was to take place as soon as she finished a course in vocal harmony she was about to commence.

"It would be fine if we could go to the city together and study music," she went on.

"Yes, it would. To tell you the truth, Amelia, I'm afraid to let you go alone. You'll land in some big opera company and fall in love with the star, and you'll forget about little Sammy in his very prosaic but prosperous shoe store back here in Glendon."

She shook her head. "No danger, Sam. I'm not that kind. But I wish you were going to study with me. When we finished we could get married and teach voice—if you could make some arrangements about your shoe business."

"That wouldn't be difficult," he said. "Johnson practically runs the business now; and I'd give him a half interest. But what's the use? I haven't any more voice than my friend Nebuchadnezzar. I have a frog in my throat."

"Gezunk!" chimed in the bullfrog, as if to say, "who says I haven't a voice?"

Amelia shuddered. "Let's go. Your friend frog gets on my nerves. I used to rather like him when we used to visit this little glen, but since I've studied harmony I've lost interest in his croaking."

They went back to the village and Sam, after escorting her home, hurried to his store.

Three weeks later Amelia packed two trunks and three handbags and set out for Chicago, where she would study voice with the masters.

Sam took her to Prescott, a village ten miles from Glendon, for the railroad on which she was to make her journey did not touch the latter place. The luggage, except one handbag, went ahead by motortruck and the exception followed with Amelia and Sam in his buggy. Sam never had been able to give up his spirited driving horse for an automobile.

"Good luck to you," he whispered as he kissed her good-by, and leaped from the train as it started. She waved a hand from the window and he responded similarly, and stood and watched the train vanish round a curve. For five minutes he stood at the station, dejected and lonely; for Sam and Amelia had been sweethearts since his advent into Glendon three years ago. He wished he could resurrect his life of five years—before he lost his voice. Sam had never told Amelia much about it, because it worried him in spite of the jovial attitude he appeared to take toward his "frog in the throat."

He drove slowly back along the road. The sunshine of spring and the flowers and foliage and birds that it brought, cast a spell over him, but it was a spell of moroseness rather than gladness. That is, he endeavored to drive slowly, but the horse, which was full of life and had not been in the harness much lately, did not relish the idea.

As she watched the scenery flash past, a neglected magazine in her lap, Amelia's mind was full of thoughts of the future. She knew her voice was good and she was confident she would realize her ambitions.

If she had known what was taking place on the country road, however, her thoughts would have been less of herself and more of Sam. Had she possessed a magic glass into which she could look and see whatever she wished, she would have witnessed a horse running away, dragging a man on the ground holding fast to the lines and paying for his tenacity with bumps and bruises and much dust and grime.

In the city Amelia made her home with a second cousin. She accepted some few attentions from young men who were commended for her special benefit, but seldom received any one of them more than once, and she always wrote and told Sam about them.

After a year of conscientious and concentrated study with one of the city's leading vocal masters, Amelia had progressed so rapidly that her instructor told her she was qualified for grand opera—a minor part, of course, but with opportunities to make rapid strides to the zenith. He promised to intercede with some of his influential friends in the profession.

While this matter was brewing Amelia received the surprise of her life in the form of a letter from a noted impresario, informing her that he was willing to try her out for the leading part in a new production. She was not aware that she had become known among the higher-ups.

"There was no question about the advisability of accepting," her instructor told her warmly, as much surprised as she and somewhat puffed up because of the credit he felt was due him. "When Mr. Dinsmore makes an offer like that, it means something."

Correspondence resulted in an appointment being made at a theater and, with a pounding heart, Amelia went to keep it. She realized that her big opportunity had come.

A rehearsal was in progress, but Mr. Dinsmore was summoned to the box office and she introduced herself to him. He escorted her back of the stage and sent a boy to a dressing room on an errand. The boy returned with a young man costumed as a gondolier.

"Hello, Amelia," said the young man in a musical voice, bowing low. She stared at him, stunned. He looked for all the world like Sam Bristol; but of course Sam was back in Glendon selling shoes with his whispering voice. She had received a letter from him only a week ago.

"Oh, it's all right, Amelia," he said, clasping her in his arms and imprinting a kiss on her lips. "I'm Sam. This is my company. I used to be in opera before the frog crawled into my throat."

"My voice? Well, old Nebuchadnezzar is responsible. When I was driving back from the station I passed the pond and Nebuchadnezzar saluted me with a 'gezunk,' or a word to that effect. The horse was feeling kittenish and I had been dreaming—mostly of you—and I was pretty well scared. Before I knew what I was doing I had called 'whoa' good and loud. Since then I've had my real voice. The doctor says it never would have happened if it hadn't been for the strain in calling 'whoa!'"

"Good old Nebuchadnezzar," whispered Amelia, returning the hug that would have made a bear turn the color of a frog, out of envy.

Washington's Tour of the South.

In the spring and summer of 1791, President Washington made a tour of the south, visiting the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia. This was perhaps the first presidential "swing around the circle." Archibald Henderson, author of "The Conquest of the Southwest," soon to be published by the Century company, has just completed a detailed investigation of this trip. He retraced Washington's steps and reports that he has unearthed a wealth of generally unknown and forgotten facts and incidents concerning the life of "The Father of Our Country." During his investigations Dr. Henderson made an interesting and valuable collection of old-prints, rare engravings, portraits and facsimiles of unique letters and documents.

Just Runs Things.

"Den ag'n, sah, dar's de cheap man!" contemptuously said good old Parson Bagster. "He hums and haws and hangs back 'bout j'in'n' de church twell he gits de 'tention of everybody, and den he flings up his hands and comes th'oo wid a howl of triumph, like he'd done invented salvation, and nobody hadn't never used none of it befo'. And he hasn't been instigated into de fellowship mo' dan 'bout six mont's twell he's runnin' de church wid a high hand and gittin' ready to discharge de Lawd and hold a Jedge-ment day hissef. Dat's de cheap man!"—Kansas City Star.

Don't Waste Time.

The main difference between the man who succeeds and the man who merely grovels along in a mediocre sort of way is that one utilizes every hour of his time to the best advantage he knows how, while the other is content to dawdle. When business is not particularly brisk and the weather is depressing there certainly is a temptation to sit at the window and watch the crowd go by. But those who succumb to such temptations wake up sooner or later to find that the whole procession has passed them and left them in the lurch. Don't sit at the window. Get out and hustle.—Forbes Magazine.

Can't Write Their Own Names.

In 1917 the children's bureau of the United States government examined 19,696 boys and girls, fourteen to sixteen years old, in five different states where child labor is not prohibited.

One-fourth of these, like a great many business men, could not write their names so that anyone could read them.

THE QUESTION

By MARY POWER.

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was the impatient jingle of bells without that caused Aubrey to hasten with the final touches to her toilette. A moment later she emerged from the house and swung her lithe young body into the sleigh beside her brother.

"We'll have to hurry, Ken," she advised, tucking the robe about her. "I've exactly ten minutes."

"Well, if you don't take the cake," he sputtered; "here I've been waiting—"

"Please, Kenneth, don't scold," wheedled Aubrey. "Gracious!" in sudden alarm. "I've forgotten my notes—no, I haven't, either," evidently relieved.

"H'm!" Kenneth cast a scornful glance at the trig figure beside him. "What's the subject this afternoon, socialism, woman suffrage, or—or—better babies?" he grinned.

Aubrey flushed. "The eternal question—Should Woman Propose—Choose the Mate Rather—"

Kenneth gave a prolonged whistle. "Going to take advantage of leap year, eh?" he chuckled. "You're—affirmative?"

Aubrey shook her head. "No real lady proposes," she said.

"Huh, nine-tenths of 'em do," vouchsafed Kenneth. "That is, subtly."

Aubrey flashed him a look of withering scorn. "One couldn't expect you—a mere child—to understand," she said frigidly.

The "mere child" grinned. "I promised to call at Ellen Colby's," said Aubrey; "mind you're back in time."

A moment later they stopped at the headquarters of the Girls' club. Entering, Aubrey swept down the aisle and daintily took her place on the platform.

The debate was a success. Aubrey's opponent, a fair-haired, languid girl of twenty, expounded her views on the "eternal question" in well couched language. Aubrey, on the other hand, took the house by storm when, in concluding her remarks, she said, with flushed cheek and sparkling eye:

"No girl with an ounce of dignity in her makeup could, with honor, ask a man to marry her." And then, thrillingly

"Our grandmothers couldn't, our dear mothers wouldn't. I—you—we—oh!" spiritedly, "it shouldn't be done!"

Kenneth, ensconced in a rear seat, was interested in spite of himself. He could not resist one last sarcastic fling, however as he dropped Aubrey at Ellen Colby's door.

"I say, Aubrey," he cautioned, "hadn't you better give Ellen a bit of advice? She and Floyd have been courting for ages. They say he hasn't ever mentioned marriage. If you don't watch out she'll upset your pet tradition by proposing herself. Time's ripe!" he added maliciously. "Seeing she's Roger's sister, you should—"

He shot a meaning glance at her and drove away.

Ascending the stairs to the Colby flat Aubrey frowned, cogitating on Kenneth's insinuations.

"Dear," Ellen was saying, her voice all queer and trembly-like, "if Roger and Aubrey get married this year, I'll go to you at Christmastide. I should like to be a Christmas bride."

Aubrey waited no longer, but stole quietly away, a queer little ache in her throat. It was twilight when she stumbled over her own threshold. The fragrant odor of a cigar told her Roger was there ahead of her, smoking in the dark. Roger often waited for her like that. Throwing her wraps aside, she tiptoed to the hall portieres and pulled them together.

"Roger," she called, softly, and as he came eagerly forward, "I want to ask you something—no, please stay there on the other side of the portieres. For one breath-taking instant she paused, then:

"Roger, do you love me—heaps?" tremulously.

"Why, Aubrey, of course—heaps and heaps and—"

Roger's hands, fumbling there on the other side of the portieres, suddenly thrust themselves through. "Roger, has it ever occurred to you that Ellen and Floyd—might be waiting for us—to—couldn't we—"

After Easter, perhaps— breathlessly, blushing furiously there in the darkness in spite of herself.

"Aubrey," he said sternly, "are you—joking?"

"Why, no," Aubrey laughed a bit shyly. "I'm merely taking advantage of the season," glibly. And then, eternal feminine all over, she gave a little dry sob and hid her burning face against his shoulder. From there, shyly: "Maybe Ellen and Floyd could plan on Christmas if we—Mercy!" as a low chuckle from beyond the portieres smote the air.

"Yes it's Ken," said Roger, dryly. "He was dozing when you came in. But catch him to miss anything," he growled. Aubrey darted forward and switched on the lights.

A youth of nineteen, or thereabouts, a "mere child," whose long, lanky frame draped the top of a luxurious leather davenport, arose, blinked a bit, then stretched himself lazily.

"Evenin', folks," he drawled with a mischievous quirk at the corners of his mouth. "Gee, I had the funniest dream," he yawned. "I dreamed some sweet, young thing was proposing to me—taking advantage, as it were—oh, all right, Roger," at that worthy's threatening gesture. "Anyway, greetings of the season—er—congratulations, rather," and grinning like a Cheshire cat, Kenneth sauntered from the room.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callous. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callous right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

WATER WITH ASPIRIN

Bayer Company, who introduced Aspirin in 1900, give proper directions.

The Bayer Company, who introduced Aspirin, tell in their careful directions in each package of genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" that to get best results one or two glasses of water should be drunk after taking tablets.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Then you are getting the genuine, world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years.

Each unbroken "Bayer" package contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monacetindester of Salicylic Acid.—Adv.

Stock Raising in WESTERN CANADA is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley, and flax have been made in raising Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Bright, sunny climate, nutritious grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms.

Farm Land at $15 to $30 An Acre —land equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good grain farms at proportionately low prices. These lands have every rural convenience; good schools, churches, roads, telephones, etc., close to live towns and good markets.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you.

LIFE WAS A MISERY TO HER

Woman Until Re-Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a state hospital and am feeling fine. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to dozens of my friends and shall always recommend it."—LILLIAN THARP, 824 S. 6th St., Carrollton, Ky.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Frantic With Pain

A Physical Wreck From Kidney Trouble, But DOAN'S Made Her Well.

"I was a complete wreck," says Mrs. Wm. Harvey, 514 St. Grants Pass, Ore. "I was dependent and miserable it and nothing left to live for."

Death would have been a welcome relief. For six months I was in bed and never expected to leave it alive. I was too weak to move without the help of my nurse and so nervous I screamed when she touched me. My back and head hurt like a throbbing ache. I had awful dizzy spells, my eyesight failed, my hands and feet felt dead. I was pain-racked all over. The kidney secretions looked like thick, black coffee and burned terribly. They almost stopped passing and then my feet bloated like bags of water. I was frantic with pain, and thought I would lose my reason. "I had lost all faith in medicine and tried Doan's Kidney Pills only because a dear friend asked me. Right from the start I began to feel better. Doan's cured me."

GEERS ENJOYS DISTINCTION OF BEING OLDEST MAN WHO EVER HANDLED REINS

Edward F. Geers, "the grand old man of the sulky," who will be "on the job" at the Grand Circuit light harness races this season, as he has been for some forty odd years past. He will drive for Frank C. Jones of Memphis. It is said that this veteran, who was severely injured last season, is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, man who has ever handled the reins in the history of the light harness turf.

COACH AL SHARPE IS AFTER NEW QUARTERS

Hockey and Basketball Teams Lack Building, He Says.

Forcing Men to Use Philadelphia Ice Rink Was Imposition—Players Who Missed Recitations Forced to Make Them Up.

Coach Al Sharpe of Yale is going to make an immediate demand for a large building to accommodate the basketball and hockey teams. He wants a building that will seat approximately 5,000 people. In an unofficial communication to Yale authorities, Sharpe declared the practice of forcing the hockey team to use the Philadelphia ice rink was an imposition. Under the plan in vogue this winter, Yale's hockey crew was forced to take an express train to Philadelphia for the games and then return to the college as quickly as possible and by whatever means was available.

Those of the players who missed recitations were obliged to make them up. The instructors refused to alter the lesson schedule to accommodate the players.

Coach Sharpe says the facilities for basketball are inadequate, while new quarters of ample size would enable this sport to at least pay its own way. In part, his report says: "Yale should take advantage of the increased popularity of the game, and at the same time offer encouragement to the members of the basketball squads in the future."

It is said Yale officials have taken a stand against building for the present.

HAS "RABBIT" INFIELD

Coach Jack Slattery has christened Harvard infield the rabbit infield. There's a reason. Conlon, the shortstop, stands five feet seven inches and weighs only 140. Eddie Lincoln, at third, is the same height, and at three pounds heavier, while Capt. Bobbie Eammons is an inch taller and weighs 150 pounds. Slattery says small men make the best infielders.

GOSSIP AMONG SPORTS

Georges Carpentier weighed only 175 pounds when he struck our shores.

Roads are being built around Antwerp to accommodate the traffic for the Olympic games.

America will be represented at the meeting of the Royal and Ancient Committee on Golf at London.

Boxing is enjoying a big boom in the navy. Several clever knights of the padded glove are being developed among the sailors.

All that publicity Carpentier and his collar got in New York must have made Dempsey feel like a nickel at the 1920 Follies box office.

Strangler Lewis must have an awful crush to that headlock of his. The heads of some of the grapplers are not the softest things in the world, either.

tations. The veteran will handle young pitchers which Hughey Jennings is collecting in bales in the hopes of finding a couple good enough to make the regular string.

MOST UNIQUE STRIKE

Red Faber made, perhaps, the most unique strike ever seen on the bowling alleys of the Chicago Elks' club. Faber rolls with terrific speed, which accounted for the freak. He cut the ball loose and it hit a little to the left of the center pin, leaving No. 8 standing. One of the pins flew clear to the pit, hit the wall, caromed off the wooden side of the alley and got the lone pin standing. When the game finished the pin boy remarked: "Tee sho' glad that big red-headed man is done finish, 'cause if he ain't I is."

DIAMOND NOTES

All Yankee pitchers must take five minutes of control practice daily.

Wilbert Robinson has been trying to make a left-handed hitter out of Bernie Neis.

Charley Pick is fielding well at second base, but he has not yet found his batting eye.

New York betters favor the Glants over the Cincinnati Reds to win the National league pennant.

The Western league, seeing prosperity ahead, returns to the system of double umpires this season.

Green uniforms with crimson lettering have been adopted for the Indiana university baseball team.

The Cincinnati Reds, whether or not their stay in Miami was beneficial, will return there next spring to train.

Toledo's ball club has been re-enforced by Brandon Grover, fast third baseman of the University of Ohio.

Why is not a team that can beat the world's champions entitled to be considered the real champions of the world?

Otto Miller has been appointed coach of the Brooklyn team by Manager Robinson, succeeding Jack Coombs.

The Sioux City club has sold the veteran outfielder, Paul Meloon, to Yakima of the Pacific International league.

Joe Harris, who says he has quit the Cleveland Indians, has taken the management of a billiard room in Franklin, Pa.

Every time Rabbit Maraville and Hank Gowdy kill off a would-be pitcher, the cry goes up, "The Army and Navy Forever."

Indications are that Maurice Shannon has won the third base job with the Griffins over Joe Leonard or any other candidate.

Gas Helfrich, spitball pitcher sold by Nashville to Fort Worth, has announced his retirement from professional baseball.

Both Pfeiffer and Grimes were sought by Manager Stallings of the Braves, but Uncle Robbie refused to part with either.

Pitcher Howard McGraner, who has been out of the game, is going to try a comeback with Syracuse of the International league.

J. Franklin "Home Run" Baker has again reiterated that he has retired from baseball and will not join the New York Americans.

Whatever happens to the disrupted Yankees Aaron Ward is one man pretty sure to stay with Huggins, and prove mighty valuable.

Oroville Bill James, former pitcher of the Boston Braves, who worked out with the Chicago Cubs at Pasadena, says his arm is all right again.

Tris Speaker may not be the greatest outfielder in the annals of baseball, but there is a large majority of baseball enthusiasts who say he is.

The Mobile club has signed a second base tryout named E. C. Lemasters, who hails from Evansville, Ind., where he has had semi-pro experience.

Rolla Mapel, who was expected to do some real southpawing for the St. Louis Browns this season, has decided to play independent ball in Colorado.

One good piece of news comes from the Yankees. It is that Charley O'Leary is a much livelier coacher than Pat O'Connor was. That will help some.

Paskert's throwing has been a big feature of the spring training, and the veteran, who has been hitting the ball savagely, seems well on the way to a successful comeback.

The Washington club has signed a Cuban catcher named Torres. He made such a good impression playing with the Havana stars against the Griffins at Tampa that Manager Griffith signed him on the spot.

Now, it happened that one of the members applied for, but could not get at the time, a copy of a novel entitled "The Girl He Left Behind Him." In course of time a postcard arrived from the library, and as the member's wife is of a suspicious nature that postcard caused trouble, for it read:

"Mr. Toddles is informed that the girl he left behind him is now in the library, and will be kept for him till next Tuesday morning."—Pearson's Weekly.

THE SOLDIERS' BONUS

The Saturday Transcript reporting the address before the United States Senate by Senator Capper, who spoke on the method proposed for raising money to pay the bonus to soldiers, as follows:

"Those patriotic melon raisers who have made their millions and billions during and since the war are now arguing that the soldiers' bonus be raised by a 1 percent tax on sales to be paid on every dollar spent by every man, woman and child in the country, including the ex-service men themselves. Mr. President, I shall favor placing this tax right where it belongs—on war profits—and taking from these huge stock dividends, from excess war profits and from the profiteers, all that is needful to compensate the men who sacrificed themselves instead of their country or their countrymen, in time of war."

Declaring that the proof of profiteering was in the margin of profit, the senator said that in one year alone during the war the gross income of American corporations rose from $35,333,000,000 to $84,500,000,000. He read to the Senate a long list of corporations whose profits were placed at anywhere from 20 to 200 per cent.

"Wall Street's melon patches," he declared, "continue to be warmed by the sun of privilege, fertilized by the perspiration of labor, and watered by the tears of poverty, and this year will raise a record breaking crop free from the blight of income taxes, while the people are being urged to buy their coal early and be robbed for less, to abstain from steak one day a week and to purchase war savings stamps that the United States may live in $9,000,000,000 style on a $6,000,000,000 income."

"At this moment the most brazen challenge we have had in this saturnalia of greed comes from the gamblers in sugar. A corner has evidently been formed right under the eyes of the Department of Justice. The canning season is on. For years the sugar interests have annually and openly and shamelessly robbed American housewives during the canning season."

After reviewing the activities of flour sugar and cotton mills, the recent Supreme Court decision holding stock dividends untaxable and the Department of Justice campaign urging use of the "cheaper cuts" of meat—Senator Capper read his list of corporations whose earnings, he said, were proof of profiteering, "open, flagrant, scandalous."

ceptance of the Act. By request the Act was read.

The Moderator was about to put the question; in fact he had already put it, when Rev. E. T. Ford desired to speak. He was given the privilege, and made an earnest plea for the preservation of the Sabbath.

Mr. Guertin spoke in favor of Sunday sports.

Rev. Frank Kingdon of the Methodist church spoke in opposition, arguing that Sunday sports were unnecessary, unwise, irreligious and un-American.

Mr. Healey favored the act.

Mr. Coyle opposed the act, saying that we live under a Christian form of government. Claimed we had no authority to make sports legal on Sundays.

When the question was put, the Moderator declared the motion carried, but the decision was doubted and tellers were appointed to take the vote. The result was:

YES	238
NO	138

The Moderator declared the Act accepted.

STREET RAILWAY VOTE

The tellers who counted the vote on the acceptance of the street railway proposition were then ready to report, and the figures were:

YES	387
NO	302

The appropriation of $28,000 was voted.

Selectman Hawes moved that a committee be appointed to act as an advisory committee to operate the Weymouth division of the street railway. Voted.

Mr. Hawes then moved that the committee be the same that had made the report on the Transportation problem. Voted.

The committee is as follows: Arthur C. Heald, Joseph Kelley, William A. Hodges, George E. Cuniff, Edward W. Hunt, John W. Hanley, Parker T. Pearson, William A. Swan, Elmer E. Leonard and Stanley T. Torrey.

At 11 P. M. the meeting adjourned.

TREMONT THEATRE

Monday, May 10, will undoubtedly mark the beginning of a brilliant chapter in Boston's theatrical history, when the Tremont Theatre will witness the local premier of Geo. M. Cohan's comedians in the brand new musical play, "Mary", the book and lyrics of which are by Otto Harbach and Frank Mandel and the music by Lou Hirsch. The story of the play has for its pivotal theme the adventures of Jack Keene, an attractive young American who joyously starts out to solve the problems of the high cost of living. Monsieur Marceau, a French inventor, interests him in the plans of a portable and detachable house, and Jack finds a way to construct these dwellings cheaply and thus outwit the rent profiteer, while Mary, the social secretary of Jack's fashionable mother and daughter of the president of a Kansas college, is largely instrumental in perfecting these plans. It would be unfair to relate the whole story in advance to those who expect to witness the performance and it will, perhaps, be enough to say that the love romance between the young idealist and the fair Mary is a fragrant page.

RECEPTION

OF THE W. R. C.

Reynolds Corp. No. 102, observed its 26th anniversary on Tuesday in G. A. R. hall, by holding a banquet and reception. The regular meeting was at 2:30 P. M. Department president Mrs. M. Eunice Coolidge, Junior Vice-president Mrs. Carrie Loring Treasurer Mrs. Fannie M. Jones, Senior Aide Mrs. Rebecca Pickett, Chairman of Executive Board Mrs. Ida Jannell, Second member Mrs. Josephine Donnelly, Chairman of department relief committee, Mrs. Nellie Libbey and Secretary of department relief Mrs. Mabelle Smith, were received with the customary honors. The G. A. R. department was represented by Senior vice-commander Morrill and Junior vice-commander Clark.

There were visitors from Corps at Brighton, Beverly, Foxboro, Hingham, East Boston, Somerville, Athol, Cambridge, New Bedford, Braintree and Watertown.

A banquet was served in lower hall under the direction of Mrs. Katherine Day and her assistants of the Corps executive committee.

At 7:15 o'clock a reception was tendered to Corps president Mrs. Mary Brassil, Department president Mrs. M. Eunice Coolidge and Department vice-president Mrs. Carrie Loring. In the receiving line were members of the Department president's staff and the Department G. A. R. representatives; also the guests of the Corps Department J. V. P. Mrs. Anna Williams of the Daughters of Veterans, Commander Bicknell of Post 58, G. A. R., Commander Irving of the S. of V., Annie Batchelder, president of S. of V. Auxiliary No. 31, President Mrs. Mae Barrows of D. of V., Tent 32.

A pleasing entertainment followed. Piano and violin selection were given by Miss Mary Keith and Miss Mildred Leary. Mrs. Evelyn Philbrook sang, accompanied by Mrs. Mary R. Flint. A "pie march" was an impromptu number on the program giving the out-of-town guests much amusement.

A birthday cake with 26 flags was served at the guest table. The presentation of a gold-piece from the Corps members to Mrs. Loring by Mrs. Brassil, and a gift of a picture from the Corps officers to President Mrs. Brassil were incidents of the day.

There were speeches by the Department officers, Selectman Hawes and Selectman Fred Humphrey.

The evening program closed with singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

Routine business occupied the attention of the Selectmen at their meeting this week. Several minor licenses were granted.

The Chief of Police was requested to enforce the State laws relative to jitneys.

Mr. Cowing called the attention of the Board to the condition of the fountain in Garfield Square, and he was authorized to have it repaired.

SERENADE AT HOSPITAL

At a recent meeting of Weymouth lodge, No. 1299, Loyal Order of Moose it was voted to serenade by postal Brother Thomas J. Terry of Co. K 101st Infantry, 26th Division, who is at Fox Hill hospital, Staten Island, N. Y., under treatment for paralysis of the digestive organs due to poison gas. At the Wednesday night meeting of the lodge a letter of appreciation was read from Brother Terry, saying he was being deluged with "Howdy Paps" from Weymouth. Tom is coming home next week showing some improvement. His home address is 269 Middle street.

QUINCY 10, WEYMOUTH 6

Weymouth High was defeated by Quincy High on Wednesday at the Clapp Memorial field. Weymouth was in the lead in the third and fourth innings, but the seventh was fatal, as the visitors scored 5, and won 10 to 6. Quincy made 10 hits and 6 errors, while Weymouth made 6 hits and 5 errors.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

Tent 32 will have a class initiation in G. A. R. hall, the first meeting in June. Application papers must be in by the next meeting, May 20.

Tent 32 wishes to thank W. R. C. 102 and S. of V. Auxiliary for their assistance at our fair which was a financial success.

HELP WEYMOUTH

AND SECURE

BETTER SERVICE

Now that the taxpayers of Weymouth have assumed the responsibility of paying 50 per cent of any deficit on the operation of the local street railway routes, it is up to Weymouth people to give the street railway what support they can. Not only by patronage, but by friendly encouragement.

The time for "knocking" has passed. Now it is time to boost. Boost the street railway, and boost the town. Undoubtedly the Weymouth committee will welcome suggestions for the improvement of the service, or curtailment of expenses.

Just at present we must not expect additional trips, but these may come later. However, it may be possible to make better connections with other routes, or with trains, and otherwise improve the service.

But above all we must patronize the cars, and thereby make the street railway more successful financially.

RUNAWAY IN SQUARE

At 4:45 yesterday afternoon, when Washington Square was filled with electric cars, trucks, automobiles, motorcycles and people, a lively runaway came from the direction of the depot, a horse and democrat wagon. In the wagon were two boys who were thrown out when the team collided with an electric car. The horse freed himself and continued to Liberty street. The boys were Raymond Bennett and John Gough, and escaped with a few bruises. The team belonged to C. M. Price & Co.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

State Preferential Primaries Fail to Settle Presidential Nominations.

WOOD HAS MOST DELEGATES

Johnson's Popular Vote the Largest—Knox, Whose Peace Resolution Is Up in Senate, Talked of as Compromise Candidate—Poles Defeat Bolsheviks.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.
The state presidential primaries have nearly all been held; the feverish race for delegates is about over. And now every one is free to guess who will be the nominees of the national conventions, and there is not much more to base guesses on than there was before.

On the Republican side two developments stand out: Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood has captured more instructed delegates than any one else, and Senator Hiram Johnson has been accorded the largest popular vote. Running a fairly strong third in both particulars is Governor Lowden of Illinois. But the deliberate plan of the party managers has been carried out and no candidate will go to the Chicago convention with anywhere near enough votes pledged to nominate. The result in the Coliseum will be brought about by skillful dickering, unless the convention can be stampeded, which is improbable.

The two most important primaries of the past week were in California and Indiana. In the former Johnson won a sweeping victory, his majority over Herbert Hoover, his only competitor, being something like 100,000. Mr. Hoover expressed himself as surprised by the showing he made, considering the inadequacy of his campaign arrangements. His supporters on the coast charged that a deal was made with the Phelan machine in San Francisco to deliver the Democratic vote to Johnson.

Indiana's primary law requires that a candidate must secure a majority of all votes cast in order to gain complete control of the state's delegation. This General Wood failed to do, though his plurality over Johnson was about 6,000. Wood's managers said they would insist that the state convention instruct the solid delegation for the general, but this aroused bitter opposition in the other camps. On the face of practically complete returns the Wood people claimed 20 of the district delegates and the four delegates-at-large. The steel workers in the Calumet region piled up a big majority for Johnson and he also carried Evansville, but Wood won in Indianapolis and other cities. Lowden, who was strong in the rural districts, got about half as many votes as Johnson, and Harding about half as many as the Illinois governor. The results in Indiana really were not satisfactory to any one of the candidates, but they quite suited the political managers of the state, who plan to have Indiana hold the balance of power in the convention.

Maryland Republicans turned out in small numbers and gave Wood the state's preference by a vote of about two to one over Johnson.

The Johnson managers felt that the Michigan state convention did not give the senator the full fruits of his victory in the primary. It instructed the delegation to vote for him as long as he has a chance of winning the nomination, but refused ironclad instructions, leaving it to the delegates to decide when to switch to another candidate. Of the big four elected, two are Johnson men and two are said to favor Wood.

One of the few delegations that will go to the Democratic convention in San Francisco with instructions as to its vote will be that from Kentucky. The state convention voted for instructions for Governor Cox of Ohio. It would not surprise astute politiclans if the Kentuckians find themselves among the first in the bandwagon. Cox is looked on as a very likely compromise candidate. Mr. McAdoo, replying to some Brooklyn people who indorsed him for the Democratic nomination, wrote: "I doubt most seriously that I possess the qualifications required to meet the exacting requirements of the present situation," and added that he was not interested in the political fortunes of any man, least of all himself.

The Republican senators brought up for consideration in the senate last week the Knox resolution declaring the war ended, and Senator Knox opened the debate with a defense of the measure and a warm attack on the policy of President Wilson. At first the Democratic senators decided to fight the resolution with a filibuster, but changed their minds when they learned the president was willing to have the matter brought to an issue and was determined to veto the resolution if it were adopted. It was understood that Mr. Wilson also would resubmit the Versailles treaty to the senate, formally making it an issue in the presidential campaign. It has been intimated that he might suggest some reservations of his own, but it is scarcely to be supposed these would satisfy the Republican senators.

According to Secretary of State Coby, who was presumably speaking for the president, the Knox resolution is "absolutely unprecedented in the history of the United States" and "wholly unconstitutional." He asserts the only way to re-establish peace with Germany is by treaty and that the president is powerless under the Constitution to patch up any scheme of friendly relations or appoint diplomatic and consular representatives until a treaty has been ratified.

Mr. Knox's long address on the resolution was heard and read with especial interest because he has been put forward as a possible nominee of the Chicago convention. Senator Penrose, who usually voices the opinion of the "old guard" in the Republican party, says Knox will prove the most satisfactory and most available compromise candidate if it is found neither Wood, Johnson nor Lowden can land the prize.

Meanwhile the allied supreme council and the League of Nations are going ahead with their tasks in Europe. The objections of the Hungarians to their treaty have been answered without yielding and they were given ten days to accept the pact. The Turkish delegates arrived in Paris Thursday to receive the treaty with the Porte. They will sign it, of course, but that won't end the trouble in Turkey, by any means. The nationalists are as determined as ever in their opposition and in their first national convention, recently held, they defied Great Britain especially and all the allies generally. Their leaders say they were willing to accept Wilsonism but that being refused them, they will probably turn to bolshevism. The grand vizier at Constantinople has sent a delegation to endeavor to effect a compromise with Mustapha Kemal, the head of the nationalist movement. Efforts to induce Turkish government troops to oppose Kemal's forces have resulted in mutiny. Col. Jafar Tayar, commandant of Adrianople, who has declared the independence of that city, is said to be preparing to resist Greek occupation.

It was officially announced in London that Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the League of Nations, had sent to Moscow a telegram asking for a definite statement of the soviet government's attitude toward a proposal to send a commission of the league into Russia to consider the advisability of recognizing the Lenin government. No reply has been received. The executive council of the league already had selected the commission and wished to learn the attitude of the soviet leaders before its next meeting on May 14.

The great drive of the Poles and Ukrainians against the soviet forces in Ukraine has resulted in savage battles in which the Poles have had the best of it. At present they had pressed forward as the bridgehead of Kiev and the city was desperate, continuing day and night. Reports received at Berne said two bolshevist armies had been routed and virtually destroyed, and Warsaw announced the capture of Skvira, a bolshevist stronghold, by the Polish cavalry.

From Vladivostok and Tokyo came the news that in eastern Siberia the Russians had signed a protocol yielding to all the demands presented by the Japanese military authorities, including withdrawal for a distance of 30 kilometers from districts occupied by the Japanese.

A correspondent in Berlin says that from authentic sources in the foreign office and the ministry of finance he learns that Germany will flatly refuse to pay a hundred billion marks indemnity, and that the offer of such a sum, made when the treaty of peace was signed, is to be withdrawn and figures startlingly low substituted when the conference at Spa takes place. Premiers Millerand and Lloyd George are to meet before the Spa session begins and doubtless will come to a complete understanding as to what will be demanded from Germany.

An interesting statement concerning the trial of war criminals has been made by Dr. Andreas Blunck, German minister of justice. He says the German government has been for some time in readiness to try the accused and the attorney general has instituted 317 prosecutions, but that nothing more can be done until the allied nations furnish the evidence which they promised. Not a word has come from any of them since the list of the accused was handed to the Berlin government three months ago, asserts the minister.

Carranza's hold on Mexico apparently is weakening so rapidly that the old man must be decidedly alarmed. The revolt, of which General Obregon is the recognized leader, is spreading daily and the federal armies lose large numbers by desertion to the rebels. If the bewhiskered president had any plans for fleeing from the country, it is likely he has too long deferred their execution, for the ports on both east and west coasts are closed to him by the operations of rebel units along the connecting railways and highways. However he may yet escape into the United States or Guatemala. According to a story that came across the border, all the rebel leaders have agreed on a plan to force the abdication of Carranza on May 15 and to name Alfredo Robles Dominguez president pro tempore.

The latest big accession to the rebel forces was Francisco Villa who, with 2,000 men, joined the revolutionary army in Chihuahua. It was said he would bring 10,000 men to the support of Obregon. In Torreón the federal garrison raised the flag of revolt and arrested their commander.

After several requests from the state department, the navy department dispatched a flotilla of destroyers to Key West, whence they will be able to reach the Mexican ports on the east coast within a few hours. So far they have not been greatly needed to protect American interests there. Agents of our government have reported that the rebel leaders give assurance of the adoption of a more friendly attitude toward foreigners than has been maintained by Carranza, but of course the United States is not taking any hand in the struggle.

Secretary of Labor Wilson surprised and dismayed the department of justice men who are carrying on the proceedings to rid the country of dangerous aliens. He ruled that membership in the Communist Labor party does not constitute ground for deportation because that party does not advocate resort to force. Some time ago Mr. Wilson held that alien members of the Communist party, which advocates the overthrow of the existing government by force, might be deported. In the opinion of Assistant Attorney General Garvan the new ruling means that the campaign to deport the alien reds must collapse, since the Communists can easily join the Communist Labor party without abandoning their theories or purposes. It may be Secretary Wilson's action will save from impeachment Assistant Secretary Post, who has canceled 1,400 deportation warrants.

PREPARATIONS PROSPECTIVE TOURIST SHOULD MAKE TO INSURE SAFE VOYAGE

Interior of Main Body of Car Arranged for Sleeping Compartment.

Under the title "High, Low and the Game," Edwin L. Sabin, in MoToR, the national magazine of motoring, writes most entertainingly and helpfully of transcontinental motoring and what preparations the prospective tourist should make to insure a safe and pleasant voyage.

"Tires?" questions the author, and answers: "Any driver who starts out equipped with less than a complete outfit of the best new casings that his money will buy gives a hostage to fortune. This may sound a bit extravagant, but I'll leave the decision to the army sky-pilot whom we passed stranded with two bare rims and a family upon the desert 100 miles from any supply station, or to the supposedly experienced traveling man who had been working for 12 hours at a dobe shack trying to adjust a borrowed 33 straight side casing on a 34 clincher wheel, while awaiting succor from a 50-miles-distant garage."

Spade is Handy Tool.

Gently insinuating that the transcontinental motorist may possibly have to remove a bit of soil on occasion, our author continues: "Spade! Man, man! Don't forget your wife, but for the love of Mike, don't forget a short-handled spade and a couple of boards, likewise a slab or two upon which to base the jack. Where there are miles and miles of sand and shifty gravel, and six inches of either applied just right will stall a car till the grass grows in waste places, it appears idiotic to advise overlenders to pack a spade and adjuncts. Nevertheless a man there was—from Wyoming, too, of all ranges, who seized upon that spade as a great invention."

PAINTING WITH OILCAN DEVICE

Homemade Outfit Similar to One Shown in Illustration Makes Job Very Easy.

IS DIFFICULT WITH BRUSH

When Working on Radiator Place Piece of Paper in Position to Protect Engine and Prevent Spattering Brass Finish.

Painting an automobile radiator quickly and thoroughly with a brush is difficult. A homemade spraying outfit similar to the one shown in the illustration made the job easy.

Make-Up of Outfit.

The outfit consists of a one-half-gallon oil can, made into an atomizer by attaching a tire pump to the end of the pipe B. A piece of small brass pipe, A, was mounted in one side of the can, the upper end of it extending a short distance outside of the top. A second piece of pipe was mounted in a horizontal position in the top of the can, as shown at B. If a handle is attached to the can, as at C, the piece of pipe B may pass through it lengthwise and extend a short distance beyond the end of the handle. Both pipes were soldered to the top of the can, and the screw top was provided with a gasket to make it tight.

Working of Pump.

When the air is forced through the horizontal tube B and caused to pass across the opening in the upper end of the vertical tube A, the liquid in the can is drawn up and forced out in a fine spray. A mixture for spraying the radiator may be made of lampblack and turpentine. A sheet of paper should be placed back of the radiator to protect the engine, and around the outer edge, to prevent the liquid from bespattering the brass finish.—A. E. Andrews, Chicago, in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Spraying Device Made of an Oil Can and a Foot Pump.

Cause of Much Trouble.
More troubles can be traced to lack of lubrication than to any other cause.

FOR REMOVING CARBON.

Carbon may be removed from the automobile engine cylinder by means of a carbon flame, without injuring the mechanism, if the following precautions, suggested by the department of agricultural engineering of the Nebraska college of agriculture, are observed: The radiator must be filled with water to keep the cylinder walls and valves cool. Both valves must be closed and the piston placed at the top of the cylinder to confine the oxygen in the combustion chamber. If compressed air is at hand after burning out the carbon, the engine may be turned over until the exhaust valve is open and a jet of air introduced into the cylinder to blow out all loose particles of carbon which would prevent the valves from seating properly and thus impair compression.

FOR APPLYING TIRE CHAINS

Never Use Tool to Draw Them So Tight That They Cannot Creep—Casing is Weakened.

In applying tire chains never use a tool to draw them so tight that they cannot creep. If the cross grip cannot move to a new position on the tread every time it touches the ground it soon cuts deeply into the rubber, and then fabric, seriously weakening the strength of the casing.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

More tires are prematurely destroyed through under-inflation than from any other cause.

It is now conceded that a satisfactory heater is an essential feature of motorcar equipment.

A constant check of the air pressure is one of the secrets of big automobile tire mileage.

The glossy finished leather substitute upholstery is better than the dull finished, the latter being prone to crack or lose its coloring material through friction.

End play in the crankshaft is apt to first be noticed when the car is throttled down to around five miles per hour, when so-called bucking will take place, accompanied by knocking.

Do not neglect the lubrication of the spring shackles. Rust often clogs up the small vents and keeps out the oil. By using common kerosene occasionally these holes will be kept open.

An emergency trick for oiling a spring is to go over it with kerosene, wiping off the dirt as you do so, and guiding the kerosene down the sides so that it will run in between the leaves.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

On talking to Dort owners you will find that they not only speak enthusiastically regarding the economy of the Dort in gasoline, oil, and tires, and the ease with which it rides, but they refer repeatedly to the advantages that accrue to them as a result of the remarkable simplicity and accessibility of Dort construction.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford car can well be called the "people's car," because there are more than 3,000,000 of them in daily operation. That is about four to one of the nearest follower in the motor car industry. This would not be so if the Ford car had not for sixteen years proven its superiority in service, in durability, and in the low cost for operation and maintenance; this would not be so if the Ford car was not so easy to understand, so simple in construction that anybody and everybody can safely drive it. She was born in Weymouth 78 years ago, and was a daughter of the late Zachariah Bates. She was for years a member of the First Universalist church. She is survived by a son, Percy E. Cook.

SQUARE SIX-ROOM HOUSE OF STUCCO

Handsome Home for a Family of Medium Size.

INTERIOR WELL ARRANGED

Exterior Presents Exceptionally Fine Appearance—Design Presents Dwelling That Will Not Cost Excessive Sum.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

During the last few years one idea about home building has been radically changed. That idea is regarding the size of the house. There was a time not so many years ago when practically every one who built a house had in it a number of "spare" rooms. There was a parlor on the first floor that was seldom used unless there was company. A "spare" bedroom, or two, usually was incorporated into the plan for the second floor. Now there are practically no
"spare" rooms, while in the cities many homes and nearly all apartments are constructed so that one or two rooms do double duty—are used daytimes as a living room or a dining room and by the use of concealed beds become bedrooms at night.

A home that contains sufficient room for a medium-sized family is the six-room square bungalow, shown in the accompanying illustration. This house contains three good-sized bedrooms on the second floor, so that a family of four adults easily can be accommodated, and by "doubling up" there is room for a guest or two to stay over night. At the same time this home is small, being only 31 feet square. At the present cost of building more room or a larger house than the needs of the family require is sheer waste of money, and considerable of it.

In exterior appearance this home, with the outside walls treated as they are, and with the large porch, presents an exceptionally fine appearance. The building is either of frame, brick or hollow clay building tile construction, with the exterior walls cov-erred with stucco. One of the side walls is paneled by the use of a square lattice work, but it is not good policy to plant vines to cover the trellis, because vines discolor the stucco.

However, the lattice work takes away
the plainness of the wall. The colorial porch, at the side, with settees
on either side is a good exterior feature, while the brick floors to the porches add another attractive touch.

The six rooms are arranged and the size of each one are shown by the floor plan that accompanies the exterior view of the house. A living room of exceptionally large size, 15

ment excavation is under the whole of the house proper and is finished with a cement floor. The basement should be divided into rooms; one for the heating plant, one for fuel storage and one for food storage, leaving room for the storage of lawn and garden tools and other things that usually are kept in the basement.

Taken both from the standpoint of exterior beauty and convenient and commodious interior, this home building design is excellent and will provide a dwelling for the average family that will not cost an excessive sum.

Whenever those who have in mind the erection of a home see a home building design that appeals to them, one of their first thoughts is "what will it cost?" Building costs are difficult to estimate with any degree of accuracy, because so many factors enter into them. There is the question of shortage or abundance of the skilled labor required to build a home;
there is the great variance of freight rates on the materials, and the location of the building site in relation to the source of material supply and labor. For those reasons it never is safe to say what a home of a certain design will cost. But it is an easy matter to secure estimates of cost. The local architect, the contractors who will be asked to bid on the building and the material dealers all can give a pretty good estimate of ered with stucco. One of the side walls is paneled by the use of a square lattice work, but it is not good policy to plant vines to cover the trellis, because vines discolor the stucco.

However, the lattice work takes away
the plainness of the wall. The colo-
rial porch, at the side, with settees
on either side is a good exterior feature, while the brick floors to the porches add another attractive touch.

The six rooms are arranged and
the size of each one are shown by the floor plan that accompanies the exterior view of the house. A living room of exceptionally large size, 15

First Floor Plan.

by 29 feet, extends across the house.
An open fire-place at one end, with a built-in bookcase at the side and the open stair running to the second floor are good features of the living room.
Connected by a double cased opening is the dining room off one end of the living room. The dining room is a cheery room, being on the corner and having a double French door leading to the open porch. The kitchen adjoins the dining room and can be reached either from the living or dining room. This room is of good size, 13 feet 6 inches by 10 feet. Adjoining it are pantry and laundry. This location for a laundry is good, as it is what a home of a certain size or style will cost in their immediate localities, and by consulting them the prospective builder will get reliable figures.

Without a doubt the most satisfactory method of securing a home is to build it. By building the owner gets a home of the right size for his family; its exterior appearance and interior arrangement will conform to his ideas of how a home should be laid out, and he will be able to keep his requirements within the range of his financial ability.

This is the year of home building and every man of family who has been paying the high rents now demanded is either building a home of his own or considering building one.
While it is considerable of an undertaking to assume the financial obligations necessary in most cases, when the home is finished, the owner is more than compensated.

Answer Business Letters Promptly.

Even though you are not a business person yourself business letters should be written with the utmost promptness —if not the day of their receipt, then the day after. For instance, if you receive a letter from a stranger regarding the reliability of a servant in your employ, you should answer at once. If you receive a letter from a business concern concerning some confusion in your account, that, too, should be written at once. The only person who can afford to neglect answering business letters is the person who has a business manager to attend to such matters for him.

Butter Once Used as Ointment.

Butter was used locally in the earliest periods for which records exist, as it was believed to be the best possible ointment for the skin, and in some parts of southern Europe it is not yet used as a food. Olive oil, used as a lubricant for bread in the old days, still is used by many there in the place of butter. In the early days butter also was used in lamps.

Out of this season's bewildering dictates of fashion, one thought stands clear—you must appear natural.

Uncorseted? No! Emphatically No! Certainly frocks and suits never more definitely demanded the foundation of a clever corset. When Paris says you should look "uncorseted," Paris means you should wear a corset so deftly designed to be a part of yourself that it merely accents the natural beauty of your figure and the most critical observer will not be able to trace your charm to its subtle support.

Sound Advice.

Some young fellows think that it is "smart," "clever," and a sign of bravery to drive near the edge of a precipice; to spend what cash they have freely; and to be a good fellow and take the risk someone else urges upon them. This is the sign of inexperience and lack of real business knowledge and experience. Play safe. Keep clean. Be strong. Be true, and you will never regret it.—Exchange.

And So Are Immune.

"Less than half the people struck by lightning are killed," says a floating scientific item. The other half, we suppose, try to be presidential candidates.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Modern Greek Language.

The modern Greek language is a dialect of the ancient Greeks, and the literary language of today is a continuation of the main literary dialect of ancient Greece, the Attic, as modified by passing through Byzantine. The modern vernacular is sometimes called Romaine. At the present time there is a tendency among the Greek authors to return more closely to the ancient form of the language.

Value of Mottoes.

The object of mottoes is to point out something we have not yet attained, yet strive after. It is good to keep them constantly before our eyes.—Goethe.

Talking "To" and "With."

To talk to a person is to address words to him; to talk with a person is to speak and listen alternately—to carry on a conversation; to talk of or about a person is to say things concerning him; to talk at a person is to address words to another or others for the purpose of having them heard by the one for whom they are meant.

Unwelcome Immigrant.

The boll weevil is something this country has acquired from Mexico. It crossed the Rio Grande river in 1892. Since then it has been traveling from 40 to 100 miles each year, and now covers the greater part of the cotton states.

TWO EXTREMES IN ATTRACTIVE SUITS

FROM the very plain tailored suits of wool to the handsomely embroidered sport suit of silk is quite a "far piece," but the interval is filled with suits that gradually progress from the plain model to its smart rival. Street clothes nowadays have a considerable flavor of sports styles, although there remains, and probably always will remain, the trim, strictly tailored, business-like utility suit that holds the allegiance of American women. This they must have, others they may have, and, if circumstances allow, several in varying styles they do have. One of them will be as simple and, we hope, as well tailored as the mannish suit pictured, another as definitely a sports style as the suit at the right, and others formal or sportish.

Blue serge, it almost goes without saying, is used for the first suit. Its plain skirt has a little flare and is made with box plaits down the front and back. It doesn't take long to describe this very simple affair but it is worth while adding that it is perfectly fitted and tailored.

The clever and unusual coat has slashes at each side in its skirt rounded at the bottom and it is bound with braid. A group of three tucks or cords, stitched in the material and running parallel with the edge of the coat reveals a difficult piece of work done with precision. A panel at the back is simulated by a fold or cord stitched in the material that extends downward from the shoulders and terminates in a rounded end. There are plain coat sleeves and a small collar.

A heavy fiber silk makes the sport suit and a square-necked one-piece dress takes the place of a blouse and skirt to be worn under the coat. The bodice is extended to form a short yoke for the skirt, which is stitched on to it. In this suit it is the skirt that claims most attention for it is heavily embroidered in wool yarn. In the sweater coat a narrow shawl collar diminishes in width on its downward way to the hem, where it terminates. The very wide hem turns up on the right side providing place for deep pockets and the coat has no decoration other than four pearl buttons that finish off the long sleeves. The narrow belt is made of the goods.

Blouses Ready for Summer

THERE are so many delightfully pretty and chic blouses, made ready for summer time, that it is not easy to choose among them. About the most noticeable thing in many of the new ones, is their front fastening, or occasional back fastening, negotiated with very obvious buttons and buttonholes. After following devious ways, leading to concealed buttons or snaps and leaving us to guess how they were got into, they have come back to a matter of fact mood and simply button up as in days of old. But there are still plenty of slip-overs and other styles with concealed fastenings.

Beginning at the beginning of blouse styles we have the plain tailored models in linen, wash silk or satin, crepe-de-chine and other suitable fabrics, followed by many blouses of sheer cottons with voile and batiste at the head of this dainty company. Made up with handsome laces and fine needlework, these may reach any degree of elegance. Finally there comes the georgette blouse—the flower of the flock—and apparently the greatest favorite.

A blouse and a short smock, both of dark-colored georgette among those ready for summer, are pictured here. In the blouse a piping of narrow satin is used to finish the edges. This model is provided with link buttons, satin-covered and joined by a small silk cord. Two colors in silk are used for the embroidery that embellishes it and it is made with the narrow shoulder yoke which is generally becoming.

Smocks have grown shorter and shorter until the model pictured may be classed among those that are moderately long. Except for being short this is a true smock, hanging straight from the shoulders and with long sleeves that flare. Its belt of georgette is tacked to the body of the smock at intervals to insure a neat adjustment at the back and sides. Embroidery done in French knots, outline and other stitches employs several colors. The selection of color for blouse or smock and in the embroidery silk, is a matter of individual taste and gives the capable needlewoman a chance to have something exclusively her own.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

LAST STORE STORY.

The Wishing Fairy and the Fairy knew that almost everything in the big store had now had enough of wishing to be someone else. No one had enjoyed themselves as others, and they had only felt out of place.

But still, the canary bird and a pair of gloves and a blue apron and a silken jacket and a few of the dresses which hadn't played at being each other, all wanted a try at it.

They had heard the stories of how miserable the others had been, but they themselves had gone to sleep and nothing would make them happy but to try it all for themselves.

And one of the doll's houses had wanted to be something else, too—one of the doll's houses which hadn't changed before. So as they all made their requests the Wishing Fairy granted them. The canary bird, now an opera singer, had just finished singing before his audience. They were calling for a speech and the canary bird couldn't make a speech. He had nothing to say. He could only chirp. "And," said the canary bird to himself, "I'll be so worn out and tired tomorrow that I won't be bought by those nice people who looked at me today and who said they'd probably decide to take me when they come tomorrow."

"I don't know what to do with you, Moon," said one of the partners of the pair of gloves which had asked for the moon. "You're so big, you're extremely difficult to manage."

The moon was sitting on the counter by the pair of gloves. "And I can't even try myself on you, neither can my mate, for you have no hands. And you can't run and play, for you've no feet and no legs. Oh, Moon, why did I wish for you?"

"I'm sorry you don't like me," said the moon, grinning from ear to ear. "You see, it was only because the Wishing Fairy asked me to come down that I came. I never leave the sky as a rule. But she said she was tired of folks and boys and girls wishing for the moon. She said she would bring me down for a change and just show some folks that I was best where I was."

"I thought," said one of the mates of the pair of gloves, "that I would get the most wonderful thing in the world if I got the moon for my wish."

"Sorry," said the moon grinning, "but cheer up; you're not the only one liable to make such a mistake."

The blue apron was weeping now. It had disgraced itself by suggesting to one of its new companions, whom it wanted to be like, a silken jacket, that when they went calling as they planned to do, they'd better wear aprons over themselves in case they were asked to dust or sweep or clean doll's houses.

And the silken jacket had turned up its top button which it called its nose and had said, "You and I will not go calling together. We drink cambric tea or cocoa when we go a-calling. We're not invited to sweep. Your mother, alas and alack, must have been made of very coarse and cheap and ordinary material!"

The doll's house was tired of being different kinds of toys. It wanted to be a doll's house again, so it would always be loved, and not changed off for a new toy several times in the same evening.

The great children's store now began to grow smaller and was no longer the enormous thing it had been during the night. Now it was its usual size again.

The different dresses, the canary bird, the pair of gloves—all were weeping and sighing. "What is it?" asked the first fairy. "Didn't the Wishing Fairy grant your wishes?"

"But we want to be what we were," they all cried.

"Oh, ho," said the Wishing Fairy. "So that's it! Well, I see that no one and nothing wants to exchange places for long with anyone else. Everything in this store has tried it, one right after the other. And now everyone is satisfied with what they are, eh?"

"Everyone," they shouted with such a loud cry that the Wishing Fairy held her hands to her ears and promised, "Never, never again, no matter what you say you wish to be!"

And this is the last story of the store where everything wanted to change places with everything else and where they tried it, but all decided they were happiest where they were and with what they were!

The Massachusetts Universalists convention will be held at Waltham on Wednesday and Thursday, May 19 and 20.

KING'S DAUGHTERS

The King's Daughters' Union, comprising the nine local King's Daughters' Circles, met at the East Weymouth Congregational church Tuesday night, Mrs. Charles R. Denbroeder, presiding. It was voted to entertain the Norfolk County convention in October. For the benefit of its working fund the union will have a rummage sale in the Odd Fellows Opera House, East Weymouth, May 21. Miss Bessie H. Bates sang, with Mrs. Henry L. Lovell at the piano. The Inasmuch Circle served refreshments. At the business meeting the following were elected: Mrs. Charles R. Denbroeder, president; Mrs. Emilie A. Chandler and Mrs. George M. Hoyt, vice-presidents; Miss Susie Humphrey, secretary, and Mrs. Edward P. Hunt, treasurer.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The first and second degrees were exemplified upon a class of 28 candidates last evening. Grand Knight Fallon was in charge of ceremonies. After the degree work, he introduced Fr. William Gunville, a product of North Weymouth, and a charter member of the Council, who spoke briefly, although he professed to be an hour and a half speaker, and was warmly applauded. Fr. Gunville is connected with the Dominican order. The regular Thursday meeting will be held next week. All should be present.

The KaCeys will do battle with the Harbor Views in Hingham tomorrow afternoon.

DAUGHTERS OF THE NATION

The April and May meetings of the Old Colony Chapter, Daughters of the Nation, have been well attended and interesting. At the April meeting, held in Pythian hall, Weymouth, the entertainment was furnished by pupils from the Perkins Institution for the Blind. They were Miss Loretta Noonan, singer; Miss Ethel Montgomery, reader; Miss Helen Irwin, who played several piano solos. Mrs. Paul Dowd, the hostess, and her assistants, Mrs. William Wall, Mrs. Charles Gurtin, Mrs. Victor Worledge, Mrs. John Riley and Mrs. Philip Harvey, served dainty refreshments after the entertainment.

The May meeting was held in Grand Army hall, at the Town House, South Braintree. The business meeting was conducted by the regent, Mrs. Albert Avery. This was followed by a piano solo, "The Nightingale and the Zephyr," which was finely rendered by Miss Alice Finnegan of South Braintree. Mrs. Alfred Hollis, as hostess, then conducted a "Pie Social," which was a financial as well as social success. Miss Finnegan also played for the marching during the Social.

The third part of the afternoon's program was an address by Mrs. William N. Irving, the State Regent, whose subject was "The Origin and Work of the Service Star Legion." Mrs. Irving is a very convincing and interesting speaker. At the close of her address, she presented the chapter with the charter.

ODD FELLOWS OPERA HOUSE

The suddenness with which prohibition was instituted in New York precluded any studied attempt to preserve pictures of the most popular places where liquor was dispensed, but quite by accident one of the most famous of New York's roof gardens was the stage for one of the scenes in the First National Production of Norma Talmadge in "A Daughter of Two Worlds" which will be shown at the Odd Fellows Opera House at East Weymouth, next Monday. It so happened that the scene was taken on the last night it was open selling whiskies and other hard drinks and never again will it be duplicated for the roof garden was a growth of the peculiar times of the past four years.

Under war-time prohibition revelry at the roof gardens ran higher than ever before. Added to the general attractions of the place was the spice of doing something the law prohibited, and liquor in tea-cups and at doubled prices seem to have an attraction it had lacked before. While the roof garden scene in "A Daughter of Two Worlds" is but a minor part of the entire picture, the same care was taken in making it accurate as any other part.

—Mount Holyoke College has over 7000 living alumnae, some 1200 in vicinity of Boston and several here in Weymouth. The Weymouth Alumnae Committee, consisting of Esther Bicknell '14, Mrs. Harold Raymond '10, Miss Evelyn Greeley '20, and Mrs. Wilfred C. Billings '17, are active in securing the quota for the $3,000,000 Endowment and Building fund. A rummage sale will be held on Saturday afternoon and evening May 22 at 686 Broad street, East Weymouth.

Car Service Resumed on Weymouth Routes

The street cars are once more making regular trips on the Weymouth routes on the old schedule. The service was resumed Monday morning, thanks to the committee of the town, who met the street railway officials, and promptly came to terms.

The Gazette gives a full report of the conference between Committee on Transportation and Trustees of Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company.

On Friday afternoon, May 7, the Committee appointed by the Town held a conference with Homer Loring, chairman of the Trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company.

Mr. Loring agreed to resume on Monday morning, May 10, on practically the old schedule, car service on the Jackson Square—Braintree Depot route and the Rockland Depot—Braintree Depot route.

Pleasant Street will be served by motor busses.

A sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Pearson, Swan and Cuniff held an interview with Mr. McCormick at the Town Office on Monday morning, May 10, and detailed schedule for the Pleasant street route will be arranged and published as soon as possible.

The Committee will welcome suggestions in regard to service, which will be considered promptly.

The Trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company will place road beds in proper condition just as soon as it is possible to secure help to do the work.

The operation of one-man cars will necessarily be postponed until such time as this can be done. It is hoped that the first of June will see one-man cars in operation on the Jackson Square—Braintree Depot route, and sixty days later on the Rockland Depot—Braintree Depot route.

Thirty days' trial of two busses will be made on the Pleasant Street route, which will include service to the South Weymouth Station and to Fountain Square on Pond Plain, so-called.

Development of motor-bus service in this section will require a great deal of careful study on the part of the Committee, also co-operative effort on the part of the citizens living within the territory to be so served.

THE QUINCY DIVISION

The March statement of the Quincy Division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway shows that the division is not yet on a paying basis the deficit for that month being given as $28,931.44. It should be borne in mind, however, that the month of March, like the month of February, was a hard one for street railway companies. It is expected that a decided improvement will be shown in the statement for May when it is issued. The total revenue was $63,665.91.

MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS

At the completion of fifty years since its foundation the Museum of Fine Arts finds itself seriously embarrassed for lack of funds. Its growth in half a century has been phenomenal, only to be explained by the recognition that Boston wanted an art museum of the first rank. Its history has been a series of one important gift after another, leading to enlargements of the original building on Copley Square, then to the new building on the Fenway, finally to the addition of the Evans Galleries. Each gift of objects has required and has brought gifts of money for their exhibition and their care. Each addition to the building has required additional funds for maintenance and the funds have been secured.

At the present time, however, the growth of the Museum has out-run its funds. The painting galleries, increasing the exhibition space forty per cent, the greatly increased cost of fuel and supplies in the last five years, and the increased cost of labor have together increased the expenses of operation far beyond the point where any reasonable economies could bring the total expenses within available income. The Museum needs a large increase of income if it is to continue to do its work.

The trustees have endorsed the opinion expressed in the annual report of their president "that the aggressive and widespread personal solicitation of the drive" for an increased endowment fund is unwise. Instead, they present the needs of the Museum to the public and ask those who are interested in its work to meet those needs as they have been met in the past.

The Museum needs additional income of at least $50,000 a year to avoid a deficit in running expenses, which otherwise seems inevitable.

It needs further sums to keep its building in proper order, to make desirable changes in installation, and to publish catalogues of its collections.

Further, it needs money for the acquisition of works of art, unless it is to reverse the policy of half a century and cease to add to its collections.

To meet these needs the trustees in the first instance appeal to the first instance appeal to the citizens of Boston, Massachusetts, generally to become annual subscribers toward the secondly they ask present subscribers to consider making increases as large as may be possible in their subscriptions, and thirdly they ask for generous gifts toward the present endowment fund from those who believe in the work the Museum is undertaking.

HIGH SCHOOL OPERETTA

"The Feast of the Lantern", a Chinese operetta, was presented at High School hall, Monday evening, for the benefit of the School Athletic Fund, with scenery and costumes appropriate to China. In the cast were Misses Ina Leinonen, Ruth Benson, Alice Freeman and Ruth Nash. The chorus comprised Misses Catherine Burton, Alice Gay, Eleanor Storkwell, Dorothy Pratt, Loraine Page, Caroline Gough, Evelyn Gundstrum, Charlotte Davis, Dora Pierce, Ella Stone, Doris Monroe, Beatrice Warren, Marion Branley, Lucy Parker and Marion Nolan. The musical director was James Calderwood; Miss Edith Sully presided at the piano; Mrs. Helen Barnard was stage director and Miss Susan Avery had charge of the scenery. There was fancy dancing by Misses Alice Gay, Eleanor Stockwell, Dorothea Pratt and Loraine Page.

LAND QUESTION IN RUSSIA

Natural Desire of Peasants to Participate in Ownership of Soil They Till Is Root of the Revolution.

Article XVII

By FRANK COMERFORD.

In talking with people about Russia, I have discovered that most people in America have only a faint, uncertain, vague idea of the country. Czar Nicholas, the last of the self-proclaimed autocrats, was monarch of 8,600,000 square miles, one-sixth of the entire land surface of the earth. The great Russian empire is spread over part of two continents, Europe and Asia. It is almost entirely confined to the cold and temperate zones.

Three seas bound it on the north—White, Barents and Kara of the arctic; the seas of Bering, Okhotsk and Japan of the northern Pacific bound it on the east. The Baltic sea, the gulfs of Bothnia and Finland limit it on the northwest; two sinuous lines of land front separate it respectively from Sweden and Norway on the northwest, and from Prussia, Austria and Roumania on the west. On the south and east the frontier has changed frequently, according to the expansion and contraction of the empire under the pressure of political exigency and expediency. The Black sea is the principal demarcating feature on the south of European Russia. On the west side of that sea the south frontier touches the Danube for some 120 miles; on the east side of the same sea it zigzags from the Black sea to the Caspian, utilizing the river Aras for part of the distance. As the Caspian is virtually a Russian sea, Persia may be said to form the next link in the southern boundary of the Russian empire, followed by Afghanistan. On the Pamirs, Russia has since 1885 been continuous with British India, but the boundary then swings away north round Chinese Turkestan, and the north side of Mongolia, and since 1906 it has skirted the north of Manchuria, being separated from it by the river Amur.

The total length of the frontier line of the Russian empire by land is 2,800 miles in Europe and nearly 10,000 miles in Asia, and by sea, over 11,000 miles in Europe and between 19,000 and 20,000 miles in Asia—a frontier of 68,000 miles.

Empire's Vast Population.

The population of the empire, according to the 1915 census, was estimated at 182,182,000. According to the same census this population was distributed as follows: In European Russia, 131,706,800; in Poland, 12,125,000; in Caucasus, 13,125,000; in Siberia, 12,837,900; in the central Asian provinces, 11,125,000; Finland, 3,125,000.

Over 80 per cent of the people of Russia are peasants. The land is their problem. It means home to them—work, life. Their one dream has been to own the land. Land ownership is their definition of freedom, their idea of happiness.

The Russian peasant has been a stranger in his own country. The man who tills the soil and lives on the land and yet never owns an acre of it is a foreigner, even though his forbears may have been native to the country for centuries. The Russians have felt this; they are simple, home-loving people. From the conversations I have had with Russians of the peasant class I believe that they have suffered more because they never had a chance to own their own homes, their own farms, than from the denial to them of political freedom. The land question is a heart question, a heart question to them.

Crime in Land Distribution.

Some idea of the land crime in Russia is told in the startling figures showing the actual distribution of arable land, forests and meadows in European Russia. The following table is only one count in the indictment:

European Russia.		Percent.
Acres	Age
Arable land	301,425,000	26
Meadows and pastures	185,498,000	16
Forests	452,152,000	39
Uncultivated	220,279,000	19
	1,159,354,000	100

This land in European Russia was divided among the different classes of owners as follows:

State and imperial family.	Acres	Percent.
Peasants	490,816,000	25
Private owners, towns, etc.	446,657,000	38 1/2
Unit for cultivation	245,835,000	21
	66,066,000	5 1/2
	1,159,354,000	100

The condition of the peasants prior to the revolution, according to official documents, appears to be as follows: "In the 12 central governments they grow, on the average, sufficient rye for bread for only 200 days in the year, often for only 180 and 100 days."

One-quarter of the people have received allotments of only 2.9 acres per male, one-half of them less than 8.5 to 11.4 acres—the normal size of the allotment necessary to feed and maintain a family being estimated at 28 to 42 acres. Therefore the peasants were compelled to rent land from the landlords at fabulous prices. The aggregate value of the redemption and land taxes often reached 185 to 250 per cent of the normal value of the allotment, not to speak of the taxes for recruiting, the churches, roads and local administration, chiefly levied from the peasants. The peasants have sunk deeper into debt every year. The scheme was a quack—harder they worked and struggled the deeper into debt they fell. Increasing arrears have driven one-fifth of the inhabitants from their houses. Every year more than half the adult males (in some districts three-quarters of the men and one-third of the women) are forced to quit their homes and wander throughout Russia in search of work. In the governments of the black earth region the state of matters is hardly better.

The phrase "class distinction" was more than rhetoric in Russia—it was part of the chains, it handcuffed destiny, bolted the door of opportunity. The great mass of the people, 81.6 per cent peasants; 1.0 per cent made up the nobility; 9 per cent the clergy; 9.3 per cent the burghers and merchants; 6.1 per cent the military; thus 147,000,000 of the Russians were peasants.

The slavery in Russia consecrated by law in 1869 was partly abolished in 1861. The Act only pretended to liberate the serfs. Even under the best landlords conditions continued to be terrible. Household servants or dependents attached to the personal service of their masters were released. They joined the town proletariat. The peasants were given allotments of arable land. These allotments were not given to the individuals, they were given over to the rural commune called the Mir, which was made responsible as a whole for the payment of allotments. It was a sort of land communism, except that the title did not pass even to the Mir. The enormous charge against the land made them tenant serfs. The Mir was a mortgaged community. The redemption charge was not calculated on the value of the land, but was considered as payment for the loss of this compulsory labor of the serfs. The enslavement of the peasant was recognized in the Act which pretended emancipation.

Peasants Systematically Cheated. Many proprietors of land saw to it that the allotments did not give the peasants the needed pasture lands around their homes. This craftily calculated scheme compelled the peasants to rent pasture land from the landlords at any price. The landlords held them up.

It was only as late as 1904 that the landlord was forbidden by law to inflict corporal punishment on the peasant. Even this law was winked at and the practice of treating human slaves as brutes treated tired domestic animals, continued. The peasant was a chattel and the cheapest farm fixture. There were plenty of peasants. Notwithstanding the barbaric life in Russia, the population continued to grow.

The peasants' only participation in government was in the assembly called the Mir. With its quaint customs, it is of immemorial antiquity. The assembly of the Mir consisted of all the peasant householders of the village. These elected a head man and collector of local taxes. It was the nearest Russian peasants ever got to freedom. It was the clearing house for the troubles, a socialism of sorrows, a touch of local self government which gave no rights; it simply provided a means of co-operating in burden bearing.

HARD AT WORK IN BELGIUM

Coal Mining and Other Industries Are Being Rapidly Put on a Normal Basis.

The Belgian coal mines are now turning out about 80 per cent of the normal production. They supply nearly all the coal needed for the Belgian industries, while some 350,000 tons of coal a month are exported to France. Then the great glass industry of the country, which before the war gave work to many thousands, is rapidly regaining its former prosperity, and only quite recently the French ministry of reconstruction gave an order to a single Belgian firm for 2,000,000 square meters of window panes, to be utilized in the devastated regions. The result of all this is that whereas, at the time of the signing of the armistice, the French franc was worth 1.10 or even 1.15 francs in Belgium, it is now worth 95 centimes. Belgium, moreover, is very far from confining her efforts to France. Great Britain is already a considerable importer of Belgian goods, while the United States recently placed an order in Belgium for more than 300,000,000 francs' worth of glassware.

Large-Hearted Doughboys.

The children played a large part in the American army's Christmas in France. At the artillery camp at Mailly, for example, it was a top sergeant who said, ten days or so before the day:

"Say, fellows, these poor little village kids haven't had much Christmas in their lives, have they, now? What do you say we take up a collection and see what we can do?"

The idea took in a flash. And they did so well, giving as they always gave, with both hands, that the total sum was amazing.

"Why," some one hazarded, "I reckon we could hand those little shavers pretty near anything they want, with all this wad to spend."

THE PERFECT HOUSEKEEPER

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Three times within the two blocks that Doctor Andover had walked down College street from his house had he been greeted with the smiling congratulations of some neighbor or other. If he had not already been sure of his blessing in having secured the services of Mrs. Hildegarde Taylor as housekeeper he could not but have been after these felicitations.

"She is such a perfect housekeeper," Professor Ogden's wife had cooed. "Up to the day he died old Mr. Morgan had her tea biscuits every day of his life. He couldn't get along without them—and such pies!"

"Yes, indeed," agreed Doctor Andover, somewhat embarrassed but duly grateful to providence for having showered such abundant blessings on his shoulders.

"And she's so economical, too," Mrs. Partridge had said after offering the young bachelor president of the college her felicitations over the advent of Mrs. Taylor in his home. "No cause for your complaining now over the high cost of living."

"No, indeed," smiled Doctor Andover, and as he neared the corner where dwelt old Doctor Forbes, dean of his faculty, the fragrance of juicy beefsteak broiling in the Forbes kitchen came to him. He had had supper that night from tea biscuits, tea, sandwiches in jelly and prune whip. That as nearly as he could remember was all there had been to it.

Helen Forbes, not extraordinarily young or extraordinarily slender, but radiant and magnetic, only daughter and housewife for Doctor Forbes, opened the door for the young professor. The rest of the college town had got used to Helen. Of course, she was quite a beauty—but, then, she was only Helen Forbes.

Nice girl, too, and a few years before freshmen every year had gone quite silly over her; but she was a little too old for students now. But Doctor Andover had not quite got used to the radiance of her, and there were times when he would have more eagerly gone to spend an evening with old Doctor Forbes in discussing college plans and policies had it not been for Helen. She was a little disturbing. She didn't quite seem to belong to the little old college town.

On this occasion, however, it was necessary that he consult with Doctor Forbes. The tempting aroma of beefsteak grew even more tempting as Helen Forbes opened the door for him.

An apron protected her light summer frock, and she led Doctor Andover rather breezily into the dining room. "We are having dinner late," she said. "Dad's been working on examination books and didn't want to be disturbed until seven. Now, it's planked steak supper. Dad's so fond of it. You don't mind coming right out, do you? And perhaps we can tempt you to have some."

Doctor Forbes had appeared and Helen had disappeared, to return presently with the plank on which was laid the smoking steak with the tempting border of mashed potatoes and various vegetables.

"We must congratulate you," said Helen, as she laid the plank on the rather informally set table. "I don't suppose anyone can tempt you to meals, now that you have got the wonderful Mrs. Taylor. You certainly were lucky in these days, to get a perfect housekeeper like that. And you know she was with old Mr. Morgan twenty years—stayed till he died—and she was saying today that she expected to do the same for you."

"Why, that's very kind, I'm sure." It was then that there loomed before Doctor Andover an image of Mrs. Hildegarde Taylor, with her thin-lipped and rather acid smile, as she sat behind the coffee things at breakfast and the tea things at supper, for she was one of those housekeepers who never fail to take their places at meals with their employers.

She had sat like that before Mr. Morgan twenty years, and then he had died. How would it be to see that face for twenty years? Her coffee was clear and doubtless good, but she was sparing of the coffee, and she regarded cream as an extravagance.

Doctor Andover was wondering whether he would have to drink coffee every morning for twenty years, just like that, or whether he would have courage to ask to have it stronger—and with cream.

"She really is wonderful," Helen Forbes was going on. "I only wish I could manage the way she does. I don't suppose you could be tempted to take a little of this planked steak?" She had put quite a generous piece on the warmed plate and was passing it to him.

"But, daughter," suggested Doctor Forbes, kindly. "If Doctor Andover has had dinner, it will only be doing him an kindness in forcing more upon him."

But Doctor Andover mumbled something about "rather light supper," and for the next few minutes joined the Forbes household in the delectable task of eating a perfectly broiled planked steak.

After that, though it was sometimes a little difficult for Doctor Andover to walk right up to the front door of the Forbes house when he knew he would be met there by the disconcerting Helen Forbes, it was even more difficult to stay away. Sometimes he would definitely decide not to call. His own evening repast was early and this seemed to add to the desirability of a short after-dinner walk down College street.

But despite his decision not to stop at the Forbes house, he would stop. Sometimes he was tempted even further by the tantalizing aroma of dinner, huckleberry pie or roasted lamb or fresh aromatic coffee. Mrs. Taylor's coffee could never be smelled that way when it cooked. Doctor Andover remembered that she had once told him that the way she made it she kept all the flavor in the coffee pot and that was what made it taste so good.

It was the test of good coffee, she said, not having the smell of it escape from the pot. But Helen Forbes' coffee always smelled all the way round to the front of the house, and to Doctor Andover it was perfection in the cup.

So it happened that quite often, without exactly intending to do so, the young college president shared some of the good things that Helen had prepared for her father's dinner and always when he did there was the evidence of the greatest pleasure on the part of the hospitable old professor, who, though he may have worn his coats until they were shabby, certainly did not curtail himself on the good things of the table.

"Of course, though," said Helen once when Doctor Andover had come out with an enthusiastic bit of praise of her cookery, "if I were a perfect housekeeper like your Mrs. Taylor I could set a better table on much less money. She must be quite remarkable. Why, just today she was telling us at the missionary society that she can make a pound of coffee go two weeks and the meat bills aren't $3 a week. Of course, she said she couldn't manage that way unless she felt a real interest in you. You really were mighty lucky to get her. Really, it was quite amusing."

"Professor Partridge's wife told Mrs. Taylor that if you never married it would be her fault, and then Mrs. Taylor said that at any rate you'd never marry for a good home and a good housekeeper. I thought that was so sweet of her—"

"Yes, I am sure it was," weakly rejoined Doctor Andover. He recalled then that he had fried cornmeal for supper, although he had begged the perfect housekeeper to omit cornmeal for a few weeks. He had never liked it anyway, he said, but he didn't say what he felt, that he had been corn-mealed to death since her arrival.

Of course it was because of the economy in using cornmeal that she persisted, and Doctor Andover did eat it because he had a healthy young appetite and he had to eat something.

"But, then," continued Doctor Andover, "a man doesn't marry for a home or for a good cook. If the woman he loves happens to be a good housekeeper and all that sort of thing it is just an added blessing. I suppose."

Doctor Andover was preoccupied after that. He tried to discuss the new system of student grading with Dean Forbes, but his thoughts did not seem to collect. At a quarter to nine he rose to leave. Nine was the dean's habitual bedtime.

He bade the dean good night rather hurriedly, and then as he turned to Helen he looked very intently at her, so intently that the radiant Helen dropped her eyes. "I'm coming back at half past nine. See me alone on the veranda."

It was a rather chilly spring night to be phylandering on verandas, but there was a soft, radiant moon and Helen had swathed herself in a soft woolen scarf and was waiting when Doctor Andover returned.

"I want to talk to you—down here in the garden," he said, ascending only one step of the veranda, and Helen slowly went down to meet him.

"It's about marrying you that I want to talk, Helen," he said when they had reached the dark shelter of an old lilac hedge. "You have always been the kind of woman I'd want—a real woman, magnificent and radiant and beautiful. It's the kind of woman I've always dreamed about. But, hang it all, I don't want you to think I'm asking you because you are such a wonderful cook and housekeeper. I'd feel such a contemptible blackguard to marry a woman for a housekeeper. You know it is you, Helen, that I want? I've feared there wasn't a chance you'd have me."

It's funny how gossip goes in a little college town like that. A week later when Helen and Doctor Andover's engagement was announced there wasn't a professor's wife in town but had known it for weeks.

Helen, they said, had always been setting her cap for the new president. For a time they said it seemed as if he might have preferred Mrs. Hildegarde Taylor, in spite of the slight difference in age. And it was such a pity he didn't, for Mrs. Taylor was such a good cook—such a perfect housekeeper.

Not His.

One day as I was out in the back yard I noticed my neighbor's washing hanging so low on the line that it was dragging on the muddy ground beneath. Just as I was debating whether I should go and tell the landlady or telephone her the man of the house came out of the back door and hurried through the yard. As he reached the gate I called to him: "Hey, your clothes are dragging in the mud!" He started, blushed a rosy red, glanced down toward his feet, and then blurted out: "Wh—wh—what do you mean?"

At a Probate Court holden at Dedham in and for said County of Norfolk, on the seventh day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty.

On the petition of Louis F. Mosnicka of Weymouth in said County, praying that his name may be changed to that of Louis F. Moss public notice having been given, according to the order of Court, that all persons might appear and show cause, if any they had, why the same should not be granted, and it appearing that the reason given therefor is sufficient and consistent with public interest, and being satisfactory to the Court, and no objection being made.

It is Decreed that his name be changed, as prayed for, to that of LOUIS F. MOSS

which name he shall hereafter bear, and which shall be his legal name, that he give public notice of said change by publishing this decree once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Weymouth

THE UNION CHURCH

Weymouth and Braintree

The big motion picture feature,
"Man and His Soul", in 6 reels, will be the message especially to Men at the community program next Sunday at 7:45. It is the story of a man who lost his sense of values, who sacrificed everything and everybody to achieve power, only to find he had lost all that made life worth while.
This film teaches the lesson of our obligation to our community. There will also be one reel of "God's Handiwork—Scenic Wonders in the Canadian Rockies. Community singing with chorus choir under the leadership of Mr. Charles Ward, and orchestra under the leadership of Miss Dorothy Avery, organist. Children under 15 to come only with adults.

"Dad", is the subject of the morning sermon at 10:30. Kindergarten for young children meets at the same hour to enable parents to attend morning worship. Young Men's forum and church school at 12 noon.
The minister's class for young people at 6, subject: "The Church in England." Christian Endeavor at 6:30.

An overall and Gingham dress party will be given by the newly organized Young People's Choral and Dramatic Society of Union church on Friday evening, May 21.

A motion picture entertainment will be given by the Young Men's Forum, Friday evening, May 28; benefit of baseball equipment.

The church where there is always a Welcome waiting for You.

FIRST CHURCH

(Congregational)

ly service of prayer and praise. Sunday, May 23, is Pentecost. On that Sunday the church will begin a concentrated and united effort to deepen the Christian life of all who are interested in Jesus Christ, and to awaken such an interest in those who have not as yet manifested it.
Reserve every night of that week for the church. Come yourselves and invite others to come.

OLD SOUTH UNION CHURCH

South Weymouth

O. A. Price, pastor.

Sunday, "The Momentous Choice" will be the sermon subject. You are most heartily welcome. Come one, come all. "The tests of life are to make us, not break us." One's attitude toward the worship of God is one's response to one weekly test of life. What is your response?

A Word of Help to Women of Middle Age From Mrs. Raney.

Morse, Okla.—"When I was 45 years old Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carried me through the critical period of the Change of Life in safety. I am over 60 and have raised a family of eight children and am in fine health. My daughter and daughter-in-law recommend your Vegetable Compound and I still take it occasionally myself. You are at liberty to use my name if you wish."—Mrs. ALICE RANEY, Morse, Oklahoma.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. This good old-fashioned root and herb remedy may be relied upon to overcome the distressing symptoms which accompany it and women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (Confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Acid Stomach

Makes the Body Sour

Nine Out of Ten People Suffer From It

It sends its harmful acids and gases all over the body, instead of health and strength. Day and night this ceaseless damage goes on. No matter how strong, its victim cannot long withstand the health-destroying effects of an acid stomach.

Good news for millions of sufferers. Chemists have found a sure remedy—one that takes the acid up and carries it out of the body; of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well.

Bloating, indigestion, sour, acid, gassy stomach miseries all removed. This is proven by over half a million ailing folks who have taken EATONIC with wonderful benefits. It can be obtained from any druggist, who will cheerfully refund its trifling cost if not entirely satisfactory. Everyone should enjoy its benefits. Frequently the first tablet gives relief.

THE GREEN SMOCK

By MILDRED WHITE.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

John Gall stared from the vivid green silk spread out between them, back to his young wife's pretty face. "You don't mean," he exclaimed, "that you really intend to wear that thing, Nell, and to the Gainsworthys—of all places?"

"Why not?" Eleanor retorted, the red vexation flushed her cheeks, her dark eyes snapped at him.

"You are getting very critical of my taste it seems, John Gall."

But her husband merely touched the silk with a tentative finger provokingly humming "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning."

Eleanor's indignation returned.

"Every one is wearing smocks this season," she said, "and this green, embroidered in pearls, looks lovely with my white skirt. Who are your Gainsworthys that they should set a standard for me?"

"Mr. Gainsworthy," her husband replied, "is my employer. The one man from whom I expect advancement. You know the undisputed position his wife holds in society, and you must also know of her conservative tastes. I cannot allow my wife to make a false impression upon her first appearance in my employer's home by rigging herself out like a chorus girl."

"John," cried Eleanor sharply and now thoroughly angered, "I shall either wear that green smock to the Gainsworthys' dinner or I shall stay at home."

"Then if you take my advice," John responded heatedly, "you will stay at home."

Nell dropped on the bed when he left the room and rocked to and fro hugging her knees. Men were funny creatures, she mused. Here was her big John disapproving now of the very characteristics he had formerly admired.

"That saleswoman did hypnotize me into buying it," she admitted to herself, "or perhaps the lights were too becomingly shaded there. I must not give in to John though, and if I stay at home from the Gainsworthys' it might seem a personal slight. I will go out and make a call," decided Eleanor promptly; and suited the action to the impulse.

She dreaded the ordeal of meeting John when he returned from business. This was their first quarrel and there seemed no immediate hope of reconciliation as Nell was determined in not yielding her point.

She would not go to the Gainsworthys'. John must be made to realize that he could not make sneering remarks concerning his wife's judgment.

John should have his punishment and when he had it, then Nell would yield thereafter to his wishes. It was very hard, however, when John stalked away without good-bye. Nell thought at first that she would go to bed and cry her eyes out.

Then she considered that it might be more profitable to await his return cheerfully with the newest magazine for company.

And John entering the impressive home of his great employer was met by a shock. For one confused moment he thought that Eleanor's Irish green smock had haunted his vision, and it was with difficulty that he could clasp the fingers of his hostess and wish her a courteous "good evening." For the woman who advanced to greet him, the woman whose good opinion was courted, whose judgment in social customs was beyond reproach, was unmistakably wearing this night a smock identical with Eleanor's own. A brazen green smock embroidered in white beads. Mrs. Gainsworthy's skirt, he noticed, was of soft clinging white, and with her crown of gleaming white hair she had never looked more charming.

"So sorry that your wife was unable to come," she murmured.

"Mrs. Gall paid me a call of regret this afternoon. She is a dear little creature. I hope that we shall become better friends."

So Eleanor had not brought reflection upon him by her absence.

John Gall sighed relievedly and mingled with his relief was also remorse. How unfair he had been to her. What possessed him anyway, he impatiently reflected, that he should take this new critical attitude toward the girl whom he had considered altogether admirable. Well, he would make it up to her in future confidence.

He recalled a certain sneering reference to "chorus girl tastes," and here shaming him was conservative Mrs. Gainsworthy wearing a replica of the dress he had condemned.

Nell, at this moment was aroused from her comfortable interest in a magazine story, to answer the telephone:

"My dear Mrs. Gall," came a sweet toned voice, "this is Mrs. Gainsworthy speaking. I just could not resist letting you know of the success of our pleasant conspiracy: Your husband's face was a study, as he beheld me, clad in your own green smock. And I assure you, the wearing has been no sacrifice on my part. Men are certainly inexplicable."

"My husband, who has for years preached sobriety in dress, has paid me some pretty compliments tonight than since the days of our courtship. I am going to beg that green smock from you, Mrs. Gall. Men are queer!" Nell laughed joyously.

"And still they are dear," she said. "I wait now, happily, for John."

LIFT CORNS OFF IT DOESN'T HURT

Bill's Capacity. Prison Superintendent Rattigan was talking at Sing Sing about the capacity for strong drink possessed by convicts.

"Two convicts were talking one day," he said, "and the first remarked:

"Yes, Bill done that carpenterin' job for 'em in return for what beer he drunk while he was at work."

"I see," said the second convict. "Ordinary union rate wasn't good enough for Bill, eh?"

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article does not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited. To those who are in need of it, a prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. —Adv.

A Terrorifer. An artist was sketching from the river bank near two friends who were fishing. The artist was at one time surrounded by cows which interfered with his view, and he tried to drive them away by throwing things at them, but they would not budge. At length one of the anglers cried: "Show them your sketch, old man!" He did so, and the offenders fled.

Catarrah Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrah Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrah Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrah Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE. All Druggists & Co. Circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

How to be genial and do it naturally—ay, there's the rub.

ALEXA

By DOROTHY O. GRAVES.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Theodore, aged twenty-three, college graduate, six feet two, his near-sighted blue eyes heavily spectacled, and sur-named Thayer, accepted the instructorship in botany in an Illinois university. He arrived, a sun-baked, dust-caked young man in the town of La Salle on a torrid day with an arid prairie strocco blowing as Theodore had never dreamed a wind could blow.

He was met with a boisterous welcome by his old college chum, Dick Haskell. "Ted, such good luck for you to come! When I heard I nearly split my sides. Boston Teddy in Illinois was too much for me! But come on, there's a bath and lunch ready at home."

After his bath, Theodore sat down to the bountiful lunch and chat with Dick and Mrs. Dick. Dick kept the conversational ball bounding. "Friday night's the faculty reception, Ted. Each man takes a girl, so Molly and I chose Alexa for you."

"Dick did," laughed Molly.

"And we're having her over to tea this evening, so you can meet her," continued Dick. "Then all you have to do is to say something about the faculty reception and when her eyes brighten up you'll say, 'Won't you come as my guest?' That's easy, and Alexa is the prettiest girl in La Salle."

"I really do not care for young ladies, Richard. I have—er fully out-grown the sex, and my entire concentration I put into flowers and my work upon them."

"Never mind, Teddy, you'll get over all of that. We'll make a man of you yet."

At tea Theodore fumbled considerably and finally upset the sugar bowl. Mrs. Molly, however, tactfully turned attention away from all his blundering.

Alexa, charming as well as beautiful, fingered the teacup daintily and asked Theodore about flowers generally. Theodore answered brusquely and finally ended the conversation with the comment that he never could get anything out of talking to a girl, anyhow. Alexa was uncertain whether to be amused or miserable.

Happily Mrs. Molly came to the rescue. "Alexa, we are going to expect you to help get Ted acquainted here."

"I really must go, dear," Alexa said to Mrs. Molly, "and I've enjoyed the tea so much, but isn't Mr. Thayer rather—well—er—different?" she added in an undertone.

"You mustn't mind him, dear. He's really very nice and lots of fun when you know him. Dick and he were room-mates at college. Let's you and I help Dick make a man of him."

Alexa responded with an affectionate hug as she left, but called back, "He is different, though, Molly."

Friday came. Theodore broke a lens to his microscope and left his work early because he could not work without it. On his way homeward he passed the Drew residence. Alexa was on the lawn.

Theodore's footsteps on the cement walk ceased so suddenly that the silence fairly shrieked and the girl looked up.

"Is it you, Mr. Thayer?" she called gayly. "How are the flowers?"

Theodore, the botanist, suddenly became Teddy the young man. He vaulted the picket fence with an assurance of himself and a real boyhood.

"Alexa," he said, "I am so glad to see you."

"You have pretty hair, Alexa," said Teddy.

"You have beautiful flowers, Mr. Thayer," said Alexa.

"Oh, but the flowers, they are, er—" Theodore had come again into his own. "The flowers, my dear Miss Drew are very beautiful. Beside them, a man is but an—er, imperfect—er, attempt at—"

"But I learned at the university that flowers are but one form of evolution."

"Yes, yes, true. Some do teach that, but in life nothing is beautiful but nature, and plants are nature, flowers are plants; nothing is more beautiful than the simple little flowers."

"Yes, of course," Alexa agreed, and she tossed her pretty head. She drew her long fingers through her flowing hair, so the sun might penetrate the mass to the remotest curl. "I washed my hair," she stated.

And Teddy was ready. It was the hair that did it. He stammered: "H—honestly, Miss Alexa, I do want you to go to the reception tonight."

"It's beautiful, isn't it?" Ted asked, his eyes on the hollyhocks.

"The hollyhocks, yes," answered Alexa. "Grandmother is so fond of them."

Alexa watched him quizzically. "Your hair," blurted out Teddy.

"My hair!" exclaimed Alexa, "what of it?"

"I mean something else, something fairer than—er, flowers," Ted stammered, looking at his feet.

Alexa followed his gaze, and doubtfully asked, "I don't understand, just what do you mean?"

Teddy blushed now, and repeated parrot-like, "fairer than flowers, fairer than flowers."

"And you?" Teddy grew brazen.

"And me! What—!" "Fairer than flowers," Teddy called as he vaulted the fence. On the other side his courage returned. He called back, quite like any full-blooded youth, "I'll call for you at eight, and to himself added: "She's so natural."

Alexa laughed to herself, "Ted is so different."

Poetically Expressed Offer of Needed Assistance Touched Elderly Spinster's Romantic Heart.

After the "personally conducted" tour abroad a band of English travelers were crossing the channel home. It was very rough, and most of the ladies retired to the cabin. Only one—an elderly little spinster—stayed on deck.

As the vessel pitched and tossed, and heavy showers of spray drenched everything, a fellow tourist came to her.

"Excuse me, Miss Black, but I thought perhaps you feel the need of a strong arm to lean on—something to support you, you know."

"Oh, Mr. Binks!" sighed the lady, as she lurched toward him and landed her head on his shoulder. "How sweetly and romantically you have expressed it!"

New Test for Dyes.

The fading effect of light has been standardized and is made use of in a new invention for the testing of coloring made use of in textiles, wall paper and similar materials. A powerful lamp is made use of with specially designed electrodes consuming about 2,800 watts. Provision is made for testing about 40 samples at one time and as the samples are being exposed a portion of each is shielded for the purpose of comparison after the test.

She Came Through Clean.

Rev. Snickers—And your daughter, Mrs. Bunks—the one that was going in for nursing—how is she? Well, I hope?

Mrs. Bunks—Splendid, thank you, sir. Last we 'eard from 'er she was goin' up for 'er final contaminations.

NOVEL HOUSES OF WORSHIP

One Missionary to Eskimos Made Use of Sealskins and Another Employed Only Snow.

One of the queerest churches ever known was built by a missionary on Blacklead island, in Cumberland sound. Finding that the Eskimos had no place in which they could meet for religious services, the missionary started to build a church of the skins of seals, no wood being available. The skins were sewn together and stretched over "girders" of whalebone, empty provision tins serving as seats.

The cold at one time became so severe that for many days the Eskimos of Blacklead island were unable to procure food for themselves or for their animals. One night dogs made their way to the strange church edifice and began consuming it, with the result that when morning came there was not a skin left, the whalebone ribs alone remaining to show that there had ever been a church.

Another missionary in charge of the spiritual welfare of the Eskimo tribe, built his church entirely of snow. Seat, pulpit, altar and interior equipment, was made of snow, and in the matter of warmth no stone-built church could beat it.

Machine Handles Peanuts Properly. The operation of blanching peanut kernels is now taken care of by a machine which has a capacity of 1,000 pounds per day. It requires the services of but one operator and heretofore this work has been done by hand and one worker could not do more than from 65 to 80 pounds in the course of a day's work.

It Seems So. She—"Do you think girls that dance are all right?" He—"They must be, for the girls who don't are all left."

No Mistake. "Are you a valetudinarian?" "No; I'm an out-and-out prohibitionist."

Weymouth delegates have been in attendance this week at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Council of the Knights of Columbus in Boston, and were pleased to see Weymouth council enrolled among those making the most noteworthy gains. Weymouth council added 121.

The report of State secretary William C. Prout showed that there were 144 councils in this State and that the membership in this jurisdiction March 31, 1919, was 41,735, while on April 30, 1920, it was 61,524, a net gain of 19,789 for 13 months. The total losses during the year from suspension, withdrawals, death and all other sources was 779 as against 1526 the previous year.

NEWSPAPERS HARD HIT

The Rockland Standard in its last issue announce an increase of advertising rates, having established a minimum of 25 cents per inch. The Standard says: "On account of the tremendous increase in price of newsprint and growing scarcity of the same, we are forced to announce an increase in advertising rates to go into effect at once, beginning May 1, 1920."

In this connection 10 cent daily papers are predicted, and the Publishers Auxiliary announce that one weekly paper has advanced its subscription rate to $4 per annum, and another to $5. The publisher of the Index says:

"Now don't rear up and say things before you have given this matter a little thought. Using the old saw, 'be the war', prices, the subscription price was $1.50, which then was not enough. But, regardless of that, everything that goes into the daily expense account is from three to five times as much. We find that the average is a trifle over four times as much now as it was 'before the war', and getting no lower fast. Multiply $1.50 by 4 and you get $6. To break somewhere near even, and leave a little profit along with the 'glory', we have taken the pioneer step in putting the subscription up to a living price. You want a newspaper in this town and community that will be a credit to both. It's up to the printers to do that stunt; but in these days it requires the real money to make that fact good. If the Index is worth ONE CENT it is worth FIVE DOLLARS—'just as it stands'—a year to all concerned. All back subscriptions now on our books will be charged at the rate of $2 per year up to May 1, 1920. After that date the price starts at $5.

It is possible that the Gazette may find it necessary to increase its subscription rate to $3, and single copies to 10 cents, but certain it is that advertising rates MUST be increased. After this date the minimum rate to a new advertiser will be 25 cents per inch, and that rate applies only to displayed commercial advertising to large advertisers, or for a long time. The transient rate for store advertising will be 50 cents per inch for the first insertion. For entertainments, auctions etc., the rate for one week will be $1 per inch. The new rates will be sent upon application. All "readers" inserted in the news columns will be at the rate of 20 cents per line, with a minimum of $1. The cost of publishing newspapers has certainly doubled.

PERSONAL

Rev. Frank Kingdon, of 36 Randall street, a senior at Boston University, has been elected a member of Phi Beta Kappa Society, according to the announcement of Prof. Lyman C. Newell, president of the Boston University chapter. These elections to membership are based on scholarship the sixth of the class having the highest grade being candidates for nomination. Prof. Newell also said that the average of scholarship of this year's graduating class was higher than usual.

The new members will be initiated on Friday, May 14, after which the public exercises will be held in Jacob Sleeper hall. President Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin College will give the principal address on "Some Mere Scholars." Dean William M. Warren of the College of Liberal Arts will speak on "The Earlier and Later Days of Phi Beta Kappa."

A MERCILESS JUDGE

One Who Shows No Favor.

A merciless judge is Father Time. Before him the weak and the wanting go to the wall. Only the truth can stand. For years the following statement from a Weymouth resident has withstood the sternest of all tests. Mrs. P. J. Fryer, 56 Phillips Street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are fine for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. I have had pains in my back over my kidneys at times and I have used Doan's with fine results. Doan's Kidney Pills have been a reliable kidney remedy for us. My mother had faith in them and I remember seeing them in the home when I was a girl in Belfast, Ireland."

FOUR YEARS LATER, Mrs. Fryer said: "My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is as strong today as ever. Doan's have never failed to give me wonderful relief."

The Collection of "Slow" Telephone Accounts

THE PURPOSE OF THIS ANNOUNCEMENT is to show that it is desirable to save the time and labor that is expended in collecting bills that remain unpaid after the lapse of a reasonable period of time.

BILLS ARE DUE when rendered on the first day of each month, and while most telephone accounts are paid promptly, there are a number of "slow" accounts that require labor, time and expense that might better be devoted to other work that is more directly in the interest of the public's telephone service.

WE BELIEVE that this method of bringing the matter to the attention of the public, this frank and open discussion of our aims, is all that is necessary to secure proper understanding and co-operation.

Pleasant Street to Have Evening Service

Weymouth people appreciate the return of the electric cars, and the patronage is heavy. Some of the conductors are turning in $70 to $80 per day which should soon put our car lines on a paying basis.

This week some of the old crews are back on the Weymouth cars, as they should be. By experience they are better qualified to serve the travelling public. But several conductors and motormen are at Quincy, Lynn, Brockton and elsewhere.

There has been dissatisfaction with the bus service on Pleasant street, largely because there were no evening trips. But the service was only temporary, while the committee were working out a schedule. This will be corrected, as there will be evening service on and after Sunday, both on week days and Sundays.

The tentative schedule for week days is as follows:

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Revolution in Mexico Puts an End to the Regime of President Carranza.

OBREGON MAY SUCCEED HIM

Lodge to Be "Keynote" for Republican Convention—Hitchcock's Attack on Knox Peace Resolution—Senator France Offers Himself as G. O. P. Dark Horse.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

At this writing it seems certain that the reign of Carranza in Mexico has come to an end. Success has crowned the efforts of the leaders of the revolt which, in the words of General Obregon, "was necessary to liberate the country from a regime which was breaking down the intellectual and material life of the people and which was violating laws." Abandoning his capital, the president sought to reach the coast in the vicinity of Vera Cruz, his probable intention being to take ship for Europe with government funds amounting to about $13,500,000. His trains were stopped short of Apizaco, but he and his followers made their way some thirty-five miles further, into the state of Puebla. There they were surrounded by the rebel forces, and at last reports were fighting desperately. The revolutionists were determined to capture the president and those commanders who remained loyal to him, and the escape of the fugitives appeared impossible. General Trevino, one of the leaders of the revolt, hurried to the scene for the purpose of protecting the life of Carranza, for he and his conferees desire as little blood-letting as may be. It was reported that the rebels already had captured Carranza's treasure.

In other parts of the republic opposition to the revolution ceased and the troops and towns quietly give in their adherence to the new regime. General de la Huerta, the provisional president, was busy establishing a temporary government and the federal legislative and judicial authorities were urged to continue in the performance of their duties, being assured of protection.

The rebel leaders hope it will be possible to hold an election late in July in accordance with the Mexican law, and it is believed that at that time General Obregon will be chosen head of the republic, as he is considered the real head of the revolution. There are other candidates, however, and all of them seem desirous that the people be permitted to name their choice.

The government at Washington is alert and all necessary steps have been taken to protect American lives and interests, but it is not thought now that the warships and marines sent south will be called on for any action. The United States presumably will deal with the revolutionists as the de facto government, but it was stated in Washington that until Carranza was captured or escaped from the country he must still be technically considered to be the president. A number of loyal commanders and many other refugees have been permitted by the rebel authorities and the United States to cross the border into Texas. There is talk among them of organizing a counter-revolution, and of alleged dissension among the leaders of the rebellion, but all this is to be taken with reservation.

The Republican national committee accepted President Wilson's challenge as to making the treaty and league covenant an issue of the campaign, by selecting Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, formulator of the famous reservations, to act as temporary chairman of the national convention in Chicago. His "keynote" speech of course will give full prominence to the treaty issues from the point of view of himself and the Republicans who believe with him that the pact must be "Americanized" before it is ratified. Some of the committee members had been in favor of giving the honor to former Senator Beveridge of Indiana, but when the president's letter to an Oregon Democrat was made public there seemed to be no further question as to who should be elected. The committee as a whole will be pleased if the convention makes Mr. Beveridge the permanent chairman, though Chairman Hays has suggested that Charles E. Hughes would be a fine compromise candidate. The progressives do not like this idea, and neither do the "irreconcilables."

Mr. Wilson's Oregon letter was taken by some as a covert attack on Senator Chamberlain, who is a candidate for re-election, and it roused Senator Thomas of Colorado, a Democratic insurgent, to vigorous protest in the senate. He paid warm tribute to Chamberlain and then issued this solemn warning:

"If the Democratic party in its convention at San Francisco next month declares for unconditional ratification of this treaty, it will do so because it has determined that it does not care to live any longer and accepts that means for certain dissolution."

This incident occurred during debate on the Knox peace resolution, which was to be voted on within a few days. Senator Hitchcock made a prepared speech against the measure in which he denounced it as futile, inconsistent and inimical to the treaty of Versailles. Denying that congress has power to make peace, he admitted the truth of Knox's argument that the war actually is at an end, and asked:

"Then why this resolution? Hostilities ceased 18 months ago, our army promptly was demobilized and reduced to a peace basis. Since that time commerce has been resumed. We have sold hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of products to Germany and purchased much from her."

"The war which the senator from Pennsylvania proposes to end by this resolution does not, by his own admission, exist. His able argument and historical citations prove that it ended many months ago. What, then, is the senator from Pennsylvania attempting to do by this measure, which he calls a resolution to terminate the war? He is making an utterly futile and hopeless attempt to make a peace settlement with Germany to take the place of the Versailles treaty."

Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, also attacked the resolution, asserting that it means not only deserting our allies, but also deserting and condemning our cause. He declared, also, that the war has not been won, and that through the president's "influence and pressure the German armies were saved from utter annihilation or unconditional surrender."

William J. Bryan, down in Florida, had his say about the president's renewed determination to make the treaty a campaign issue. He urged immediate ratification of the treaty with such reservations as have been agreed upon, leaving the nation to secure afterward in the league any changes deemed necessary. Of Mr. Wilson he said: "Broken down in health by the weight of cares and anxieties such as have fallen to no other occupant of that high office, the chief executive has been denied the information essential to sound judgment and safe leadership."

Each party now has a candidate for the presidential nomination who avowedly favors so liberal enforcement of the prohibition amendment that the sale and use of light wines and beers will be permitted. Governor Edwards' campaign among the Democrats is well under way and now Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland has made his entry into the Republican race. In his announcement the senator says:

"I believe in a referendum to the people on the question of whether the eighteenth amendment should be enforced in such a way as to prevent the distribution of light wines and beer as other commodities are distributed. Such a referendum, whatever the outcome, would go far toward allaying national unrest."

"If a situation shall arise at the convention in Chicago in which there is a deadlock and it is found necessary to turn to some candidate whose name has not heretofore been considered, I have been assured by many friends that the principles for which I stand are such as to make me the logical choice of the convention."

The wets in the ranks of the Democratic party have been counting noses and assert they will have enough delegate votes in the San Francisco convention to force the adoption of a plank embodying their views of prohibition. This may be true, but there is no doubt that the leaders of both parties will use every endeavor to have the question ignored in the platforms.

While on the subject of politics, it is necessary to make some mention of the doings of the Socialist convention in New York. It wound up by nominating Eugene V. Debs for the presidency—which has grown into a habit—despite the fact that Mr. Debs is serving time for violating the espionage act. In its earlier sessions the convention fought over the radical declaration of principles submitted by the Illinois delegation, providing for the "dictatorship of the proletariat" and limitation of citizenship. Morris Hillquit and his "conservative" followers beat this plan by a large majority. The same faction compelled the eradication of an offensive reference to churches from the party platform.

Not only Kiev, but also Odessa, the Black Sea port, fell into the possession of the Poles and Ukrainians who are fighting to free the Ukraine from the Russian bolsheviks. The latter, however, have organized strong lines of resistance east of Kiev and assert that they expect the war with Poland to continue for years. It is understood that the convention signed by Poland and Ukraine just before the present drive opened provides for a Polish outlet to the Black sea, which has been one of Poland's national ambitions for centuries. Poland agrees to give Ukrainian military support for ten years. Recent dispatches indicate that Roumania is seeking an alliance with Poland against Russia. Europe was puzzled by the silence, throughout the week, of the soviet wireless station at Moscow, and there were conjectures that the co-operative societies might have engineered a rising against the bolsheviks.

The French government astounded the radicals of that country by suddenly ordering the dissolution of the General Federation of Labor, which has been supporting the strike of railway men by calling other strikes. The minister of justice issued judicial information against the leaders of the organization, and the minister of war distributed troops through the city to prevent disorders. Premier Millerand emphatically refused to compromise with the labor leaders and the latter declared the government's action would not stop their activities.

In Italy the socialists, with the aid of the popular party, succeeded in overthrowing the ministry, and Prime Minister Nitti and his colleagues resigned. Nitti had been in power nearly a year, but had been the object of innumerable bitter attacks from both the Catholics and the socialists.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels spent several days with the senate committee that is investigating Admiral Sims' charges against the navy department. In the course of his testimony he revealed the secret instructions given naval officers by President Wilson when they started for European waters. These were to the effect that they must maintain the American tradition of audacity "to the utmost point of risk and daring," and he added that the British had been too cautious to make full use of their naval supremacy against the Germans. This latter point was emphasized in a confidential cablegram from the president to Sims, which the secretary read. Mr. Daniels contradicted many of the assertions made by the admiral, and said the latter aspired to become a member of the British admiralty and put his personal ambition before his duty to his country, his superiors and his associates.

In the death of William Dean Howells, which was the result of influenza, the dean of American letters passed. He was generally ranked as the foremost novelist of this country, and his essays and criticisms were among the best.

PROTECTING THE REICHSTAG BUILDING IN BERLIN

Some guards and safety police with machine guns and grenades posted about the reichstag building in Berlin to protect it from revolutionaries.

Frugality.

Frugality has ever been esteemed a virtue as well among pagans as Christians; there have been even heroes who practiced it. However, we must acknowledge that it is too modest a virtue, or, if you will, too obscure a one to be essential to heroism; few heroes have been able to attain to such a height. Frugality agrees much better with politics; it seems to be the base, the support, and, in a word, the inseparable companion of a just administration.—Oliver Goldsmith.

Essay on Geese.

The following composition on geese was written, according to Capper's Weekly, by a schoolboy in St. Louis: "Geese is a heavy-set bird with a head on one side and a tail on the other. His feet is set so far back on his running gear that they nearly miss his body. Some geese is ganders and has a curl in his tail. Ganders don't lay or set. They just eat, loaf and go swimming. If I had to be a geese, I would rather be a gander. Geese do not give milk, but give eggs, but for me, give me liberty or give me death."

Ignorance.

When complaints are made—often not altogether without reason—of the prevailing ignorance of facts on such and such subjects, it will often be found that the parties censured though possessing less knowledge than is desirable, yet possess more than they know what to do with. Their deficiency in arranging and applying their knowledge in combining facts and correctly deducing and rightly employing general principles will be perhaps greater than their ignorance of facts.—Richard Whately.

LOCK YOUR AUTO FOR PROTECTION

Carelessness on the Part of Owners Is Direct Cause of Cars Being Stolen.

Others Leave Machines Standing at Curb With Everything in Starting Position—Several Ways of Guarding Against Theft.

A great many cars are stolen due to the carelessness of the owners. Some owners will leave a car standing for several minutes unwatched and with the motor running. A passing thief can jump in and be far away before the owner can begin pursuit. Other owners leave cars standing at the curb with everything in starting position.

Cars Provided With Keys. All cars are provided with keys to be removed from the ignition system which will prevent the motor from being started unless a similar key is used or the ignition wires are tampered with. But such duplicate keys can be easily obtained.

In some of the modern types of motors, with the popular distributor system of ignition, the removal of the rotor from the box will usually prove effective. The possible thief might not have a similar one in his pocket; in fact, he would be very unlikely to have. This part is shown by the arrow in the first illustration.

Thieves Work Together. Two enterprising thieves working together sometimes tow a car away as shown in the second sketch. A heavy chain with a large brass lock (Iron is too easily cracked) is good protection against such efforts. Chain the front wheel to the axle or fender brace.

The type of car which uses coils in the ignition can be pretty well protected by the removal of two or more coil units. A coil usually weighs a couple of pounds and it is not likely that the enterprising crook would have over five or six of these concealed about his person.—W. V. Relma in Farm and Field.

DON'T TRY THIS TRICK.

Another has been added to the time-tried methods of self-extinction—one where the simple minded individual blew out the gas and the other where the curious party looked down the barrel of a shotgun to see if it was loaded.

The third method is where the forgetful or ignorant motor car owner goes into his garage, carefully shuts the door, closes the windows, and then starts his engine. As a method of suicide, it is perfect, being quick, painless and effective.

This would be a good subject for a striking poster to be tacked up in the garage as a constant reminder to the owner. Probably most motorists know the danger now, but some do not, and the others may forget. One lapse of memory is sufficient.

HANDY TOOL BOX FOR GARAGE

Man Who Does Much Work at Home Can Arrange Two-Shelf Receptacle for Articles.

A useful tool box for the man who does much work about his garage may be made by constructing a two-shelf box, each shelf being V-shaped, so that the tools will not roll off. The shelves should be six or eight inches apart, so that free access is permitted.

TROUBLE FOUND IN AMMETER

High or Low Rate of Discharge Shows That Battery Is Not Getting Proper Current.

When the ammeter shows a rate of charge or discharge very much higher than usual it may be accepted as an indication that there is a cross somewhere, so that the battery is not getting the current intended for it.

REPAIRING TEAR IN CAR TOP

Use Woolen Yarn to Draw Edges Together, After Which Apply Material With Cement.

To mend a tear in the top it is best to use woolen yarn to draw the edges together, after which a top material similar to that of the top is applied with rubber cement, set by the vulcanizer.

AUTOMOBILE PAINTS

One of the best rules for keeping a car out of the repair shop is the proper use of lubricants.

It is claimed for the new multiblade fans that they double the volume of air passing through the radiator, keeping the engine cooler in summer.

What, asks Motor Age, has become of the old fashioned motorist who wiped his feet before getting into his car?

American motor cars sell in Venezuela at prices ranging from 50 to 100 per cent more than the prices asked in the United States.

It is advisable to clean and readjust the spark plug occasionally. The points wear away gradually and if not readjusted, cause irregular firing.

ILLUSTRATION OF TRAFFIC CONDITIONS

A novelty which illustrates perfectly traffic conditions at the time of accidents has been put into use in the police court of Washington with great success. The invention is the product of a member of the Washington police department. Every type of vehicle is represented in the models, and the "set up" gives a better idea of what happened in an accident than words alone can convey.

LUBRICANT FOR DOOR HINGES

Linseed Oil Mixed With Small Amount of Graphite Is Recommended—Avoid Cylinder Oil.

Linseed oil mixed with a small amount of graphite is recommended as a lubricant for door hinges and latches, which seldom receive attention in this way. Ordinary cylinder oil has a tendency to run, which is not desirable at this location, because the clothes of passengers are likely to come in contact with it.

Tightening Bearing Caps. In removing play from rod bearings by reducing shim thickness, great care should be exercised to get each rod bearing as free as every other bearing.

Don't forget the speedometer drive. This hard working part needs a little lubrication, a few drops of oil once a week.

Strong soapsuds made from automobile soap and rubbed on the glass of the windshield and allowed to dry will prevent fog or rain from obscuring the vision through the glass.

Bumping into curbs, hitting bumps in the road, turning out into gutters, and similar strains, shocks and jolts are very likely to cause misalignment or wobbling of wheels or both.

When there is an escape back past the piston rings of hot gases the crank case inevitably gets warm. On the other hand, if the escape is past the valves this condition is not found.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

On talking to Dort owners you will find that they not only speak enthusiastically regarding the economy of the Dort in gasoline, oil, and tires, and the ease with which it rides, but they refer repeatedly to the advantages that accrue to them as a result of the remarkable simplicity and accessibility of Dort construction.

The KaCays went down to defeat before the Harbor Views of Hingham last Saturday afternoon in a heartbreaking 10-inning contest. The feature of the game was the superb pitching of Connie Condrick who was in the points for the KaCays, having 15 strikeouts to his credit. The infield work was also classy, some remarkable plays being made. Condrick had the Hinghamites eating out of his hand with the score 2 to 0 until the ninth inning, when his support wobbled, enabling the opposition to tie up the score. They got one more run in the 10th inning ending the game by the score of 3 to 2.

The fourth degree will be exemplified at Hotel Somerset, Boston, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The third degree will be exemplified in Odd Fellows hall, Friday evening, May 28, at 8 o'clock and there will be a special meeting on Thursday evening, May 27. All the candidates are requested to be present.

The seventeenth anniversary of Weymouth Council will be fittingly observed Tuesday evening, May 25. All the members are asked to have their wives or mothers make a cake for the occasion and to send it to the hall in Commercial square on Tuesday afternoon if possible. D. G. K. Coughlin is chairman of the anniversary committee.

An Early Layer

L. S. Files of the Luaben Farm has hatched the editor of the Gazette a product of his farm which he feels establishes a new record. It is a little brown egg, while not very large, measuring only about 1½ by an inch, but the fact it was laid by a pullet that was only hatched last January. A Rhode Island Red pullet hatched on Jan. 16, when only 4 months and 4 days old, laid this egg on May 20.

—Last Friday evening Miss Nellie Carter was given a surprise shower at the home of Mrs. Alfred Nash on Sanders street. Guests were present from Boston, Quincy and the Weymouths.

GALLAGHER—HACKETT

Monday, May 17, Evelyn Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hackett of Rosemont road, and William Patrick Gallagher, son of Harry Gallagher of Beach street, Quincy, were united in marriage. The ceremony took place at St. Jerome's church at 8 A. M. and was performed by Rev. Fr. Riordan. The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin with trimmings of Irish lace veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried white sweet peas. Her attendant was her sister, Miss Irene Hackett, whose dress was of turquoise blue taffeta with silver trimmings and large blue and rose hat. Walter and Joseph Hackett, brothers of the bride, and John and James Gallagher were ushers. At two o'clock a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Rosemont road and was attended by guests from Quincy, Milton, Braintree and the Weymouths. Soon after the reception the couple departed for a wedding trip to New York.

During the reception violin solos were rendered by Miss Lillian Dunn of North Weymouth and vocal selection by Rev. Fr. Dawson, who with Mrs. Cuddihy and Malone of St. Joseph's church, Quincy, were honored guests.

Miss Hackett is well known in North Weymouth, having graduated from the Athens school and later from Weymouth High. She entered the employ of the Fore River works during the war and has retained the position since that time. Mr. Gallagher is employed as a salesman for John Gallagher of Quincy.

Many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silver etc., testified to the popularity of the young couple.

EXPENDITURES OF SALVATION ARMY SHOW $13,257,552

Commander Evangeline Booth Makes Public Annual Home Service Fund Accounting.

EXPANSION OF WORK IN ALL DEPARTMENTS NOTED

Popular Organization's Budget for 1920 Totals $10,000,000—Details of Figures for 1919 and 1920.

New York, April 12.—Expansion and advancement in every department of Salvation Army work as a result of the 1919 Home Service Fund are shown in a full accounting of that fund just made public by Commander Evangeline Booth at the National Headquarters of the organization here. The financial statement, which is of January 31, 1920, shows total expenditures throughout the country up to and including that date of $13,257,552, with a remainder on hand for the four months to May 31, of $910,140.

Details of the statement disclose that the sum of $1,441,185 was expended up to January 31, for the maintenance of 939 corps and outposts in all parts of the United States. This item includes rentals of halls and their maintenance, salaries of 1,800 officers, the expenses of work for children and young people, the cost of all local relief work of whatever nature, and such incidental expenditures as postage, printing, stationery and the like.

In the period covered by the report the sum of $1,688,429 was expended by thirty-four provincial and divisional headquarters for fresh-air farms and camps, comprehensive relief work of a special nature amongst the poor, the sick and the distressed. These headquarters are charged with the oversight and direction of all corps and similar activities in their jurisdiction as well as the extension of Salvation Army effort to unoccupied fields and localities. Hence, this item includes also salaries of executive officers, of clerical and other employees, necessary traveling expenses, postage, the cost of advertising, publicity and a portion of the expenditures incidental to the organization of the financial campaigns.

Details of Expenditures. Other items detailed in the report include the sum of $621,069, representing administrative and other expenses borne by National Headquarters in New York and Territorial Headquarters in Chicago; $187,309 representing the cost of operating and maintaining 25 rescue homes and maternity hospitals, a general hospital and one for children, 3 children's homes and 11 slum settlements and nurseries; and $400,000 apportioned according to the 1919 budget for the pension fund for aged or disabled officers.

Most significant, as indicating the remarkable advancement made by the Salvationists during the past year as a result of the 1919 Fund contributed by the country, are the lifting of mortgages to the amount of $1,881,193 and the outlay of $7,038,834 for new buildings and additions, making a total of $8,919,528.

Hitherto demands upon the Salvation Army's efforts have been so much greater than its income that it has labored under a tremendous indebtedness, its officers have been reduced to part pay year after year, and the organization has been handicapped in its operations.

Not All Mortgages Liquidated. Only a part of the mortgage indebtedness was paid off last year, however; the increased demands upon the Army everywhere in the country being so great that increased and new facilities for hospitals, rescue homes and other Army institutions called for the outlay of more than $7,000,000. Army officers hope that the response to the 1920 Home Service Appeal will be such as to permit of the wiping out of much of the remaining mortgage indebtedness, provide for the maintenance of the organization's established activities and make urgently needed extensions and development possible.

The 1919 balance sheet shows the following:

	Expenditure To Jan. 31.	Reserve To May 31.
For support of corps activities	$1,441,185.15	$447,235.48
Maintenance of 34 provincial & divisional hqrs.	1,688,429.62	297,132.93
Maintenance of national & territorial hqrs.	621,069.97	63,474.09
Maintenance of institutions for women and children	187,309.75	102,297.09
Pension fund	400,000.00
Mortgages and properties	8,919,528.42
Total expenditures for eight months	13,257,552.91	910,140.59
Reserve for four months	910,140.59
Grand total (amount contributed in 1919)	14,167,693.50

The Army's 1920 budget, asking for $10,000,000, calls for $4,000,000 to carry on its evangelistic and relief work in 1,000 separate centers; $3,000,000 for relief work among the poor, sick and unfortunate, work for mothers and children, and other social work under provincial and divisional headquarters; $250,000 for the maintenance of national and territorial headquarters; $400,000 for rescue homes, nurseries, hospitals, slum posts and other institutions for women and children; $150,000 for the retired officers' pension fund, and $2,200,000 for the liquidation of mortgages and the acquiring of new properties made necessary by the Army's 1920 expansion program.

—In a double-header played Saturday afternoon at the Lovell's Corner playground, the first team of the Porter A. A. was defeated by the second team 4 to 2 and 12 to 3. McKenna the discarded pitcher of the first team, held his former team-mates to two hits and one pass, also striking out eight, the first hit being a two-bagger by Morse in the 7th. The second team got four runs in the 2d and 3d innings, knocking Newcomb from the box, who was replaced by French, who held them runless for the remainder of the game.

In the second game, after changing their lineup, the first team knocked McKenna from the box, getting three runs, but were held safely afterwards by Able. The second team, by hard hitting, assisted by errors and wild throws gathered 11 runs in seven innings, the massacre being called off then, because the second team got tired running around the bases. French and Morse starred for the first team, and McKenna, Able and Ross, who hit safely 8 out of 9 chances at bat, for the second team. Batteries in first game, First team, S. Newcomb, French and Manuel. Second team McKenna, V. Tirrell. Batteries in second game, first team Martin, Morse and Jerpi. Second team McKenna, Able and Rago. Umpire "Dutch" Leonard.

SUGAR LAW EVADED

Already the new sugar law is being evaded. One large Boston concern has placards in its stores informing all persons who wish to purchase sugar that they may obtain sugar by going to a building in the Back Bay. If the persons live in the North, South or West Ends, or downtown section of Boston, they either have a long walk, or pay 10 cents carfare to get to this building.

Other grocers are selling sugar to known customers. Strangers in these stores, when they ask for sugar, are told that "we are not selling any today" or "we have none for sale," or "we have run out of sugar."

On the other hand many of the grocers are selling sugar to any one who comes into the store and asks for it, as long as the available supply lasts.

NO SPHINXES FOR HIM.

"I want to keep talking," said Senator Sorghum, "at least enough to prevent any general reference to me as a sphinx."

"But such references imply a certain degree of compliment."

"I don't think so. The sphinx is made up of such contradictory elements that he can't be classified, and the only remark I ever heard attributed to one was largely in the nature of a joke."

Candidly Defined.

"What is your idea of a free government?"

"A free government," said the bolshevist, "is one that offers no opposition to our efforts to kick it to pieces and start something under our exclusive control."

Something Learned.

"Has the government taught you anything about railroad?"

"Yes," replied the old-time railroad manager. "It has taught us that the traveling public can be made more docile and forbearing than we had imagined in our fondest hopes."

A GREAT HEAD.

1st Carrot—Bright chap, isn't he?

2nd Carrot—Yes, that's Mr. Cabbage. He has a great head on him.

Unkind Suggestion.

The swan sings but one song—or so On good authority we've heard. Oh, how we wish some folks we know Would imitate that gentle bird.

Explaining a Difference.

"You have made more promises than you may be able to fulfill."

"What you call promises," replied Senator Sorghum, "are more in the nature of prophecies; and no man can be expected to guarantee a prophecy."

Hopefulness.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "you were talking about a twenty to one shot when I came into your office today."

"Was I?"

"Yes, and I was very much pleased. I hope you will cultivate enough interest in marksmanship to take your mind off horse racing."

A Concept of Duty.

There are at the present day but too many who imagine they have perfectly done their duty, because they are kind toward their friends, affectionate to their families, inoffensive toward the rest of the world.—Mansini.

Good to Be Done.

That which is good to be done, cannot be done too soon; and if it is neglected to be done early, it will frequently happen that it will not be done at all.—Bishop Mant.

The Wise Man.

He is the wisest man who would have the least to do with the multitude.... It is not for the wise man to be much affected by the censures of the rude and unskillful vulgar, but, to hold fast unto his own well-chosen and well-fixed resolutions; every fool knows what is wont to be done; but what is best to be done, is known only to the wise.—Joseph Hall.

SALADS, SOME OLD, SOME NEW.

For any other meat except breakfast salads are a welcome part of any menu.

Vegetable Salad.

Chop four large cucumbers, one small onion and two tablespoonfuls of parsley, mix well, with mayonnaise and stuff tomatoes with the mixture thus prepared.

Brunswick Salad.—To one and one-half cups of finely cut celery add one cupful of shredded cabbage and one cupful of nut meats. Moisten with Boiled Dressing.—Beat into the yolks of seven eggs four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, then add one-half cupful of melted butter, the juice of one lemon, three teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half cupful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of sugar mixed with one-half teaspoonful of mustard. Cook all together until mixture coats the spoon.

Potato Salad.—Slice all of the following ingredients thin: Three small cucumbers, three stalks of celery, ten small boiled potatoes, four hard cooked eggs. Arrange in layers, sprinkling each layer with minced onion. Pour over the above boiled dressing and let stand to season.

Pineapple Salad.—Mix pineapple, diced, with equal parts of diced celery and half the quantity of blanched and shredded almonds. Serve in nests of head lettuce with mayonnaise dressing served in the shell of a small pineapple, garnished with perfect leaves taken from the top.

Cheese Balls.—Take Neufchatel or any cream cheese, add cream, chopped chives and blanched almonds with a little chopped pepper. Make into small balls, arrange on lettuce and serve with boiled dressing or mayonnaise.

Berkshire Salad.—Mix two cupfuls of cold rice potatoes with one cupful of peach meats cut in bits. Marinate with French dressing and serve in a mound of watercress and garnish with halves of pecans.

Serve overlapping slices of tomato and cucumber, sprinkled with chopped onion. Serve with French dressing.

If you can't get to be uncommon through going straight you'll never get to do it through being crooked.—Dickens.

GOOD THINGS FOR NICE OCCASIONS.

Take a fillet of beef, trim it neatly and lay in a deep dish with an onion cut in slices, two bay leaves, a sprig of parsley, whole pepper and salt, and olive oil to taste. Let the fillet lie in this marinade for six hours, turning occasionally, then roast in a hot oven; let it be rather underdone. Serve surrounded by macaroni cooked as follows:

Put into a saucepan a half-cupful of tomato puree, three tablespoonfuls of butter and two or three tablespoonfuls of the meat gravy; season well with pepper and salt to taste. Bring to the boiling point and simmer for a few minutes, then add a little at a time, some previously-cooked macaroni. Toss all gently and mix in at the last, three teaspoonfuls of Parmesan cheese.

Spinach With Cream.—Wash three pounds of spinach and put it in a large saucepan; cook over the heat, stirring occasionally 12 minutes, then put through a fine sieve, saving all the liquor; add four tablespoonfuls of butter and pepper and salt to taste; cook slowly for 15 minutes, then add three tablespoonfuls of cream; mix well and pile in the center of a dish with fried croquettes surrounding the spinach.

Poppy Seed Wafers.—Take two cupfuls of milk, two eggs, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, three-fourths of a cup of sugar, one-fourth of a pound of poppy seeds, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a little salt and flour to roll out. Roll very thin, cut with a cookie cutter and bake in a hot oven.

Crème de Marrons.—Take half a pound of large chestnuts, cut a cross on each, and boil them in plenty of water till the outer and inner skins can be easily removed. Then pound them in a mortar, and pass through a fine sieve into a dish, adding a few drops of milk to soften the mixture. Next, beat the yolks of three eggs with one-half cupful of cream and the same of milk; sweeten with one-quarter of a cupful of sugar, add a few drops of vanilla and strain the mixture into a double boiler. Stir the mixture over the fire until it thickens, then add a little less than half an ounce of gelatin, which has been soaked in a little cold water and dissolved over the heat. Pour this custard gradually onto the chestnut puree, mixing well, then pour into a hollow mold. When ready to serve unmold and fill the center with a half-cupful of whipped cream colored with a bit of pink sugar.

Coconut Soup.—Put the meat of half a coconut from which the brown skin has been carefully peeled through a meat chopper two or three times until fine and smooth. Cook gently one hour in one quart of white stock. Thicken with one tablespoonful of rice flour. Add one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of soy, one quarter of a cupful of sour orange juice, a speck of cayenne and nutmeg, with salt to taste. Boil ten minutes. Soft boiled rice may be used in place of the rice flour. Put it through a fine sieve.

If this whole world followed you—
Followed to the letter—
Would it be a nobler world,
All deceit and falsehood hurled
From it altogether;
Malice, selfishness and lust
Banished from beneath the crust
Covering hearts from view?
Tell me, if it followed you
Would the world be better?

OUR DAILY FOOD.

Here is a fruit soup that someone who is fond of such soups may desire to try:

Prune Soup.

Wash and soak one pound of prunes in three pints of cold water overnight. In the morning heat slowly and add one lemon sliced very thin, and one stick of cinnamon; cook below the simmering point until the prunes are tender but unbroken. Add water if needed, as there should be three pints when done; add three tablespoonfuls of sugar, a pinch of salt and sufficient sugar to sweeten. Cook until the soup is transparent. Remove the cinnamon, add two-thirds of a cupful of orange juice, reheat and serve at once.

Quick Coffee Cake.—Sift together one pint of flour, one-third of a cupful of sugar, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful each of salt and cinnamon. Mix to a soft dough with half a cupful of milk stirred into a beaten egg. Add four tablespoonfuls of softened butter. Spread the mixture in a shallow pan and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Add raisins if desired. Bake in a moderate oven and serve with coffee.

Creamed Liver.—Take calf's liver left from a previous meal, chop it and add to a cream sauce. Arrange thin slices of toasted bread with a slice of cooked bacon on each; pour over the creamed liver and serve.

Baked Squabs.—Cut five squabs into four pieces each and flatten lightly by pounding. Put the livers to cook in a little salted water. Season each piece of squab with salt and pepper. Line a baking dish with chopped ham, sprinkle with chopped chives, place a layer of squabs, then a layer of hard cooked eggs, a sprinkling of ham chives and another layer of squabs. Crush the livers, mix with one tablespoonful each of flour and butter, add a pint of chicken or veal stock and pour over the squabs. Cover with oiled paper and bake one hour.

Who bears another's burden will find from day to day
His own is always lightened or lifted quite away.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE INVALID.

If ever pains should be taken to serve daintily and garnish dishes appropriately, it is when serving an invalid. Small portions of food of the right temperature on our prettiest china served with the cook's best skill will make the food appetizing.

Beef-Tea Jelly.—Cover with cold water one-third of a box of gelatin; let stand one hour then pour over two cupfuls of boiling beef tea, season to taste and set aside to cool in small cups. Serve with toasted crackers.

Calf's-Foot Broth.—Cut up two calf's feet and put them into a saucepan with two quarts of water, a carrot, a few pieces of celery or leaves, salt and mace to season. Simmer for three hours slowly until half of the liquor is cooked away; strain and add more seasoning if needed.

Barley Water.—Take four tablespoonfuls of pearl barley, well washed add three cupfuls of water, boil for 25 minutes; sweeten and flavor to taste.

Oatmeal Gruel.—Take four tablespoonfuls of oatmeal mixed with half a cupful of water, cold. Put a pint of water in a saucepan with a pinch of salt. When boiling stir in the oatmeal; boil slowly for 20 minutes, strain and serve.

Egg Gruel.—Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, then add one cupful of fresh barley gruel; allow it to stand over the heat without boiling, then add such seasoning as desired. Turn into a mold and serve cold with cream.

Chicken Puree.—Take the white meat from the breast of a chicken which has been roasted; add a tablespoonful of bread crumbs. Pound the bread and meat, mixing with a little broth to moisten to the consistency of cream, season to taste, heat and serve in small bouillon cups.

Blanc-Mange.—Add three tablespoonfuls of gelatin to a quart of new milk; boil until all is dissolved, then pour in a cupful of cream; add sugar and flavoring to taste, nutmeg or lemon if desired, pour into a mold and set on ice to cool.

Nuts and chopped fruit stirred into fondant, with colored layers of different flavors packed together in small buttered tins, may be cut in slices, making a most attractive and delicious nougat.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

INTERPRETING SCOUT OATH

There is something about that scout oath and law of ours that puts the iron in the blood and the steel into the soul, says Richard Brauerstein of Sharon, Conn.

Just think what the result will be when every boy of scout age in the land begins to interpret that oath and law in his daily life, his walk and talk. We will be giving the world what Professor James calls "the moral equivalent of war."

This learned man said, "The martial character can be bred without war." He tells us that the military ideals of hardihood and discipline can be imbued into the life of young America, by conscripting every man into the struggle with nature.

"To coal and iron mines, to freight trains, to fishing fleets in December, to road building and stoke holes and to the frames of skyscrapers would our gilded youth be drafted to get the childishness knocked out of them and to come back to society with healthier sympathies and soberer ideas."

It was Tennyson who wrote, "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war." And in that oath and law of ours I see potentialities, sublimities, majesties, achievements.

SCOUT SMILE HIS UNIFORM.

"A scout has two uniforms. One he seldom dons," writes Colin H. Livingstone, president of the Boy Scouts of America. "The other he oftentimes dons. The first is a clean and smiling face, the evidence of a clear conscience and a healthy body, a wonderful invitation to everyone around to look and be happy and cheerfully to do their bit. This smile is subtle and far-reaching in its influence."

"It is a sign of self-conquest, an emblem of leadership, compelling attention in its radiation of cheerfulness. Scouts, this uniform of yours is not made in a loom, but made in the heart and worn to make the world brighter and better and worn to show everyone that in your mind and life there is hope, happiness, kindness and the courage to look, to say and to act the pledges you made at the moment you promised to be a scout, to be a leader."

"Go forth, Scouts, with this smile, to win for your plan of life others who will smile with you. Never take off the uniform of the smile."

"IT CANNOT BE DONE."

Somebody said "it couldn't be done." But the scout, with a chuckle, replied "That maybe it couldn't but he would be one."

Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried. So he buckled right in, with a trace of a grin. And he started to sing as he tackled the thing That couldn't be done, and he did it.

Somebody scoffed, "Oh, you'll never do that; At least no one ever has done it." The scout took his coat off and took off his hat.

And the first thing we know he'd begun it. With the lift of his chin and a bit of a grin.

He started to sing as he tackled the thing That couldn't be done, and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done; There are thousands to prophesy failure; There are thousands to give you the list one by one Of dangers that wait to assail you. But take off your coat and go to it; Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing That cannot be done and you'll do it. —J. SCOTT CASE.

SCOUT WINS AUSTRIAN FLAG.

The announcement of prize winners in the army essay contest was made by the army board of adjudication in the New York district, which has selected the prize essays from among those submitted by boy scouts.

Walter A. Helbrigg, sixteen-year-old senior of Morris high school and a scout in Troop No. 140 of the Bronx, was awarded the chief honors, his essay being selected as the winning one for the entire district and for the Borough of the Bronx.

The prize as district winner is an Austrian flag, brought to this country as a war trophy by an English Red Cross officer. As borough winner he has won for his school a silk American flag, which will be awarded by a war veterans' organization.

SCOUTS LOCATE LOST CHILD.

When neighbors were about to give up the search for a two-year-old boy who had wandered into the woods near his home, the scouts of Naugatuck, Conn., were called to carry on the search, and after working well into the night they found the child.

GOOD TURNS OF THE SCOUTS.

Scout Troop No. 1 of Manchester, Vt., aided the family of a scout sent to the hospital.

The Rotarians of Sheboygan, Wis., have bought a week-end camp as a present to the boy scouts.

Scout Bollinger of Troop No. 14, Boise, Idaho, while making his paper route at three o'clock in the morning discovered a blaze in a garage. He awakened the family and saved the garage and the car.

Colored fabrics know

Soaps that are too strong in alkali fade the colors of a fabric.

But colored fabrics know that they "come through the wash" as bright and fresh and colorful as ever when you wash them in the "friendly" suds of—Kirkman's Borax Soap.

Out of this season's bewildering dictates of Fashion, one thought stands clear—you must appear natural.

Uncorseted? No! Emphatically No! Certainly frocks and suits never more definitely demanded the foundation of a corset. When Paris says "no" to the "uncorseted," Paris would wear a corset. It merely accents the beauty of your figure and the most critical observer will not be able to trace your charm to its subtle support.

ATTRACTIVE FROCKS FOR LEISURE HOURS

THE two very attractive afternoon frocks which present rival claims to admiration in the picture above, employ the two most favored silk fabrics, georgette and taffeta, and each makes the most of this advantageous start. In spite of the disparity in these materials the two frocks have several features in common; both are made with a tunic, both achieve the widened hip lines which fashion encourages, and both show the bodice extended over the waistline at the front, forming a straight-line, girderless effect. These are all important style features, and each of these frocks is distinctive enough to answer for somewhat more formal dress than the average afternoon frock is equal to.

Taking note of the small items that go to make up the success of the georgette frock, it appears that the straight underskirt has no hem, but is finished with a picot edge. Its tunic is long and full, draped and shortened at the sides and embellished with handsome embroidery in silk at the front and back. There are three-quarter-length sleeves having a narrow band of embroidery at the bottom, and, lest we overlook the original management of the bodice at the front, embroidery emphasizes it and calls attention to the narrow collar. Four small, silk-covered balls fall from the ends of the unnecessary but pretty pretense in collars. In the taffeta frock the tunic becomes an apron drape at the front and back, edged with a flounce of the silk that joins the draperies and widens the hips at the same time. This flounce has three narrow cordings along its edge and is set on to the drape with a cord, insuring it considerable flare. This frock has an underbodice cut with short kimono sleeves and these sleeves are corded near the edge. Below the cords narrow tabs made of folds of taffeta carry a narrow ribbon run through them as a finish. The round neck is finished in similar fashion. Sleeves as short as these are infrequent in American frocks, but there is plenty of authority for them in French importations.

SEARCHLIGHT PARTY.

"All up and down a big river," said Daddy, "searchlights were playing from the different boats. They were being played on the city houses and upon each other and upon the shores."

"A boat went along which was to take a long trip up the river and upon that boat there too was a searchlight. As the boat with the searchlight went along there went too the Searchlight Gnome. I will have to tell you about him as I am sure you have never heard about him before. The Searchlight Gnome is a little creature belonging to the Gnome family who loves lights and searchlights above everything. He wears such a dazlingly bright suit that people cannot recognize him and so he goes everywhere where there are searchlights without being seen."

"If they do see him they do not know him because he is so much like the light of the searchlight. Well, in his little air boat he had been flying from one of the boats which had a searchlight upon it this evening to one of the other boats and then to still another."

"From one searchlight to another had he gone and such a good time as he had had! He had seen so many things from the different searchlights."

"He had seen different houses, different ships, different carriages and automobiles driving along the road which edged the river which was a fine city driveway and he had thought the life of the city looked very thrilling under the bright searchlight."

"But when he had heard that this special boat was making its trip up along the river, past towns and far up the river, so that a great deal along either shore could be seen, he decided too he wanted to go.

"He had taken the trip before, but not nearly often enough. He was such a busy little gnome and there were so many searchlights and searchlight parties he wanted to go on that he hadn't half the time he wanted to have for all the things he wanted to do."

"You know," he said, "I cannot understand how it is when people say they wish the time would fly and that they wish the time would pass and all that sort of thing."

"I simply cannot understand. Why I never have half enough time. I'm never trying to kill time either. That's a dreadful thing to do."

"Of course I know it is merely an expression meaning that folks want to do something to make the time pass in a hurry because they want something else and more exciting to turn up."

"I can see how folks are anxious to have great days come like Christmas and so forth, but I don't just see how any one can say they want the time to pass quickly just because they're tired of things."

"It's not appreciating time and time can be so nice. It can have so much within it to enjoy. I mean all the moments are such fun to enjoy as we go along."

"As I don't believe in being unhappy. I am happy enjoying the time and in not letting it pass me by without enjoying it in some way, in merry-making, or rest so that I can enjoy more merry-making."

"Ah, now my fine air boat has brought me to this fine boat. And now I shall see the sights."

"The Searchlight Gnome had a beautiful time. He watched everything that was going on. He saw the houses light up all along the way. He saw the shores and the beautiful gardens looking so strange and yet so beautiful in the bright light."

"He saw people along the shores and he saw beautiful scenery of fields and mountains and little hills and lovely trees. After awhile he heard some voices. 'Well,' he said, 'if here aren't all my searchlight gnome relatives. Are you coming on the searchlight party?'"

"Indeed, we are," they said, "if you do not mind."

"I am so glad," said the Searchlight Gnome, "to have others enjoy these beautiful sights with me. Oh, aren't searchlights the most wonderful things? They're like great secrets of beauty being shown to us."

"Where it is dark and where otherwise we couldn't see the searchlight lets us see all the beauty that would otherwise be hidden there?"

"This is a gorgeous searchlight party," they all said, as they rode along upon the searchlight with Searchlight Gnome."

The Etiquette of Weddings

OF ALL things that must be accomplished according to set customs a wedding requires the closest following of accepted rules. In order that the celebration of the ceremony and all the incidental events may move smoothly and successfully, minute attention must be given to all the details of preparation for the occasion, from the assembling of the wedding party to the departure of the bride and groom on their honeymoon. Leaving out the matter of the trousseau—which is a separate affair—there are many other things that must be considered and adjusted.

To begin at the beginning—there are the invitations. At least three weeks and even a month before the day of the ceremony, these are to be sent out to lists of names which include those furnished by the groom whose mother or sister assists in making up his list. The bride's parents furnish the invitations and announcements and the latter are to be mailed immediately after the wedding to friends who have not been invited to attend the ceremony. No near relative or close friends are to be overlooked, even though they live too far away to come conveniently. The wedding invitations and announcements are to be engraved on heavy white paper, in script or shaded Roman letters, and cards to the reception and "at home" cards enclosed. If the wedding is to take place out of town, train cards are also necessary and if in a large city cards for admission to the church may be required.

"At home" cards are enclosed with announcements. If a limited number of people are to be asked to the reception, the card to the reception will be left out of invitations to others. The invitations are enclosed in two envelopes, the inner one bearing the name of the recipient without any address and without first names, except when they are necessary to distinguish between members of the same family. The outer envelope carries the name and home address of the recipient and the names of the street and state are spelled out. Invitations are issued in the name of the bride's parents, if only one of them is living, in the name of that one, or if the bride is an orphan, in the name of a senior relative. A widow without a near relative to announce her marriage issues a joint announcement with the groom. Upon receipt of a wedding invitation and card to the reception, an acknowledgment is made immediately, written in formal style.

Besides furnishing the invitations the parents of the bride assume all other expenses—the decoration of the church, the fees to the sexton, the awning at the church door, the music, the expenses of the reception, furnishing motors for the bride and her attendants. If the bride is an orphan with no close relatives and is married under the chaperonage of a married friend, she assumes these expenses herself. The bride decides upon the gowning of her attendants, her maid or matron of honor, maids and flower girl deferring absolutely to her in this matter. On the day before the wedding the bride entertains her attendants at luncheon and presents each with a souvenir. She selects her attendants from among her own and the groom's relatives, including in the cortege close friends as well.

A few days before the wedding the bridal procession is rehearsed, with every member of the bridal party present and with the music to be played at the wedding. On the day of the wedding motors are sent for the maids and the maid of honor, who assemble at the home of the bride where they receive their bouquets. At the ceremony the maids are to stand in the positions decided upon and leave the church in pairs or each with an usher. The maid of honor will hold the bride's bouquet or prayer book, which the bride hands to her at the proper time, returning them at the end of the rite of plighting troths. At the end of the ceremony the maid of honor may throw back the face veil, if one is worn by the bride and see that the train falls gracefully. When the bridesmaids leave the church each in company with an usher then the maid of honor is escorted by the best man. But if the maids go out two by two, the attendant of honor precedes them alone. In this case the best man goes out by the vestry door and goes from there to the place of the reception. The motor which brought him and the groom to the church takes the bride and groom away from it.

A good many duties fall to the lot of the best man, who is chosen by the groom, who also selects the ushers. These usually include several relatives or friends of the bride. Just before the wedding the groom gives a farewell bachelor dinner to his best man and ushers and presents each with a souvenir, usually a scarf pin or other bit of jewelry. He also may instruct his best man to see that the cravats he may choose for the ushers and best man are delivered at their houses the day before the wedding.

HOW WILSON KEPT WOOD OUT OF WAR

Transferred From Pillar to Post Away From Front—Steel and Coal Strikes.

By JOHN G. HOLME,
Author of "The Life of Leonard Wood," VIII.

The attitude taken by the administration in Washington toward Leonard Wood's preparedness campaign is a familiar subject to all Americans today. The administration did not approve of Wood, nor of his work. No one knew this better than the General himself, and he pursued his course with open eyes, knowing full well that the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, President Wilson, frowned on his efforts. Wood deliberately jeopardized his own career, his chances for whatever glory they might be gained in the great war toward which the nation was heading. Therefore, no motive could have been ascribed for his noble efforts except the one of intense patriotism.

In August, 1915, Lindley M. Garrison, then Secretary of War, savagely rebuked Wood for inviting the late Theodore Roosevelt to speak before the Plattsburgh officers' camp. Roosevelt said nothing in his address before the officers in criticism of the administration, but later in the day he issued a statement criticizing Wilson's note writing. This he did at the Plattsburgh railway station way outside the camp. The whole press of the country came to General Wood's aid, denouncing Garrison for his action.

Immediately after the war was declared, Wood wrote and personally delivered two letters, one to the Adjutant General of the Army and the other to the Chief of Staff, asking for service abroad. He never received a reply from either official, but a few days later, the Department of the East, which he commanded, was divided into three small departments, Wood was relieved of his office and transferred to Charleston, S. C., headquarters of the new Southeastern Department.

While in Charleston, Wood laid out plans for eleven large National Army Camps, and three officers' training camps. He was then transferred to Camp Funston, Kansas, where he trained the Eighty-ninth and the Tenth Divisions.

This kicking of Wood from pillar to post had a double effect; it brought on the administration an avalanche of criticism and it enhanced Wood's popularity. The State of Kansas made him an honorary citizen through a proclamation by Governor Capper.

In November, 1917, General Wood was sent to France to observe military operations at the front as were all general officers in charge of training camps. While watching French artillery at work on January 27, 1918, he was severely wounded by a shell which burst inside a French gun, the whole gun crew being killed. General Wood recovered rapidly and returned to the United States, where he passed the severe physical examination for army officers destined for overseas service.

General Wood accompanied the Eighty-ninth Division, which he had trained, to New York for embarkation, expecting to command it in France. On arriving in New York, May 25, 1918, he received a telegram from Secretary of War Baker, relieving him of his command. The press unsparingly flayed the administration for this display of meanness of spirit. However, Wood was sent back to Funston. No one has ever heard him speak one word of protest against this shameful treatment. He continued to work night and day for victory, training troops, aiding the country in every way he could. In his campaign speeches of late, he has time and again stated his refusal to criticize the Democratic administration. Let the Republicans do better than the Democrats is his slogan. He had the Tenth Division ready for overseas service when the armistice was signed.

After the armistice, Wood was assigned to the command of the Central Department with headquarters in Chicago where he still is. Of late several notable events have taken place illustrating his strong capability for public service.

About a year ago he organized the Chicago bureau for finding employment for returning soldiers. This organization became the model for the Federal bureau.

He was called upon to quell the race riot in Omaha, and to restore and maintain law and order in Gary, Indiana, and in the West Virginia coal fields during the steel and coal strikes. This Wood did without firing a shot. Moreover, his attitude toward the strikers in Gary and in the coal fields was so fair and impartial as to win the commendation of the labor leaders. The strikers were allowed to strike and picket in orderly fashion, and the workers were allowed to work. Wood took no sides. He merely kept order. He said he found nearly one hundred per cent of the strikers loyal Americans, who earnestly believed they were fighting for their rights. He did not compromise with the "Reds" at Gary. He arrested them.

There are few men in this land who can point to a life of more distinguished public service than Leonard Wood, as doctor, soldier, administrator and business executive. A man of few words and big deeds, he typifies the best this nation has to offer. Roosevelt once said of him: "His rise has been astounding, and it has been due purely to his own striking qualifications and striking achievements."

To Have Evening Service

The last bus will have the East Weymouth station on the arrival of the train from Boston at 10 o'clock, arriving at the South Weymouth depot in time for the 10:17 train from Boston.

The running time from East Weymouth to Lovell's Corner is 5 minutes; to Columbian Square, 15 minutes; to South Weymouth Station, 20 minutes; and to Pond Plain, 25 minutes.

On Sundays all trips will be between East Weymouth and Pond Plain, leaving East Weymouth probably at 8 A. M., 9, 10, 12, 2 P. M., 4, 6, 7:30, 9, and 10:30, but some changes may be made.

Leave Pond Plain for East Weymouth probably at 8:25, A. M., 9:25, 10:25, 12:25, P. M., 2:25, 4:25, 6:25, 8:20, 9:25 and 10:55, subject to change.

The service will be enlarged or curtailed according to the patronage, so that it is up to the people on Pleasant street, to say what kind of service they want.

Reception to New Pastor

A reception was tendered Wednesday evening at the First Baptist church to the new pastor, Rev. Charles W. Allen and Mrs. Allen. Deacon M. R. Wright and Mrs. Beals assisted in receiving. The ushers were Frank Bryant, Charles Price, Rupert Stone, Ralph Beals and Fred Thayer. Music was provided by a quartet of mandolins. Addresses were made by Rev. William Hyde of the Episcopal church, Rev. Mr. Dyer of the Methodist church, Braintree; Rev. R. E. Tedford of the Baptist church, Hingham and a letter read from Rev. Mr. Marble of the First Universalist church. Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Society.

Sophomore's Win.

Before a crowd of 600 "fans", the Freshmen class of Weymouth High went down to defeat at the hands of the Sophomores on Clapp's field, Monday afternoon. Fast playing on both sides made the game very interesting with the exception of the first inning when W. Shields aeroplaned and was touched up for five runs before he came to earth. Much credit must be given J. Shields whose masterly twirling aided the sophs to victory. Poor stick work was largely responsible for the Freshmen defeat. Score: Sophomores, 9; Freshmen 3. Batteries, Sophomores, W. Shields and Goodwin; Freshmen, W. Shields and Higgins. Umpires, Killory and Libby.

A MAN AMONG MEN.

"I beg your pardon, but are you girls going East?" Inquired the nice-looking man as he leaned over the wheel of his Packillac in front of a Green street sorority house.

"Oh, yes," gurgled one of the two co-eds, as she reached a daintily-booted foot for the running board.

"Thank you so much. I never can keep my directions straight in Champagne."

And the car glided away.—Siren.

Admits One Failure.

First Henpeck—Ain't these wives the limit?"

Second Henpeck—Nope, there's one thing my wife admits she doesn't know.

First Henpeck—What on earth is that?

Second Henpeck—Why she married me.—Judge.

A MYSTERY.

Bird—Now just what kind of a bird could have laid those funny green eggs!

A Prodigy.

For speed in independence, Rose. Our baby, can't be beat. Already twist her mouth and toes She's making both ends meet.

All Settled.

Father—You won't marry Henri because he has red hair. You don't want M. Dupont because he has gray hair. I've no patience with you—

Daughter—Oh, papa!

Father—So now I have found a husband for you who has no hair at all! —Ruy Blas (Paris).

Advantage of Poesy.

"I understand Bliggins has taken to composing poetry."

"What for?"

"He has made a lot of blunders in facts and dates; so he has adopted a form of expression which doesn't absolutely require a man to know exactly what he is talking about."

Quick Verdict Answers Question.

Eason—What kind of a lawyer did you have in your action for damages?

Meeks—You can guess. The jury was out five minutes!—London Tit-Bits.

The Reason.

"I asked him to come down and talk things over. You see, he is such a high-priced man."

"Then he won't come down."

A MISTAKE.

Bug—Hey—this is the roughest sliding board I ever saw!

Queer.

It's curious, but it's often said, And I should like to know, Why some men tell to earn their bread And others work for dough.

His Finish.

Bluebeard—What's this toy you're giving me for a birthday present?

His Last Wife—Oh, you dear old stupid! I thought you'd look so much nicer without the horrid blue brush all over your face so I bought you this darling little safety razor.

Time's Changes.

"Doesn't it give you a kind of humble feeling to meet a girl you used to be engaged to long ago?"

"Yep. Always makes me wonder whether her taste used to be as bad as mine was."—Life.

What Mother Thought.

Joan (blushing)—Jack, mother was looking when you kissed me last night. Jack—How did she take it?

"Well, she said she felt satisfied that you meant business."—London Tit-Bits.

Too Much Green Tea Dangerous.

A correspondent's reference to green tea as a fruitful source of seeing visions reminds one that Sheridan Le Fanu, the author of the well-known study in horrors, "Doctor Silas," wrote three volumes entitled "Green Tea," packed full of thrills and shivers. The victim of green tea drinking was haunted by a monkey, or some beast of the ape tribe, that appeared to him on every possible occasion. Once, when he thought he was quit of it, it materialized, grinning and impish, on the seat of the mail coach. Sixty years ago green tea was freely recommended to any student who did much night work and wanted to keep awake, with the disastrous result that a sleeplessness was induced which eventually culminated in extreme insomnia in middle life and old age.—London Morning Post.

Voice of Experience.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "do you want me to vote?" "I'm not going to tell you." "Why not?" "Because if anything goes wrong with the election you'll say you exactly as I told you, and it's all my fault."

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

RUSSIA OUT OF BALANCE

That Its Industrial Life Has Not Kept Pace With Its Agricultural Has Been Fatal to Country's Prosperity.

Article XVIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Less than 10 per cent of the people of Russia "permanently" live in cities or towns. I write the word "permanently" to call attention to the fact that a number of peasants and villagers come to the cities and towns to work for a part of the year in the industries. They retain their peasant status and their domiciles in the villages. In 1910 there were only forty cities in the Russian empire with a population of from 50,000 to 100,000; only four cities with a population of over 100,000.

Poverty forced upon the Russian people the co-operative spirit. In a great, long strain people can stand up together better than alone. It is the idea of consolation in companionship. It is a principle of mass psychology that a group of men will dare to do a thing, to stand a suffering or a danger that no individual in the crowd would undertake alone. The Russians have suffered from the dawn of history, and one of the oldest institutions of Russian life is the Artel. The Artel very much resembles the co-operative society of western Europe, with this difference, that the co-operative society in Europe and America is the outgrowth of an economic trend. In Russia it was the unpremeditated result of necessity. It is the difference between one who is hungry because he is dieting and one who is starving because he is without food.

The workers of Russia have suffered the same slavery the peasants have endured. The maximum wage has been a starvation pay. So when the working men from a province come to a city to work in the textile industries or as carpenters, masons, etc., they at once unite in groups of from ten to fifty persons, rent a house, keep a common table, elect an elder of the Artel, to whom each one pays his share of the expense. All over Russia one finds the Artel—in the cities, in the lumber camps, even in the prisons. When a building is to be put up an Artel is organized. When a railroad is being built an Artel is formed. In some instances the Artel resembles a labor union, in that the arrangement of the terms of employment is made by a delegate or committee appointed by the Artel.

Live in Squalor and Misery.

Village life is primitive. The villagers live out of the world. The villages are very small, particularly in the extreme north. The houses are generally cheap wooden shanties. Owing to the great danger of fire, the villages generally cover a large area of ground. The houses are scattered and straggling. The conveniences found even in the American tenements are unknown. There is no chance for cleanliness. They live and sleep in crowded, smoky, unfinished houses. Furniture—they haven't what we call furniture, even what the poorest farm tenant in America would call furnishings. A board for a table, a shake-down for a bed.

Russia's industrial life has always been out of balance with her agricultural life. Notwithstanding her riches of raw material and her great possibilities for a successful industrial life. Russia has continued to be a nation with 81 per cent farmers, 7 or 8 per cent permanently engaged in industry, and 3 or 4 per cent of peasants who devoted part of the time to work in the industries. It has been said repeatedly that the Imperial Russian government from the time of Peter the Great has been unceasing in its efforts for the creation and development of home manufactures. All of the evidence I have examined refutes this statement. There never has been any security to the worker in Russia. The only protection he has had has been his interest in the family allotment. He could go back there and be hungry; in the city starvation was the danger.

The czars put every obstacle in the way of education and of course this prevented the growth of industry.

In 1902 the principal industries in Russia, representing all of the factories throughout the empire, of which the annual production was valued at more than $1,000, were textiles, food products, animal products, wood, paper, chemical products, ceramics, mining, metal goods, miscellaneous, and all of these employed only 2,259,773 workers.

Led Up to Bolshevik Problem.

This dwarfed, stunted, paralyzed side of Russia—its industrial side—has a direct bearing upon conditions in Russia today and is an important part of the problem of the bolshevik government.

A nation to be economically normal must have balanced agricultural, manufacturing and commercial sides. If these three departments of activity are not proportionately developed the nation is economically a cripple. Russia has been and is in this sense an economic cripple. Her body is great and powerful; the physical constitution is strong. One arm, agriculture, is overdeveloped, and its overdevelopment has been at the sacrifice of the other arm. Russia, economically, in one physical respect, reminds me of Wilhelm Hohenzollern, late of Prussia, now living in Holland. I refer to his withered, undeveloped baby arm. Russia's undeveloped industrial arm is just such a crippled, useless arm. Reference to the ex-emperor, who is now sawing wood in Holland, suggests to my mind the words of a great German economist, List:

"A nation cannot promote and further its civilization, its prosperity and its social progress equally as well by exchanging agricultural products for manufactured goods as by establishing a manufacturing power of its own. A merely agricultural nation can never develop to any extent a home or a foreign commerce, with inland means of transport and foreign navigation, increase its population in due proportion to their wellbeing, or make notable progress in its moral, intellectual, social and political development; it will never acquire important political power or be placed in a position to influence the cultivation and progress of less advanced nations and to form colonies of its own. A mere agricultural state is infinitely less powerful than an agricultural-manufacturing state. The former is always economically and politically dependent on those foreign nations which take from it agriculture in exchange for manufactured goods. It cannot determine how much it will produce, it must wait and see how much others will buy from it. The agricultural-manufacturing states on the contrary produce for themselves large quantities of raw materials and provisions and supply merely the deficiency from importation. The purely agricultural nations are thus dependent for the power of effecting sales on the chances of a more or less bountiful harvest in the agricultural-manufacturing nations. They have, moreover, to compete in their sales with other purely agricultural nations, whereby the power of sale in itself is uncertain; they are exposed to the danger of ruin in their trading with agricultural-manufacturing nations by war or new tariffs, whereby they suffer the double disadvantage of finding no buyers for their surplus agricultural products and of failing to obtain supplies of the manufactured goods they require. An agricultural nation is a man with one arm who makes use of an arm belonging to another person but cannot, of course, be sure of having it always available. An agricultural-manufacturing nation is a man who has two good arms of his own at his disposal.

Poland Cited as an Example. List further points out that the relative cultivation of the agricultural and manufacturing arms of a country possessed of an ample and fertile territory will give that country a population twice to three times as large as it could secure by the development of the agricultural arm alone, and maintain this vastly increased population in a much higher degree of comfort. Surplus agricultural produce is not necessarily capital in an agricultural country. Countries which produce such a surplus and remain dependent upon manufacturing countries are often obliged to purchase these manufactured goods at an enhanced price. He points to Poland as an example. She exported the fruits of her soil to obtain the goods which she could have manufactured from it. As a consequence she fell like a house of cards when organized nations attacked her. List considers that had Poland developed her manufacturing arm, besides retaining her national independence she would have exceeded any other European country in prosperity. To use List's words: "Go to fallen Poland and ask its hapless people now whether it is advisable for a nation to buy the fabrics of a foreign country so long as its native manufacturers are not sufficiently strengthened to be able to compete in price and quality with the foreigners."

Bolshevism has set out to socialize political, agricultural and industrial Russia, and as I expect to examine the effects of communism in each of these departments of Russian life I have set down some historical and economical truths which must be kept in mind when examining the Lenine panacea. (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

France Needs Raw Materials.

Economic disturbances in France during the period of readjustment of wages to high prices were predicted by Leon Jouhaux, chief labor representative on the French delegation to the international labor conference at Washington. "The lack of raw materials is the only thing that prevents the French workman from going back to his job," said M. Jouhaux.

"We must have cotton and coal from the United States, for it will be from three to five years before the French coal mines can be operated. Of course, wages must go up in France on account of the increased cost of living, and it is probable that before the workman gets this increase there will be more or less economic disturbance."

Japanese Miners Strike.

Miners of Japan are beginning to demand higher wages and fewer hours of employment. Seven thousand copper miners at Ashio, near Nikko, went on strike recently and in view of the gravity of the situation a detachment of infantry and a strong contingent of police were hurried to the district from Utsunomiya. The miners formed a funeral procession, some of them carrying large funeral streamers and white lanterns.

Another strike has broken out at an iron mine near Sendai.

EAST WEYMOUTH COURT CASE

Great excitement prevailed at the Quincy court, Monday morning when Frank Nacerrino, a local baker and Mrs. Stella Costanzo of East Weymouth, were arraigned before Judge Avery on statutory charges.
The couple were arrested Sunday at Providence, R. I., by special officer Frank Calabro of Hull, acting for the chief of police of Weymouth. The complainant in the case was Frank Costanzo, husband of the woman.
The case was continued until next month in Quincy court. The woman was escorted to a taxi-cab by officer Butler of Weymouth, because of the threatening attitude of her relatives who had gathered outside the local court building.

As the taxi carrying the woman drove off three men jumped in a light auto truck and started after the taxi. Officer Butler chased the truck, jumping onto the running board and forced the driver to stop.
The three men, not realizing that Butler was an officer, as he was in citizen clothes, threatened him and he was forced to reach for his gun. It looked like trouble for a few seconds but Court interpreter Calabro managed to calm the Italians.

Nacerrino was surrounded by a large number of friends, who went away with him. The woman in the case is a member of a well known Italian family, who feel keenly over the trouble. She is the mother of two children.

THAT MORNING LAMENESS
If you are lame every morning, and suffer urinary ills, there must be a cause. Often it's weak kidneys. To strengthen the weakened kidneys and avert more serious troubles, use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can rely on East Weymouth testimony.
J. W. Snow, gardener, 73 Chard St., says: "I strained my back lifting some two years ago and it affected my kidneys. My back ached and was lame and sore mornings. When I straightened up quickly, a stitch took me in my back. I had to get up often at night to pass the kidney secretions and they were highly colored and burned. I had headaches and dizzy spells, too. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. Two boxes of Doan's entirely cured me and I haven't had any kidney trouble since."
Price 66c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Snow had, Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

We hear some grumbling because of the new law that gives us one more hour of sunlight at the end of our working day, by getting us up an hour earlier in the morning. Doubtless some of the "kicking" is justified. It is practically impossible to make any kind of law that would suit all cases and all people. Daylight-saving is worth while—if we save it, and put it to some good use. It does not help the man who goes to a pool room, or who plays some other indoor sport; it was intended to give the person who wanted to be a part of "the great-cut-of-doors" the opportunity to enjoy his God-given right to do so. It may be some sport that consumes his time. Or better still, he may have a home garden, that along with countless others will help reduce the high cost of living.

REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Extraordinary Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suffered something terrible and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise any one going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. You can publish this and I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET DANZ, 743 N. 25th Street, Phila., Pa.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

Prayed for Cure Finds it After 10 Years

Food Would Sour and Boil—Teeth Like Chalk

Mr. Herbert M. Gessner writes from his home in Berlin, N. H.: I had stomach trouble over ten years; kept getting worse. I tried everything for relief but it came back worse than ever. Last fall I got awfully bad; could only eat light loaf bread and tea. In January I got so bad that what I would eat would sour and boil; my teeth would be like chalk. I suffered terribly. I prayed every day for something to cure me. One day I read about EATONIC and told my wife to get me a box at the drug store as I was going to work at 4 p. m. I took one-third of it and began to feel relief; when it was three-fourths gone, I felt fine and when it was used up I had no pains. Wife got me another box but I have felt the pain but twice. I used five tablets out of the new box and I have no more stomach trouble. Now I write to tell you how thankful I am that I heard of EATONIC. I feel like a new man; I eat what I like, drink plenty of water, and it never hurts me at all.

A Crazy Idea.

"Now, in this film you make violent love to your wife. And, if you like, you may have that part played by your wife." "Are you plumb daffy?" demanded the screen star.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces. Catarrhal Deafness is an inflamed condition of the lining of the Eustachian Tube. If the tube is inflamed you have a sound or imperfect hearing, and if it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be removed and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE. Easily Passed Examination Although Previously Told Condition Was Hopeless

"I was so bad off with kidney trouble I had to give up my work as engineer," says J. B. Rogers, 210 West 62nd Street, Chicago, Ill. "My back gave out completely. It was as weak as if it were broken. Often I tossed and turned the whole night long. I became dizzy and would have to grab the nearest object to keep from falling. At times the kidney secretions hardly passed at all, while again they would be profuse and oblige me to arise time and time again. The urine burned cruelly. I lost twenty-five pounds in weight; and I had taken so many things without relief I became discouraged; in fact, I was told there was no help for me. At last I began with Doan's Kidney Pills, and they made a new man of me. It wasn't any time before I was back to normal weight and had passed a life insurance examination without any trouble. Over twelve years have since gone by and my cure is still permanent." Sworn to before me. GEORGE W. DEMPSTER, N. P.

As Elsie Heath entered the Willerott tea room a spirit of peace and quiet seemed to surround her. Here, after a long, tiresome day, was peace for the weary mind and sore heart. No raucous blare of jazz jarred tired nerves, no loud laughter pierced the stillness. Even the serving was so quiet, hardly a dish was heard to rattle.

As she waited for her order to be brought, she was conscious of a familiar voice, coming apparently over the low partition between the booth she occupied and the next. It seemed incredible, yet that surely was Richard's voice. Yes, his companion spoke his name. Wonderingly, she began to eat the food placed before her, paying no attention to the conversation, until her own name was spoken.

"If it wasn't for Miss Heath, I'd like it immensely," said the girl.

"What's the matter with her, Miriam?" asked the man.

Why, surely, that was Miriam Brown, the new girl she had hired two weeks ago. As if in a trance, she sat and waited for the next word.

"She's worse than blue Monday—goes pussy-footing around the place, looking as though she had lost her last friend. Her eyes are sad. Never a smile or joke from her. Cross, if the least little thing goes wrong. The place has changed a lot in the last year, the girls all say."

Elsie continued eating mechanically, until her food was gone, then she deliberately set herself to eavesdropping.

"Plenty of talking and laughing in those days, but plenty of work done, too. Seemed like a jolly family of sisters, from all they say. Now, the girls are delighted when the 4:30 closing hour comes and they can get outside to do their talking and laughing."

Elsie seemed dazed, as one awaking from a trance. Mechanically she picked up her wraps, paid her bill and started homeward. Once in her room, the healing tears began to flow, and memory recalled the whole story.

Elsie Heath had opened an office as public stenographer five years ago. Her location was good and her careful attention to work soon brought her more than she could do alone. The business had grown until she employed four girls, while she tended only to receiving the patrons and doing the bookkeeping.

Richard Ferris had been among her first patrons. They became more than good friends, yet no closer ties were made before he left to serve his country. Just before he had left to come home he wrote declaring his love for her. For days and weeks after mailing her reply she sang at her work. Her laugh never was so ready, her jokes so many or witty, nor the place so gay.

Two months, then three, went by, and no word came from him. She read of his return in the papers. Each day she looked for him every time the door opened.

Then had begun the change Miriam had spoken of.

Elsie finally sat up, looked about her, and thought what a blessed thing it is to "see ourselves" as others see us. A card stuck in one corner of her mirror flashed out "Never too late to mend," and its twin from the other corner sent the message "Better late than never." She got up, patted her hair into place, bathed her flushed face and whisked a bit of powder over it and made a resolve. No man on earth was worth so many hot, bitter tears. Then, too, she had made her dear girls suffer in her bitterness. It was "up to her," and she'd play fair from now on.

She spent the rest of the evening searching the latest papers and magazines for new jokes.

Next morning she startled the girls by arriving one-half hour late, greeting them with an unusually cheery good morning, and then springing a joke on each of them. She noticed their puzzled, yet pleasant glances, as she passed into her small office, and for the rest of the morning joyousness filled every inch of the little room.

The girls were all busy on hurry orders, so Elsie slipped on a record and started the dictaphone, used only for such emergencies, as she did not like to use it. The door quietly opened and she looked into the smiling eyes of Richard Ferris.

No one knew just what happened until the next morning. Miriam, looking for more work, took a dictaphone record and heard this:

"One hundred copies circular for James & Smith to be ready tomorrow morning as follows—" "Dick!" "Elsie, girl, oh! my girl. And I never saw till last night just how selfish I have been. As soon as I received your wonderful letter, dear, I was impatient to come to you, but luck was against me. That old wound began to bother again, and after I got this—" "Oh, Dick!"

"Sure, but it's almost as good as the other, jointed and everything, and I always was right handed, you know. Well, after I got this, I couldn't just bear to come for your pity. But it took my kid cousin to show me my mistake. Can I ever make up for the hurt these months have brought you? I'll spend the rest of my life trying. Can you forgive me? Oh, you blessedest!"

Miriam sighed. "Girls, before I destroy this record, do just come and hear the most rapturous kiss!"

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin caluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callous. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callous right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

As the car swung round the curve and stopped, the motorman almost thought he was seeing double, for beside the white post stood a small boy and girl, as like as two peas in a pod. The conductor, smarting from the sarcastic comments of an old lady whom he had carried past her street, changed his scowl to a grin as he swung them up with a "Well, well, look who's here! Does your mother know you're out?"

"No, 'cause we're visiting Gramma," piped up the feminine portion of the party, who was the acknowledged spokesman in public, for Bobs was the victim of a most unmanly lisp.

As they passed down the aisle of the hot car, the listless or grumpy expression on the other passengers' faces changed as if by magic. They squeezed into a vacant space beside a mother trying vainly to amuse her fretting baby, who promptly stopped his wailing, and with a gurgle of mischief made a pass at Betty's curls.

"How long have you had him?" she asked, with a delightful giggle.

"He had his first birthday last week," smiled the mother.

"Oh, my, hasn't he lasted good?" was the admiring remark, as she cast a most unfavorable look of comparison at the battered features of a doll held tightly under one arm. "I only got Bella last Christmas. We've got a new baby brother home."

Bobs burrowed deep into newly acquired back pockets, the pride of his heart, taking as much time as possible, that none might overlook the existence of said pockets.

"Two marbleth," he announced briefly.

Just then a young man stepped on the car, and Betty hailed him as an old friend.

"The twin terrors, as I'm alive!" he exclaimed, his eyes searching eagerly about for a third party. "You're not alone?"

"Yes," said Betty, "but it's all right. It hasn't been a nice day at Gramma's. Aunt Alice cried hard last night when she thought I was asleep, and she hasn't laughed or played with us today. Bobs was bad, and when he upset the milk bottle in the refrigerator, Gramma said, 'Children I'masperated. Go out and amuse yourselves till I call you.' So we started to water the lawn, and how did we know Gramma was coming round the corner just as we turned the hose that way? Then he told us to go straight off the lawn, so we took a walk down the street."

"We stopped to speak to a big mooly-cow looking through the fence, and she blew both her old horns at us. So we thought we'd ride a little way, till it's time for Gramma to want us back."

Poor Jack Barnes was as uncomfortable as a mere man could be under this running fire of explanation, and, red of face, signalled for the next stop. "You'll go right back now," he said, firmly, and marshalled them off, followed by the delighted smiles of Betty's audience.

"I hope you are not going to be cross, too," said the engaging young slinner. "Guess everybody got out the wrong side of the bed this morning. Why didn't you come to see Aunt Alice last night? Then maybe she wouldn't have cried."

When they reached the gate, three distracted relatives came rushing from as many directions, but Jack turned to the grandparents.

"I found these twinsters having a joy ride on a car, so I made them about-face in case you wanted them."

"The little rebels," cried the old gentleman; "they ought to be spanked for giving us the scare of our lives." But Grandma thankfully folded them to her heart.

As they went to the house, Jack turned stiffly to the young lady, who, after her first cry of welcome, had not spoken.

"I didn't intend to force myself upon you again, after what happened last night, but I really would like to hear your reasons for letting that cad Hastings take you to the dance after you had promised me. If it was just a way of letting me down easy, why all right, of course."

"Well," answered that young person, coldly, "when I saw you an hour before devoting your time to a beautiful stranger, I certainly didn't think you needed my company, and the roadster will not accommodate three."

"Daylight breaks over me," cried Jack. "My sister arrived on the 5:30, and I was showing her about town a bit, and telling her about the finest girl in the world, who had so often wished to meet her. And you thought—oh, Alice Camden, I guess it's up to you to ask me in to supper and begin where we left off before this big mistake."

That night as the young adventurers were being put to bed, Alice led Jack to the foot of the stairs, where Betty's voice floated down—"and bless mamma and Daddy, and the new baby, and make Bobs a better boy tomorrow." Even a worm will turn, and from the next room came a defiant challenge: "Mind your own bittineth. I can pray for myself!"

There was a pause, fraught with great possibilities, then the prayer was concluded with a voice of Pharisaical sweetness:

"I'm going to be good, anyway, Lord, but you can help me a little if you feel like it!"

Memorial to Norsemen.

Nearly five centuries before Columbus sailed to America, according to some historians, a party of Norsemen landed on the northeastern coast of the continent, and a few years later established a colony. As a memorial to these early explorers a rough stone tower has been erected at Auburndale, Mass., a town that is believed to occupy the same site as the legendary settlement. Investigation has failed to reveal any traces of building ruins in the vicinity, but has resulted in the finding of several old stone walls, which are thought to have been constructed by the inhabitants of the ancient village.

PERFECTION NOT OFTEN SEEN

Assertion Made That Not One Person in Ten Thousand is Absolutely Sane.

Perfect health of mind and body are both exceedingly rare. Not one "civilized" person out of ten thousand is perfectly healthy. Not one civilized person out of ten thousand is perfectly sane. That is to say, absolutely level-headed in all respects, not attaching undue importance to his own hobby, and with no prejudices against new ideas, able to appreciate the other side of the question and to change his ideas when he is convinced that he is wrong.

Sanity has been defined as "the ability to accommodate oneself to one's environment." Not a bad definition. Those who deery the manners and customs of other races or people, merely because they are different from their own are not entirely sane.—Los Angeles Times.

"YOU WIN OR LOSE, YOU GET A HIT OR DON'T," IS PHILOSOPHY OF ED CICOTTE

"You are out or safe in baseball. A base hit or you don't get one."

Eddie Cicotte.

If he is scored on, he feels that he is

You win or you don't win. You get That is the baseball philosophy that governs the field tactics and technique of Eddie Cicotte, the White Sox star hurler. It is an expression of confidence in himself, a notice to all that he is not superstitious, that he is willing to accept all things as they come in a game, no matter what the breaks are.

To watch Cicotte pitch to a batter you would admit, by his cool work in pinches, by the very manner in which he carries himself, and by his method of husbanding his strength for a crisis, that he is not easily rattled, but that does not say that he is not superstitious, for Eddie really is.

Score on Cicotte in the opening inning and the opposition can usually figure that game is almost as good as in, for the veteran Chicago hurler is afraid of the first round. If he gets by it unscathed he has all of his confidence for the remainder of the game, going to lose, and very often does.

GRIT AND AMBITION WIN OUT FOR WHEAT

Brooklyn Outfielder Not Satisfied to Sit on Bench.

Greenhorn From South Told President Ebbets He Wanted Opportunity to Play or Would Pay His Fare Back to Mobile.

The dean of the Brooklyn Dodgers is Zack Wheat, who was acquired by Brooklyn from Mobile of the Southern league, by purchase for $1,200 on August 29, 1909, but there is a player on the team whose connection with Brooklyn antedates Wheat's. He is Bill Myers of East Liverpool, who was sold to the Dodgers by Connellsville of the Pennsylvania and West Virginia league for $300 on August 2, 1909, 27 days before title was secured to Wheat. But Wheat is entitled to the deanship. He has an unbroken record for service from the fall of 1900, while Myers was lowered in rank frequently. Had Myers shown the same aggressive spirit and taken baseball as seriously as Wheat did when he broke into the big show in the fall of 1909, his record for continuous service might tip Zack's. Harry Lumley then was manager of the Dodgers and when Wheat reported from Mobile he was assigned to a position on the bench. Wising up the kid, it is called. But this kind of learning made no hit with the greenhorn from the south. The Dodgers of that period were not much of a ball club—they were known far and wide as a joy club. The team was going bad, the outfield where Wheat thought he belonged, in particular. Standing their pitiful efforts in the field and at the bat as long as he could, Wheat felt the restraint on himself break. Marching himself to the office of President Ebbets, after a glaring rank exhibition he is said to have greeted his new boss thus:

Zack Wheat.

"Say, Mr. Ebbets, I came here to get in your outfield and I want a chance to land there. If I can't do better than any of that gang playing out here for Lumley, I'll pay my own way back to Mobile."

Wheat's grit and ambition made a hit with Ebbets. The next day Zack got his opportunity. The rest is history.

CATCHING AND MANAGING

Catchers of other years are prominent among the major league managers of today.

Among the former maskmen now bossing the major league clubs are Pat Moran, Wilbert Robinson, Fred Mitchell, George Gibson, Branch Rickey and George Stallings of the National league and Connie Mack in the American league. Ray Schalk, White Sox catcher, believes that he can explain why catchers make good managers. Schalk says:

"It is like this: The catcher is back there running the game, calling for certain forms of pitching and generally looking after things. The whole playing field is in front of him, and he can see what is going on all the time."

"You know a catcher has to hold up his pitcher, watch all the base runners, call for the kind of a pitch that will best fool the batsman and come in such manner that the batsman will have to play in the hands of the fielders."

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

WEYMOUTH, MAY 21, 1920

COAST ARTILLERY COMPANY

A company, known as the 9th Co., C. A. C., Mass. National Guard is in the process of formation in Hingham.

The reason for the change from infantry to Coast Artillery is obvious. Hingham and the adjoining towns from which the company's strength will be drawn, is a strategic location for such an outfit. The proximity of the Coast facilitates the carrying out of training plans for an artillery unit. Each summer the company will spend two weeks in a tour of duty at one of the harbor forts, learning the game with the regular organizations.

Drills for remainder of two years will be held once a week at the Armory in Hingham. All necessary material and equipment essential to the development of the company's efficiency will be brought to Hingham, as soon as the company's quota is filled and it is accepted by the State. Each enlisted man begins with Private, receives a dollar for each drill he attends; to be paid to him in person in quarterly installments.

Why the average youth should immediately affiliate himself with this new organization is this:

1. He is only obliged to devote one night a week to it. He is paid well for that.

2. He may learn at leisure and in the proper manner, what would be crammed into a few weeks in time of war, and at the best in the latter case, he would only be one quarter trained.

3. The social benefit to be derived from association with other young fellows in such a healthful and interesting pursuit should attract him.

4. Eventually we may have universal military training. He will obviate that by signing up with this company.

Applicants for enlistment will be accepted at the Hingham Armory, after 7:30 P. M. on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

PILGRIM HIGHWAY

It looks very doubtful if the proposed Pilgrim highway through Quincy would be realized this year; the Ways and Means Committee of the Senate having reported adversely on the bill calling for an appropriation of $35,000 for the project.

Considerable opposition developed against the bill from cities and towns south of Quincy, who objected to paying any portion of the assessment for the highway.

As a matter of fact, however, the highway would have been used more by people south of Quincy than by residents, as it would have furnished a roadway through Quincy which would have cut out the trip through the congested City Square.

BUSINESS SCHOOL IN QUINCY

The Clark School of Business Administration is to open a branch in Quincy. The office for registration will be open in the Norfolk Building, 1452 Hancock street, from 6 to 8 o'clock every Tuesday and Thursday evening, beginning May 25 to June 6. The same high standard will be maintained in the branch school that is maintained in the Boston school. The subjects taught will include: Short-hand, Typewriting, Business English, Book-keeping, Business Arithmetic, and Penmanship.

CATS

Once more the breeding season of the birds has arrived. Those of our resident birds which have survived one of the severest winters of the past generation need all the protection we can give them. The migratory birds should have equal consideration in order that we may keep faith with Canada under our Migratory Bird Treaty, and with our kinsmen in the South who have protected them in the wintering zone.

The greatest living agency in the destruction of the birds is the roaming unrestrained house cat. The Department of Conservation appreciates the practical difficulties connected with keeping cats under close restraint throughout the entire year, but if every owner of a cat will keep it under restraint during the period from May 15 to August 15, great mortality among our birds will be avoided.

They ask you to make it certain that your cat is so controlled, and that you co-operate with your local officials and societies organized for the purpose, to see that all homeless and wild hunting house cats are humanely killed.

THE EDISON COMPANY

Mayor Whiton has signed the order passed by the City Council at its meeting May 3, granting permission to the Edison Electric Illuminating Company to lay and maintain underground conduits from the Neponset bridge to the Quincy-Weymouth line at Quincy Point. This order was before the City Council for some months and was the subject of much discussion. The company, however, is not to sell electricity direct to consumers in Quincy, the only firms permitted to purchase its electricity being the Government plant at Squantum, the Bay State Street Railway and the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company.

The Edison Company has purchased a large tract of land at North Weymouth, and it is understood will some day erect a large generating plant there, which will doubtless eventually not only furnish current for light and power to towns south of Quincy, but may eventually become the central power station of the company for supplying the City of Boston and other cities.

During the hearings before the City Council it was brought out that the present plant of the Quincy company had outlived its usefulness, and if for any reason it should break down Quincy would find itself without electricity for light and power.

The Edison company will erect a sub-station near the present power plant of the Quincy company and will supply it with what electricity it needs for light and power.

It is understood that the Edison Company has already awarded the contract for the underground conduits and that work will be commenced immediately building the line.

The line follows Hancock street from Neponset bridge to Wollaston avenue, then shoots across Merry-mount Park to the Power Station of the Quincy company. It then crosses the canal to Washington street, which it follows to the Quincy-Weymouth line.

It is said that connection will soon be made with the plant of the Weymouth Electric Light and Power Company, which will require a conduit from the Quincy Point bridge to East Weymouth.

Another rumor is to the effect that for some time New Downer Landing will be used only for the storage of coal.

SHUBERT THEATRE

"I'll Say She Does", the new musical comedy which began its engagement at the Shubert Theatre last week has scored an emphatic hit and promises to lead all its competitors in the race for popularity on Boston stages. It is just the sort of an entertainment for the Spring months and is playing to full houses of enthusiastic audiences that recognize the best the theatre has to offer. "I'll Say She Does" was written by Avery Hopwood, who gave us that smashing success, "Fair and Warmer", as well as other entertainments of a lively character. This is Hopwood's first musical play in recent seasons and it is destined to become one of the foremost "hits" when it reaches New York. The lyrics and music were supplied by B. G. DeSylva, who has furnished many laughable songs, of which, "It's Naughty But It's Nice" is perhaps the best. The airs are the sort one hums upon leaving the theatre and which linger in the memory long after a visit to the playhouse.

Memorial Day of Grand Army

Reports of Memorial Sunday of the Grand Army, and Memorial Day in the schools will be found in this issue.

Monday will be observed as Memorial Day, and it is hoped the veterans may have pleasant and comfortable weather. The complete program of Reynolds Post, G.A.R., was printed in the Gazette last week. The veterans will visit all parts of the town, as Weymouth has eight cemeteries in which Civil War heroes are buried.

Carter's Band has as usual been engaged for the day, and besides furnishing music at the cemeteries will render a few selections at Thomas Corner, Washington Square, Columbian Square, and at Grand Army hall, East Weymouth.

The Grand Army and other organizations will assemble at North Weymouth at 8 o'clock, and automobiles have been kindly offered to convey all to the various cemeteries. Russell B. Worster will again have charge of the parking of automobiles near the cemeteries, thus avoiding confusion.

The Grand Army will be escorted by the Sons of Veterans and American Legion and will be assisted by the Boy Scouts and School children, who will bring flowers to decorate the soldiers' graves.

Arriving at G.A.R. hall about 12:30 a dinner will be served by the Reynolds Women's Relief Corps, and allied organizations, and a band concert will follow.

The exercises of the afternoon will be at the Methodist church at East Weymouth, and will include an address by Benjamin B. Seaboyer of Wakefield, patriotic selections by band, solos, chorus singing, and trooping of colors. This will close the observance of Memorial Day.

Citizens generally are invited to attend in the exercises of the day.

MEMORIAL DAY IN SCHOOLS

Today, in the public schools of Weymouth, the pupils are by their enthusiasm cheering the veterans of the Civil War, and the G.A.R. men by attending the Memorial Day exercises are giving the boys and girls a lesson in patriotism. The assignment of the veterans has already been published in the Gazette-Transcript.

As the exercises are held today, it is impossible to publish all the programs, but some idea may be obtained from that of the Hunt school at the Bates Opera House this afternoon, which is given below:

CATCH THE IDEA?

THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT YOUR CAR

Watch Your Generator and Storage Battery Carefully During Season Changes.

PROPER RATE FOR CHARGING

Great Care Must Be Exercised in Putting Right Amount of Current Through Battery to Restore Energy Contained in Cells.

Due to the change of seasons from the cold weather conditions to warmer it is well to see that the generator that may have been boosted to take care of the cranking conditions should be changed to take care of the cranking conditions brought about by warm weather. It is not necessary to have as much current flowing into a storage battery during the warmer weather as it is during the cold, because of the fact that the oil is not as heavy and the engine is not so hard to crank, says a writer in an exchange. The gasoline is easier vaporized and the ignition has more voltage, due to the fact that the battery can exert its full energy.

Change in Charging Rate.

The reason that we advise a change in charging rates at this season of the year is because of the fact that a great many batteries that have been used abnormally at this season of the year and during the cold weather have been worked to their limit; in other words they have been almost entirely exhausted and to start recharging these batteries, even while on the car, at a high rate will cause a rapid deterioration of the plates and also liable to cause a great deal of trouble from armatures becoming overheated and burning up, also the regulator or cutout on the machine becoming overheated and causing it to burn out. The charging rate considered which is proper for generators of certain types is between 10 and 15 amperes and it is not advisable to carry the charging rate higher than this because of the reflex action that this has on the generator and battery and regulating apparatus. It is always good to take into consideration that the lower charging rate is the better for a battery that has been worked hard than to start a rapid charging rate.

Bring Back Gradually.

There is a very similar condition existing between the charging of a storage battery and the case of a sick man. When the patient is on the road to recovery, the physician always advises that the food be carefully selected and the patient gradually be brought back to his full strength. The same applies to a storage battery. Great care must be taken with the proper amount of current put through the battery to restore the energy contained in the cells. It is also advisable at this time of the year before going into summer driving to have the voltage and gravity tests taken periodically so that the battery's recuperation will be brought back to a normal state without causing undue danger.

REMOVING CAPS FROM HUBS

Most Stubborn Cases Can Be Removed by Use of Jack and Long-Handled Wrench.

Hub caps won't always come off merely by wrench persuasion, even when considerable manual effort is also used, says Motor Life. If the cap is so tight that you cannot budge it by your own efforts, bring the jack into the matter. Use a fairly long-handled wrench, and place the jack under the end of the handle. A few strokes of the jack will get the best of the stubbornest hub cap.

"AIR LOCK" VALVE WILL PROLONG LIFE OF TIRES, SAYS AN EASTERN INVENTOR

P. J. Griffen of Dorchester, Mass., has invented a new air lock valve which he claims will increase the life of pneumatic tires 50 per cent. This valve locks the air in the tube for all time or until a blowout or puncture releases it. It does away with rubber collars and plungers. This is now a prolific source of slow leaks in all plunger valves caused by rebound and drag on road and the fault of at least 75 per cent of rim-cut tires. The photograph shows the new valve attached to an automobile tire.

LITTLE AUTO NOTES FROM NEAR AND FAR

Iowa has more than 362,000 motor vehicles.

The history of the motor-truck antedates the passenger automobile.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 motorcycles are in use in the Netherlands.

The British army employed 413 women motor drivers during the war.

There are only 296,135 miles of improved highway in this country.

More than 3,600,000 horses were displaced by motortrucks last year.

The largest motorcycle factory in the world is at Springfield, Mass.

Sales of automobiles in British Columbia totaled 6,000 cars last year.

Rubber tires on motor trailers are required in Michigan and Wisconsin.

Motortruck trains moved between points 1,000 miles distant during the war.

As a part of its collection of freaks, the first motor vehicle to be exhibited around the country was among the big attractions in a circus in 1896.

WHEEL WILL ABSORB SHOCKS

Outer Rim Provided With Channel Fitted With Thick, Specially Prepared Lubric.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing an automobile wheel, the invention of A. W. Althoff of Tulsa, Okla., says:

This invention relates to wheels of the floating-hub type, an object being to provide a wheel which will absorb shock. The outer rim of the wheel is provided on its inner surface with a channel in which the edge of the inner or floating portion movably fits, the channel being fitted with thick, specially prepared lubric to absorb shock. An extra compartment in the rim carries the over-compression of the movable substance supply and eccentric movements of the inner floating portion places the supply again in communication within the channel. Another feature is a tread composed of traction plates or blades with a concrete material interposed between them.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Whatever alcohol you use put it in the radiator.

Don't drive fast with a soft tire or one that is nearly worn out.

Soap should never be used on the body except for removing grease or oil spots.

Many a driver who keeps the exterior of his car spotless neglects his engine.

Car owners should not forget that one part of the battery system which needs attention is the distributor head.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

On talking to Dort owners you will find that they not only speak enthusiastically regarding the economy of the Dort in gasoline, oil, and tires, and the ease with which it rides, but they refer repeatedly to the advantages that accrue to them as a result of the remarkable simplicity and accessibility of Dort construction.

WEYMOUTH AND E. BRAINTREE

—Weymouth's share this year of the special tax of $660,000, the yearly assessment towards the $20,000,000 for soldiers' bonus, will be $1841. Hull's tax will be $1339; Cohasset's $485; Hingham's $924. This is apart from the regular state tax.

—Among the new incorporations last week was the Norfolk Pottery, Inc., of Weymouth, pottery business, with a capital of $25,000, with the following incorporators: Earle H. Granger and Arthur S. Richards of Weymouth and Harold T. Patten of Quincy.

—The alarm from box 39 Saturday evening was for a fire at the old Hunt boat-house at Tufts crossing, owned by Charles Sturtevant. An overheated stove is supposed to have caused the fire which did a damage of about $75.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday and Saturday evening at Bates Opera House.

—Miss Helen Caulfield of the local telephone exchange is having a two weeks vacation.

—Mrs. Susie A. Sanborn of Chelsea is visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Perry. —Thornton P. Niles after a two weeks vacation will assume his new duties next week as buyer for the Pinkham Press, Boston.

—Harry Bloom is in New York this week where he submitted to a successful operation for eye trouble.

—David Baxter of Common street has bought a two-family house in Wollaston and has moved to that place.

—Matthew P. Gloster and family are to occupy the house at 191 Washington street, recently vacated by Benjamin W. Hewett, who has moved to 97 Broad street.

—"In Old Kentucky" at Odd Fellows' Opera House, East Weymouth, Wednesday and Thursday, June 2 and 3.

—Russell Dexheimer has accepted a position with J. Bloom & Son.

—Vandals one night last week tipped eleven hives of bees bottom side up, belonging to William E. Beach of 35 Front street. The bees were all suffocated, causing a loss of several hundred dollars.

—Joseph Ceff of Broad street has resigned his position as chauffeur of Combination 2 of the Weymouth Fire Department. He has gone to Cleveland, Ohio, for an automobile concern, and later intends going to California to reside.

—"On With the Dance", Wednesday and Thursday evenings, June 2 and 3, Bates Opera House.

—Francis Condric presided on Monday evening at the meeting of the Ward Three Republican League held in Lincoln hall. Addresses and music followed the supper.

—At the Baptist church, Thursday evening at 7:45, Mrs. Zies of Newton, who was one of Billy Sunday's Bible teachers, will give a talk on Bible study with chart. Mrs. Zies has conducted Bible classes in some of the churches in this vicinity the past winter.

—Baseball fans will have a chance to witness a good game tomorrow afternoon at Webb park. Morales' fast A.A. team will play Braintree White Sox.

—Mrs. J. E. Ludden, who has been seriously ill at her home on Shaw street, is to submit to an operation for gall stones.

—Miss Evelyn M. Floyd was the purchaser of the Riley barber shop building last week, and Mrs. L. Emma Bates made the sale.

LOVELL'S CORNER

—Mrs. Charles Leach is entertaining her sister, Mrs. R. Jennings of Lynn, for a few days.

—Miss Edith Smith spent the week-end with relatives in Plymouth.

—Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Maynard are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, May 26.

BRAINTREE MUSTER

The muster of the Braintree Veteran Firemen's Association scheduled for Saturday afternoon was postponed on account of the storm until Saturday afternoon, this week. The drawing for position resulted as follows: 1. Hancock of Brockton; 2. Baw Beese of West Quincy; 3. Enterprise of Campello; 4. Protector of Montello; 5. General Edwards of West Quincy; 6. Hingham Vets of Hingham; 7. Butcher Boy of South Braintree; 8. Cochato of Braintree; 9. Protection of Holbrook; 10. Union of East Braintree; 11. Red Jacket of Cambridge; 12. Monatiquot of South Braintree.

—Wilkey lodge, I.O.O.F., will attend Memorial services at the Old South Union church on Sunday morning, June 6.

EAST WEYMOUTH

—Edward O'Brien of Cedar street has purchased a woolen mill at Newton and will move there with his family shortly. Mr. O'Brien has been employed at the East Weymouth Wool Scouring Company for many years and was largely responsible for the large business being done at this plant.

The case against Frank Noccrino of Quincy and Stella Costanzo of Shawmut street, East Weymouth, came up for a hearing at the Quincy District Court last Saturday and was continued for a week. The case has aroused a great deal of interest among friends of the couple both here and in Quincy and a large delegation was on hand to witness the proceedings. This is the second continuation on the case.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday and Saturday evening at Bates Opera House.

—Now that the herring have come and likewise departed from this section, we are wondering what "Wise Guy" will spring on us next.

—William Nolan is quickly becoming familiar with the "ins and outs" of motorcycle transportation. "Billy" is making the new parcel post delivery a success, in the Weymouths at least.

—William S. Hart, a favorite star at the Odd Fellows', was seriously injured while making a picture. A vicious horse bolted and threw the famous star, causing cuts, bruises and three broken ribs.

—Many of the East Weymouth shoe factories have received cancellations on large orders. The freight tie-up is also raising havoc with their business.

—"On With the Dance", Wednesday and Thursday evenings, June 2 and 3, Bates Opera House.

—Miss Theo Keith of Randall avenue spent the week-end at her home after an absence of 4 weeks. Miss Keith has made a success as a member of the Keith vaudeville circuit and will appear in Boston shortly.

—John Fitzgerald of Charles street and Susan Clark of Lovell's Corner were married last Friday, in the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

—Lewis Whitcomb of Cedar street is making extensive repairs on his home.

—"In Old Kentucky" at Odd Fellows' Opera House, East Weymouth, Wednesday and Thursday, June 2 and 3.

—Mrs. William Miller of 843 Broad street, is searching for a pocketbook given her as a keep-sake by a sister, who has since died and containing a sum of money and a receipt for $80. As the pocket is a remembrance, she would like to have the finder return same to her.

—Don't forget straw hats are now in order. Wear one on Sunday and don't forget to patronize home trade.

—Mary Miles Minter, the daintiest girl in the movies, was seen at Odd Fellows Opera House in the fourth picture of her million-dollar contract with the Real Art Film Corporation. Arthur McGory has done well in picking her as one of the regular stars.

—Town Clerk Clayton Merchant is taking account of "live stock" in the Weymouths. He is visiting East Weymouth homes to dig out all taxable property.

—George Ellard of Shawmut street has been confined to his home with a severe cold during the past week.

—Rev. Daniel Evans, a former pastor, received a very cordial greeting at the White church last Sunday morning, the anniversary of his installation here.

—Good progress is being made on the re-surfacing of Broad street.

—Evening busses are now being run on Pleasant street, and are so popular that the large bus is necessary on some trips.

—The degree staff of Crescent lodge I.O.O.F., worked the first degree last evening.

—Winslow M. Tirrell and Bertram W. Nash will go to California in June as members of the Aleppo Temple drum corps, for the convention of the Shriners. Charles Baker will also go on the patrol.

—Frank P. Sibley of Hingham, the war correspondent, gave his illustrated lecture on "My Experiences on the Firing Line with the Yankee Division" at Odd Fellows hall on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of Wompatuck encampment, I.O.O.F.

There was a large attendance of the brethren not only from the Weymouth lodges, but Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate. Chief Patriarch Charles M. Taylor introduced Mr. Sibley, who spoke over two hours, and was exceedingly interesting.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Selectmen were notified at their meeting this week that the County Commissioners had apportioned $5000 toward re-locating and rebuilding Union street.

An invitation was received from Reynolds Post, G.A.R., to be guests on Memorial Day.

The petition of the Telephone company for pole locations on Birchbrow avenue was granted, also several minor licenses.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

Tent 32 will assist Post 58 on Memorial Day. Each comrade will be presented with a button-hole bouquet. Post 58 is invited to attend the class initiation in G.A.R. hall, June 3.

—About 930 delegates attended the State convention of Catholic Order of Foresters at Holyoke this week.

WEYMOUTH HEIGHTS

Saturday afternoon, in the chapel of the first church, the Junior C. E. Society, gave a Chinese party, to which all the parents and friends were invited, the affair being under the direction of Miss A. J. Taylor and Miss Florence B. Nash. The program opened with song, followed by a welcome by the president, Miss Ethel Whipple. Recitations, exercises and stories, giving a detailed account of the missionary study which the society has been taking up, were rendered by the different members and all agreed the same were very interesting and instructive. Some of the girls were dressed in Chinese costume which added much to the affair. Another enjoyable part of the afternoon was the display of fifteen Chinese dolls. Following the program, the girls and boys were taught how to play three games which the Chinese boys and girls indulge in, and the games proved to be fun-makers for our boys and girls also. A social hour was enjoyed at which time opportunity was given for the guests to examine the exhibition and display of all note books, colored cut-outs and pictures made in connection with the study of China. Ice-cream and cookies were served, and the occasion was a most enjoyable one.

—This afternoon at 2 o'clock special Memorial Day exercises will be held at the Adams school. The veterans to be present are George L. Newton and Jeremiah Spencer.

—Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Seabury and two daughters were guests of Mr. Seabury's parents in Grafton on Sunday.

—Rev. E. J. Yaeger is home from a two weeks' visit with his parents in Philadelphia.

—Mrs. Charles Mackler and her mother, Mrs. E. C. Swift of King Oak hill, are spending a few days with relatives at Falmouth.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The 17th anniversary of Weymouth council, No. 729, was observed Tuesday evening and a large gathering of knights and ladies enjoyed the pleasing program, which consisted of solos by Richard J. Bowen, baritone, and Miss Marjorie Rabbitt, soprano, both of Boston. Mr. Bowen and Miss Rabbitt received a big ovation after singing a duet. The Ashton sisters of East Weymouth, Helen, Mary and Alice, made a big hit with their singing and solo readings. Dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock; the music being furnished by Abe's orchestra of Braintree. William Reynolds, the comedian and saxophone player, amused the dancers with his "Charlie Chaplin" antics. Success of the affair is due to Deputy Grand Knight Bart Coughlin and his aids, who incidentally report a goodly sum added to the council fund.

In reviewing the growth of Weymouth council, all knights must feel a glow of pride at the growth of the organization, especially during the past few years. A large share of the credit should be given to the modest but untiring grand knight John F. Fallon, whose organizing ability and business acumen, have borne fruit. The council is fortunate in having a man of his calibre holding the highest office within the gift of Weymouth council. Mr. Fallon is vice-president of the American Type Founders Company of Boston, but devotes his leisure time to the benefit of his fellow men.

The third degree will be exemplified upon a class of about 50 candidates this evening in Odd Fellows hall, East Weymouth, at 8 o'clock. District Deputy Thomas H. Buttner and suite of Hingham will be in charge of ceremonies.

The Kaceys will don the spangles and journey to Randolph tomorrow afternoon, where they will meet the town team. On the afternoon of Memorial Day they will meet the Ave Mariaes of West Quincy at that place.

—John Harris Gutterston is enthusiastic over the musical history of Weymouth. By advertisement today he is seeking the names of those who sang in church choirs many years ago.

CONROY—GANNON

On Thursday morning, May 20, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, East Weymouth, Miss Margaret F. Gannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gannon of Broad street, was united in marriage to Cyril C. Conroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Conroy of Center street. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Edward U. Conroy of St. Eulalia's church, South Boston, a brother of the groom. Following the marriage ceremony a nuptial mass was celebrated, and the nuptial blessing given by Father Conroy. Miss Nellie Noonan presided at the organ.

The bride was attired in a gown of dark blue georgette, exquisitely embroidered, and wore a flowered hat to match. The bridesmaid was Miss Anna Gannon, who was gowned in brown tricot, with hat to match. The groom was attended by his brother Louis L. Conroy. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pearl pin; the bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a cameo pin. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mr. Conroy is a teacher in the English department, High School of Commerce, Boston. Miss Gannon was a popular young teacher in the seventh grade, James Humphrey school. After a short wedding trip to New York and Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Conroy will reside at 394 Broad street, East Weymouth.

As the uncouth oyster that lies beneath the deep within its rough and homely shell a precious pearl may keep; As gems of precious value and veins of purest gold May lie beneath the surface of a naked, bloomless mold— So God oft hides a heart with the noblest traits endowed In one to whom he hath no outward grace allowed.

—James Gardner.

A TEA-TIME CAKE OR TWO.

For those who practice serving afternoon tea, a few choice cakes and sandwiches are needed to accompany the refreshing beverage.

Oriental Tea Cakes.—Work one-fourth of a cup of shortening until creamy, add one cupful of brown sugar gradually, beating constantly. Dissolve one-eighth of a teaspoon of soda in one tablespoonful of water and add this to the first mixture; then add one-half teaspoon of vanilla and one cupful of flour. Mix it until it holds together well and leaves no crumbs in the bowl. If it separates add water a drop at a time until the mixture can be molded into small balls. Place the balls on buttered tins an inch and a half apart and bake in a quick oven until delicately browned. This recipe will make 40 cakes.

Ham Tomato Toast.—Take one-half tablespoonful of minced onion and one tablespoonful of minced green pepper; cook in two tablespoonfuls of butter, then add two tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of sugar, a few dashes of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of minced ham, and a cupful of tomato puree. Serve on toast.

Almond Toast.—Mix five cupfuls of flour, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a cup of butter, one-half cupful of milk, one-half teaspoon of vanilla, four eggs, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder, four tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Mix as usual, adding at the last one-fourth of a pound of split unblanched almonds. Knead lightly and well, using flour on the hands to keep from sticking. Turn into three well greased bread pans and bake in a moderate oven until brown. Cut the loaves in half-inch slices and place them crosswise in a pan to brown; turn so that the sides will brown. Cool before packing away. These are excellent to serve with tea or coffee and will keep for weeks in a dry place.

Fudge Frosting.—Melt two ounces of chocolate over hot water. Add two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of milk. Stir until the sugar is dissolved. When the boiling point is reached, beat vigorously and cook to the soft ball stage (236 F.). Remove from the fire, add a teaspoonful of butter and let stand until cold, then beat until creamy and spread on the cakes. Tuls of minced parsley.

Ruskin says: First feed people, then clothe and house people, then please them with art. The fundamental thing is to feed them. "As armies travel on their stomachs," so an active brain must have a well-nourished body.

A COLLECTION OF GOOD THINGS.

For a spring dish which is especially good, cook together green peas, new potatoes and small green onions and new cypriots; add a few slices of crisp fried bacon cut in bits and when the vegetables are cooked, season well and add milk. Serve hot.

Coleslaw.—Slice firm cabbage and put into a dish of cold water to crisp. Prepare the following for dressing: Take two well beaten eggs, half a cupful of sour cream and cook over water until thick, take from the fire and add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. When cold mix with the cabbage which has been well drained and dried on a cloth.

Fruit Drop Cakes.—Cream two-thirds of a cupful of butter or any sweet fat, add one cupful of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-third of a cupful each of currants and raisins cut fine, two-thirds of a cupful of chopped walnuts, two well beaten eggs, a half teaspoonful of vanilla, one pint of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Drop by spoonfuls on baking sheets. Bake in a moderate oven.

Coffee Caramels.—Put a pound of dark brown sugar into a saucepan, add one cupful of clear strong coffee, one-half cupful of cream and one tablespoonful of butter. Cook until it snaps when dropped in cold water. Pour into greased tins and mark in squares, as it cools.

Velvet Sherbet.—Mix the juice of three lemons, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and stir until dissolved; add four cupfuls of rich milk and freeze. It may look curdled, but when frozen it will be as smooth as velvet.

Stuffed Egg Salad.—Cut hard cooked eggs in halves, take out the yolks, cut a thin slice from each rounded white to make it stand firmly, drop in each a little mayonnaise. Mix the yolks to a paste with the mayonnaise, using any minced meat fish or flavor vegetable for seasoning. Fill the cavities and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

The Erie Canal.

On the 26th of October, 1825, the Erie canal, connecting Lake Erie and the Hudson river, was opened. The event was announced by the firing of cannon at short intervals along the entire length. The canal, begun at Rome, N. Y., in 1817, was completed chiefly through the influence of De Witt Clinton. The cost of construction was $7,002,000.

Baseball's Beginning.

Abner Doubleday of Cooperstown, N. Y., in 1839, was the first to prepare a diagram of the baseball diamond. The Knickerbocker club, founded in New York city in 1845, is said to have been the first baseball organization.

To Dry Narrow-Necked Bottle.

In order to remove the last few drops of water which remain after washing and draining a narrow-necked bottle, dry the rim on the mouth and then hold the bottle upside down under cold water running from the tap. In about half a minute dry the outside of the bottle and examine the inside, when it will be found perfectly dry.

Out of this season's bewildering dictates of Fashion, one thought stands clear—you must appear natural.

Uncorseted? No! Emphatically No! Certainly frocks and suits never more definitely demanded the foundation of a clever corset. When Paris says you should look "uncorseted," Paris means you should wear a corset so deftly designed to be a part of yourself that it merely accents the natural beauty of your figure and the most critical observer will not be able to trace your charm to its subtle support.

WHEN MILADY DECIDES TO OBEY CONVENTION

EVERY girl with an imagination has pictured the dawn of the honeymoon, with herself a radiant bride in all the glory of white satin and tulle. And when dreams come true and she decides to obey convention there has never yet been a dearth of satin or tulle, all ready to be used. But how? That is the question that fairly obsesses the bride and all her women relatives until it is settled. What the bride requires of the creator of her conventional wedding gown is that it must be conventional but in an original way—there are ways of doing things—new ways—that insure an up-to-date result. Each year's wedding gowns are tests of ingenuity on the part of their designers, masterpieces into which they weave the old and new with consummate artistry.

This year's gowns have provided its brides with a choice of styles swinging all the way from straight lines to the most elaborate draping, and, about midway between these extremes are such lovely examples of the conventional wedding gown as that shown in the picture. The bride that is fairly slender and tall will find in this interpretation of current ideas. The dress shows the skirt, with a draped tunic at the front, made in one with the bodice. It contrives to reconcile the smart ankle length of this season's skirts with a long train—which accomplishment is not without difficulties. The satin bodice has a square neck which the bride may choose to fill in with a guimpe of filmy lace or net, or wear as it is, since her throat is covered by a scarf of tulle—part of the very interesting arrangement of the most voluminous of wedding veils.

The veil falls from a cap which has a puff of tulle for its crown and a band of orange blossoms that form a heavy wreath with long, slender sprays falling at each side. These trailing sprays have appeared in other arrangements of the cap this season. All the tulle that can be put into a veil envelops the bride in this stately costume and perhaps this accounts for the pearl beads that outline the square neck opening and emphasize it. Jewelry has been conspicuous by its absence in the costumes of this year's brides, but a necklace of pearls has always been allowed and one is worn in this instance. If "pearls are for tears" the bride, being a very modern and up-to-date young woman, has decided to defy fate.

Alluring Midsummer Hats

WHEN your path leads past the milliner's show window, be sure you will linger in front of it—for that way temptation lies. Only midsummer could call forth such alluring headwear as that which causes the strongest minded among us to hesitate at the place where it is displayed, when we should be moving on. It appears that the very best things which the year has to offer have been saved for this particular time, and the chances are that some bit of irresistible art, in dress or sport hat, will part the unwary—but wise—onlooker from some of her money. The career of the midsummer hat is brief and glorious, and we might as well reckon with it, for it will reappear with early June.

Three of these adorable hats, shown in the group pictured here, will suggest appropriate styles for bridesmaids, or maids of honor. These midsummer hats are very often made of malines and hair braid, but sometimes of silk or straw braid or of georgette crepe and other sheer stuffs. One of the hats pictured is a twine-colored braid faced with pale rose georgette, and a wreath of roses and foliage trails about its course.

A lovely hat of black hair braid and malines might be made up in brown, or for a bridesmaid, in a light color. It has a scarf of malines, to be brought about the throat, and long-stemmed rosebuds falling from the back.

Another hat of hair braid with a crown of braid and malines, supports a wreath of mixed flowers, roses and lilies of the valley, that are as natural as life. This is very lovely in gray or brown, and is good in black. In light colors it is an ideal hat for the maid or matron of honor or for bridesmaids. There are many beautiful, light-colored braids among these glories of summer millinery, but it is more than anything else, the charm of flower trimming that proves captivating.

Julia Bottomly

Sweater an Absolute Necessity.
Summer sports and the vacation period make the sweater an absolute necessity and no amount of sport coats, no matter how attractive and smart they may be, can oust this very useful and becoming garment. At least a sweater may be becoming if it is well made. Many of them are hopelessly otherwise.

Silk Coats.
Silk coats, following the lines of the figure as well as to give the impression at first glance that they are dresses, are among the spring novelties.

THE POLICE HORSES.

"It's a hard job," said the police horse, named Jack, to the police horse, named Bill, "but all the same I like it." "Do you mean our job?" asked Bill. "That I do," said Jack.

"What do you mean by saying, 'That I do'?" asked Bill.

"I mean yes," said Jack, "but I thought I would say it in a fine way."

"Oh, I see," said Bill, "only it was such a fine way that I didn't quite understand it. Perhaps I am not so bright as I should be."

"Nonsense," said Jack. "I just talk sometimes to hear myself talk. I believe all of us do at times, even the best of us."

"Now, now," said Bill, "you are only trying to make me feel less stupid. You are very modest, really. You don't talk to hear yourself talk. If there ever was a modest horse, you're one."

"Well, I have nothing to be proud of," said Jack.

"Nonsense, you have. Think of the lives you've saved."

"Well, haven't you saved lives, too?" asked Jack.

"Well, who wouldn't save a life when he could? It's nothing so fine when I've done it, because it has just come my way. I mean the opportunity has just come my way when I save a life. I just couldn't help but do that. When you've saved lives you've gone out of your way to do so."

"So have you," said Jack, "and you are a very modest horse."

"Well," said Bill, "I think it is so foolish to be conceited. And I'll tell you something else, Jack," continued Bill.

"Pray, continue," said Jack.

"I've discovered that those creatures who were conceited had very little to be conceited about. So I don't want to be conceited for if I were conceited I would feel very foolish."

"I would think how absurd I was. I would think that I had nothing to be conceited about compared to lots and lots of people who save many more lives than I do. Take the firemen, for example. They're always saving lives, but they don't go around boasting about it."

"Yes, I've not much use for a conceited person. A conceited person is like a bossy person—both of them want to be the whole show. And no one creature could be the whole show. No one creature at all, to my mind."

"If any one creature were the whole show just think what a world it would be, everyone hobnobbing and bowing to one person and not getting anything out of life at all."

"That's so," agreed Bill.

"But," he continued after a moment, "you were saying how much you liked your job."

"Oh, yes," said Jack. "It is so nice to be of help and to do one's part. Now, I will never disappoint the master. I am supposed to keep the crowds back at parades—those who crowd the streets and would get into a terrible crush and jam if we didn't keep order. My master tells me where I should go and I go and push the crowd back ever so gently."

"But I never step on anyone's foot, though feet are all about me. The master wouldn't like it if I did, so I don't. And you do the same thing. But it is nice to have a job like this and to have a fine policeman riding one. I love my job."

"So do I," said Bill. "It's a job such as any horse would be glad to have and we are fortunate to be given these jobs. We feel they trust us and have faith in us and so we never want to break that faith that is in us."

"We are loved and admired and when one is loved and admired one doesn't feel conceited about it. One just feels happy. At least that is the way I feel."

"So do I," said Jack. "Any other way to feel about it would not be worthy of police horses."

Good Enough.

There is little hope of any girl who begins to make use of the formula, "Good enough." The surest way to fall short in achievement, in character, in success of every kind, is to introduce these two words to your life motto. When you feel like assuring yourself that the half-learned lesson, or the clumsily written letter or the slightest household task is "Good enough," just take this thought to heart, that nothing is good enough as far as you are concerned, while it is possible to make it better.—Girls' Companion.

Y.P.S.U. ORGANIZED
Last Friday evening there was gathered in banquet hall of Union church a galaxy of youth and beauty in overalls and gingham, at which time the Y. P. S. U. was organized, with the purpose of fostering sociability and friendliness among the young people of East Braintree and Weymouth by the means of monthly parties, chorus work and dramatics. After a constitution had been adopted, opening membership in the Y.P.S.U. to all young people of the community, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Ella Johnson; Vice-president, Allen Vinling; Secretary, Helen Hunt; Treasurer, Morrell Allen; Music Committee, Dorothy Avery; Dramatics, Eugene Williams; Invitations, Ruth Fowle; Parties, Ruth Stewart. Refreshments consisting of punch and cookies were served.

On Tuesday, Whitman High defeated Braintree High 18 to 3, and Braintree High 18 to 3, and Brockton won from Quincy 11 to 5.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR PARADE

Yesterday was a gala day for members of South Shore commandery and also their ladies for they made a pilgrimage to Providence for the Knights Templar parade. They were favored with pleasant weather.

The knights and ladies made an early start at 7 A. M., as the journey was by auto. About 30 automobiles were required to convey the party of 75 knights and 30 ladies.

At Providence the knights were met by a military band, and took part in the parade, while the ladies occupied seats on the grand stand.

Later there was a drill and in the evening a reception to the Grand Master and a grand ball. The ladies enjoyed lunch at the Dreyfus. Some of the Weymouth party stayed over night.

Today the Grand Commandery will hold a convention to be followed by an outing at the Pompon Club.

WILBUR THEATRE, BOSTON

At the Shubert-Wilbur Theatre, Mr. Lew Fields is presenting, for the first time, on any stage, "The Poor Little Ritz Girl", an original musical comedy by Henry M. Stillman, with music by Richard C. Rodgers, lyrics by Lorenz M. Hart and played by a distinguished cast, including Roy Atwell, Victor Morley, Aileen Poe, Eleanor Griffith, Lulu McConnell, Florence Webster, Alma Adaire, Eugene Blair and many others.

"The Poor Little Ritz Girl" touches upon the phase of American life that particularly concerns the girl of the stage, yet is of considerable interest to the great mass of people, whose interest towards this element of society is decidedly dramatic. The festive spirit of youth abounds in "The Poor Little Ritz Girl", who comes from the south to New York, with a craving for life and love and her intimate story is refreshingly told, surrounded by kaleidoscopic scenes, charming music, original novelties and gorgeous gowns, displayed by the prettiest chorus imaginable, the "Ritz Beauties."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE

"Another George Cohan hit!" is the expression generally voiced by all who speak of the new Cohan production, "Genius and the Crowd", which is drawing Boston theatregoers in large audiences at the Hollis Street Theatre, where it enters upon its third week next Monday night. As a matter of record, it is a fact that not within ready memory has an attraction come new to Boston so late in the season and entered so quickly into such success. Theatregoers who have sought something new happily found it in this delightful comedy produced by the Cohan who has probably made more innovations in method and construction of stage offerings than any other producer in America. There is a comedy well might be termed mammoth for a comedy, more than 50 players numbering the cast, brilliant in their individual competency.

The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees are given. Out of town patrons may be assured that all letter orders for seats will receive careful and prompt attention.

CHURCH LEAGUE

The Quincy Y.M.C.A. has started an athletic league to include all the churches of Quincy and surrounding towns and has appointed Rev. C. W. Allen of the Baptist church, Weymouth, one of the directors. It is intended to have a senior and junior baseball team in each church for the summer, and a basketball team in each church for the winter. Also other important features are being planned and will be announced later.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.
To all persons interested in the trusts under the will of

WILLIAM W. CASTLE

late of Weymouth in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by The First National Bank of Boston, a corporation duly organized according to the laws of the United States of America and having a usual place of business in Boston, County of Suffolk, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, praying to be appointed trustee under the will of said deceased, which has been proven in said Court, and that it may be exempt from giving any surety on its bond;

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham in said County of Norfolk, on the sixteenth day of June A. D. 1920, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript, a newspaper published in said Weymouth, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of May in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty.

NASH'S CORNER

—Joseph L. Jannell has opened a garage at 441 Main street.

—South Weymouth loses one of its oldest citizens by the death of Joseph Burrell on Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel French, after a short illness. Mr. Burrell was born in East Weymouth 84 years ago, one of a family of six children of Joseph H. and Sally (Lovell) Burrell. October 20, 1836, Mr. Burrell joined the Reynolds Post 58, G.A.R., having previously served in Co. G, 4th Mass. Heavy Artillery, during the Civil War. He had been a member for 18 years of Franklin lodge, I.O.O.F. of Dorchester, and of Massasoit encampment of Boston. On April 12, 1907, Mr. Burrell and his wife observed their 50th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Burrell died six years later, in 1913. Three sons, Henry T. of Randolph, Frank E. and George H. Burrell; and one daughter, Mrs. Bertha F. French, all of South Weymouth, survive.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Rev. Ora A. Price will officiate, and burial will be at the Fairmount cemetery, East Weymouth.

—Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Frost and family of Union street, have bought the house on Park avenue from Mr. Irving and are occupying it.

—Mrs. Catherine Mahoney, a former resident, has been appointed office manager of the London Cleansing and Dyeing company of Arlington.

—Miss Florence Chase of Park avenue has recovered from the measles, and has returned to her duties with the Gale-Sawyer Co.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. Raymond Perkins of Park avenue have purchased the house at 21 Hunt avenue, of Henry M. Olsen, and will occupy June 1.

—Mrs. Fred Blanchard of Highland place left for Portland, Oregon, Monday, where she will reside with her sister, Mrs. S. E. Welch.

SUDDEN DEATH

Death came suddenly on Saturday to Louis A. Morgan of 154 Pond street South Weymouth, while homeward bound by auto from Boston. He left his garage about 5:20 and when on Blue Hill avenue his car was seen to turn suddenly to the sidewalk and stop. A crowd soon gathered and the police and doctors were notified. A doctor pronounced Mr. Morgan dead, death being due to heart disease. When Mr. Morgan left the train at the South Station in the morning, it was noticed that he was in need of assistance. Funeral services were held on Tuesday from his late home, the Rev. Mr. Love officiating. Interment was at the Pond Street cemetery.

Mr. Morgan had lived at South Weymouth for many years and is survived by a widow and son. He was born in Bridgewater, and was proprietor of the Berkeley Auto Exchange on Berkeley street, Boston.

—The Weymouth Trust Company is now open every Thursday evening until 8 o'clock, for the accommodation of the public.

Rev. J. B. Holland's
Address to G. A. R.

Rev. J. B. Holland of the Sacred Heart church provided special cars are the emblems of Christ, our Saviour, Sunday to convey the Grand Army of the Republic and their guests to the church for the annual Memorial Sunday services. The guests in God's House we have Christ, Himself.

REV. JOHN B. HOLLAND

cluded Gen. James L. Bates Camp, Sons of Veterans; Weymouth Post, American Legion; Reynolds Woman's Relief Corps; the Ladies Auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans; Dorothea L. Dix Tent, Daughters of Veterans. The church was well filled at 2:30 with these organizations and citizens generally.

The service included the Rosary of the Blessed Virgin Mary, followed by Salve Regina, the address by the pastor, and the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Music was a prominent part of the service, and was largely by sisters of World War veterans. The program included:

Processional Meyerbeer Lead Kindly Light, Trio.
Words by Cardinal Newman
O Divine Redeemer Gounod
Soloist, Miss Helen Corridan
Violin obligato, Lawrence Corridan
Salve Regina Plain Chant
Solo, Salutaris Hostia Bailey
Miss Grace V. Donovan.
Violin obligato, Thomas Cassidy
Regina Coeli
Helen Corridan, Helen Maloney
Hazel Croke, Grace Donovan
Helen Galvin, Helen O'Brien and Katherine Hall
Tantum Ergo Falkenstein
The Junior Choir
Finale, Holy God, We Praise Thy Name. Full Chorus and Orchestra
Recessional, Guilmant
Organist, Miss Mary E. Donovan

The pastor was brief in his address, being directed mainly to the Grand Army and the American Legion. He said in part:

Venerable Men of the Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish War Veterans, Members of the American Legion, and Allied Organizations:

You have gathered here today with in these sacred walls to pray for your soldier and sailor dead. And you do well—for the practice of praying for our dear departed is older than Christianity. We read in the Old Testament, Second of Machabees, when the Jewish Nation were the chosen and faithful people of God, that Judas, their brave leader, took up a collection of twelve thousand pieces of silver, to have sacrifices offered up in Jerusalem for the sins of his soldiers fallen in battle. And the Holy Writer closes the narration with these words: "It is therefore a holy and salutary thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from their sins."

On the last day of this month, assisted by the children of the schools, you will lay flowers on the graves of Emmanuel, God with us. Christ, the only gate through which we enter into life everlasting, hidden it is true by the veil of the sacrament, but Whom we shall meet hereafter face to face.

Today memories sacred, tender, and true come flooding back to you, Venerable men of the Grand Army of the Republic. Although it is five and fifty years since the war, 1861 to 1865 closed, it seems to you scarcely more than a score of years. In the morning of life, you took up arms to preserve the Union, to maintain the Constitution, to destroy forever the stigma of human slavery. And your efforts, under God, were crowned with success. Today the names and memories of Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, of Custer, Kearney and Meade, of Hancock, Hooker and Shaw, thrill your heart and fire your mind anew. And the remembrance of others, now sleeping their last sleep among Virginia's hills, or else in Georgia's sands, dims your aged eyes with grateful tears.

But I will speak particularly of General Chamberlain, who was chosen by Grant to receive the surrender of Lee and his army, and thus close the war between the States. Not as the Roman conquerors received their captives and reduced them to slaves. But as a brave soldier and a Christian gentleman, Chamberlain received the surrender of the Army of Virginia so graciously and so humanely that the bitterness and sting of defeat were wellnigh forgotten. And his spirit of reconciliation shown that April day has been the spirit and endeavor of the Grand Army of the Republic in making again no North, no South, no East, no West, but one united country.

This year the exercises assume an International character. For across the seas "over there" gentle French hands, and loving French hearts will lay both prayers and flowers on the graves of those who died "for God and Country and Humanity." And as their time is earlier than ours, we can see in fancy the setting sun shining on the little cross which marks each grave, and the shadow of Christ's saving cross falling on that hallowed ground like a benediction.

And now, Venerable Men of the Grand Army of the Republic, you have fallen into the serene and silver leaf of honorable age. Having passed beyond the allotted age of three score years and ten, you must perforce soon leave to younger hands and hearts this work of patriotism and civil betterment, which you have done so long and so faithfully. The thin blue line of the Grand Army of the Republic be-

No Longer Clerk.

I am no longer . . . clerk to the firm of, etc.; I am Retired Leisure. I am to be met with in trim gardens, I am already come to be known by my vacant face and careless gesture, perambulating at no fixed pace nor with any settled purpose. I walk about, not to and from. They tell me a certain cum-dignitate air that has been buried so long with my other good parts has begun to shoot forth in my person. I perceptibly grow into gentility.—Charles Lamb.

Must Show Loyal Strain.

Members of the Daughters of the American Revolution must show an ancestor who fought in the Revolutionary war or who was a member of the Continental congress, or the congress of any one of the colonies, or who was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, or who was an official who actually assisted in the establishment of independence by rendering service during the war and who, in any case, was consistently loyal to the cause of independence.

Polse Worth Cultivating.

Cultivate repose of manner, calmness, quietness, emotional control, if you want to grow in personal influence over your fellow men. Polse by no means constitutes the whole secret of personality. But it is an important element in it. If a choice has to be made between two leaders, one well poised, the other excitable, there can be no question as to which will be chosen. Always polse, with its unconscious revelation of well controlled energy, will carry the day.

Lesson of the Day

"From these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion."

"We here highly resolve that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

NATION HONORS ALL HER HEROES

Memories of Veterans of Three Wars Are Enshrined in Country's Heart.

Memorial day is the day of the dead, the veterans of three wars; but, though newly consecrated by the fresh and poignant sacrifices of those who passed away in the great war of liberation "over there," there cannot be now, any more than in the past, any associations but those of true joy and honorable pride, far removed from the despair of causes lost, or from griefs over those whose death is without meaning and end without result. For it is the holy joy of those who know that the sacrifices were not in vain that distinguished this day of days this year, coupled with the realization that both those who went and those who remained joined freely in the oblation on the altar of the country with an unflinching belief in the nobility of the obligation and the deep significance of what it meant for the common good.

While the ceremonies on this side follow the usual lines, heightened by the opportunity to pay fresh homage where homage is due, the tribute that is paid "over there," beginning with the ceremony at Suresnes, near which has been developed the American cemetery nearest to Paris, at which President Wilson officiated last year, in the very presence of the dead themselves, takes on an especially moving character. For in nothing did the American expeditionary force and all its helpful accessory agencies, such as the Red Cross, so distinguish themselves as in their concern that the last resting place of those who fell abroad should be neither unknown, unmarked nor unhonored. As a result of this determined and consecrated effort of all services, the new graves of the hero dead, be they located where they fell, or removed to the permanent centers of burial that have been selected at appropriate places as the official American cemeteries, will receive every attention that is their just due from their brothers in arms "over there" and a grateful country. The graves, all separately and singly marked with the cross, or the star, save in name and title, no distinction of rank being allowed in the identifying symbol, will be decorated, one and all. And while much that has been devised as to the handling of these special cemeteries has followed the plan of the British, who have been at work at the problem much longer, yet a peculiarly American touch is given in that this annual commemoration of Memorial day so familiar to us all, is new to our allies, and to the French, though they have gladly co-operated with the American forces in order to make the day a truly notable one and one of general and significant commemoration.

So far as the general cemeteries go we have followed the British in the

THE NATION'S DEAD. 1861—1865.

Four hundred thousand men,
The brave—the good—the true,
In tangled wood, in mountain glen,
On battle plain, in prison pen,
Lie dead for me and you!
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Have made our ransomed soil their grave
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

In many a fevered swamp,
By many a black bayou,
In many a cold and frozen camp
The weary sentinel ceased his tramp
And died for me and you!
From western plain to ocean tide
Are stretched the graves of those Who died
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

On many a bloody plain
Their ready swords they drew,
And poured their lifeblood like the rain,
A home—a heritage to gain,
To gain for me and you!
Our brothers mustered by our side;
They marched and fought and bravely died
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

Up many a fortress wall
They charged—those boys in blue—
Mid surging smoke and volleyed ball
The bravest were the first to fall!
To fall for me and you!
These noble men—the nation's pride—
Four hundred thousand men have died
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

In treacher's prison-hold Their martyr spirits grew
To stature like the saints of old;
While, amid agonies untold,
They starved for me and you!
The good, the patient and the tried,
Four hundred thousand men have died
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

A debt we never can pay
To them is justly due;
And to the nation's latest day
Our children's children still shall say,
"They died for me and you!"
Four hundred thousand of the brave
Made this our ransomed soil their grave
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

plan for the separate graves, but they have gone a little further in that each large burying place will be dominated by a tall cross and plain altar stone, described by Kipling as "the Cross of Sacrifice and the Stone of Remembrance," the stone bearing the inscription, also suggested by Kipling, "Their name liveth forevermore." Save for this, the great concentration cemeteries of the American forces, such as Romagne-sur-Montfaucon, the largest, containing 36,000 graves of those who fell in the Meuse-Argonne battles, will represent little more than the simplicity of Quaker burying grounds, since the permanent memorial monuments that may be erected are yet to be determined. But there is no question of the monumental effect of the commemoration, nor will those who lie in the smaller cemeteries or in the little French churchyards be overlooked today or in the years to come.

This is all as it should be. And quite as those at home would wish it. And, as has happened in the case of the older celebrations, even though the day brings its fresh and deeper sorrows, at the same time there must be felt everywhere the comforting sense that the country and those who have passed away were equal to their task in the world crisis. It is but meet and proper, therefore, that all should insist that wherever they may lie each and all who paid the final debt shall be marked from among their fellows, dead and living, by such seemly and ceremonial observances as we have set up here for generations and are now repeating abroad. Respect and recognition for what they did and proper honors for the hero dead lend dignity to the living, glorify all sense of duty and discipline and lift all life into the nobler channels of a humanity that is not, as is writ of the beasts of the fields, "without aim or hope," but serves understandingly and not in vain.

PASSING OF THE GRAND ARMY

Significant That in Omaha Three Posts of Veterans Have Had to Be Consolidated.

One of the items of local news carries with it a tinge of sadness, observes the Omaha Bee. It recounts the fact that the three Omaha posts of the Grand Army of the Republic are to be consolidated because they no longer have numerical strength for more than one. This is simple notice that the great organization of men who wore the blue and marched with Grant and Sherman, is passing on more rapidly than we realize. They were boys in '65, when the conflict closed, but that was more than half a century ago, and the youngest head that sheltered under a soldier's cap then is now snow-white from age. It was inevitable that this association of men who shared together the hardships and privations, the dangers and the triumphs of war, should pass in its time, for its members are immortal only in the deeds they wrought and the glory they brought to America. Soon "the muffled drum's sad roll" will have beaten the last tattoo for the Grand Army; the last veteran will have been laid away to await the bugle sounding reveille in eternity, the last bronze button will be placed alongside the tattered old battle flags and the stained uniform, and the Grand Army of the Republic will live only in the memory of a people who will more and more enjoy the fruitage of its history. For

On fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
While glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead.

Day of Solemn Ceremony.

This Memorial day is a time when the people of this country unite in paying tribute to the thousands who made the supreme sacrifice in the greatest of all fratricidal wars. It is a solemn occasion, and nothing should be permitted to mar its sanctity. Certain it is that the day should not be given over to sport.

THINK of the young men—the boys in blue and in gray—who went down in the cruel slaughter of Cold Harbor and in the gloom of the Wilderness, and who wore themselves out in hospital and in prison! You can take up no college history, or town history or family history, without coming across evidences of the unspeakable sadness of this young life. The boys who there surrendered it, in the full-flood of patriotism, would otherwise have seen the telephone and the automobile and the flying machine, and the countless wonders of our great era, and would have been able to witness the solemn drama of the nations as it has been enacting. All this is life. Some of them would have fallen away from natural causes, to be sure, but many would now be looking complacently out toward the setting sun. Children and grandchildren—who have now never crossed the threshold of existence—would have been gathering about them in affectionate reverence. What infinite paths in the toll of war!

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

RUSSIA'S GRAVE MORAL ERROR

Forcible Seizure of Land Understandable, but to Be Regretted as Making a Precedent to Justify Dishonesty.

Article XIX.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

An examination of Russia, the patient, just before the treatment was started, reveals several findings which are necessary to complete the history and physical examination.

Russia was 78 per cent illiterate. This means that nearly four-fifths of the people in Russia could not read or write. It does not mean that they could not think. There is as great a difference between illiteracy and intelligence as there is between illiteracy and ignorance. I have met many Russian peasants who could not read or write, who had good native minds, genuine power of reasoning—home-spun thinkers. The head of Russia had not been trained, but it was not empty.

There are many reasons for the illiteracy of the great majority of Russian people. The autocratic state was the principal conspirator against the Russian people getting an education. The autocrats knew that ignorance is the greatest insurance against uprisings, the greatest sedative to keep the slave from complaining. The Church in Russia, the Orthodox Church, was used to keep the light from the people. The czar was the "Little Father," the divine agent of God on earth, and the "Unholy Synod" of the Russian Church bowed, not before the Christ, but bent low before the czar. They betrayed Christ, even as they betrayed the sons and daughters of men, their own blood, the Russian peasants and toilers.

Religion Their Only Solace.

The people of Russia held firmly to their faith in God. The rest and ease their faith gave them was the only comfort they had. In moments of intense religious communion they were lifted out of themselves and for seconds forgot their burdens. These green spots in the endless desert waste of life.

How Christ must have wept when he witnessed the "Holy Synod," the monkish rascals, with their sacrilegious icons, silencing the protests of souls, throttling the cry for freedom, by quoting in his name that those who suffered most here would be highest in heaven. A blasphemy, a corruption of the Lowly One, who used the word brotherhood to define equality, and the fatherhood of God to express the justice that man owed to man.

It was agreed by and between the Holy Synod and the czars that the Russian worshippers of God must not know how to read or write his name. So it was that the orthodox church of Russia used religion to insult God and hold his creatures in bondage. It was the only great church in the world that did not provide prayer books for its members. It was argued that if the people had prayer books they would learn to read, and if they read the Christ message on the Sabbath they might read other strange and dangerous books on Monday and Tuesday and the other days of the week. They might misuse their ability to read, and read things like the American Declaration of Independence. The churches of the Byzantine painted the story of religion on the side of its walls. They gave the people an education by the picture book method we use for children before they have reached the kindergarten age.

Bolshevism Officially Launched.

The birth certificate of bolshevism was issued on November 10, 1917.

"The All-Russian Congress of the Councils of Workingmen's, Soldiers' and Peasants' Deputies decrees the form of the administration of the country. PENDING THE MEETING OF THE CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY. The provisional workers' and peasants' government is to be called the Council of People's Commissioners. The administration of the individual branches of state life is to be entrusted to boards, the composition of which is to secure the carrying out of the program proclaimed by the congress in close contact with the organizations of workers, sailors, soldiers, peasants and employees. The government authority belongs to the board and chairman of these commissioners, that is, to the people's commissioners, and the right of systematizing them belongs to the All-Russian Congress of the Councils of Workingmen's and Peasants' and Soldiers' Deputies and its Central Executive Committee."

The government of the czar was autocratic, not because it was a bad government and misgoverned the people. It was autocratic because the people did not have a voice in it. A good government that denied the people a voice would be equally as autocratic. With the fall of the Kerensky regime Lenin and Trotsky, and their bolshevik followers, did not have time and it was not expedient or possible to canvass the wish and will of the people at once, so they issued the promise I have quoted above. The words of promise are printed in capital letters.

It was their moral obligation to keep this promise made to the people. It was necessary to keep it, if there was to be a genuinely free Russia. Who could anticipate and who would dare write out and put into operation the plan of government without giving all of the people of Russia a chance to pass upon the plan and help formulate it through their own chosen representatives?

This was the first promise the bolshevik leaders made to the Russians. They broke it. It has never been fulfilled. In the constitution and decrees of the soviet government they have tried to explain, excuse and condone this breach of promise. Fairly interpreted, all they have said in defense of this abuse of power, this violation of trust, is in substance: "It was necessary to dissolve the Constituent Assembly; it might have interfered with our plans; it might have jeopardized soviet government." What right did they have to think, act, and decide for the people any more than the czar had?

In speeches and writings Lenin and Trotsky have since in a veiled way suggested that the peasants elected members of the middle class to represent them instead of peasants. What of it? If the peasants make mistakes they will learn and profit by their mistakes. They cannot become independent until they get a chance to exercise independence. No man can get muscle by letting another fellow use the dumbbells. The Russians—peasants, workers and bourgeoisie—are all human beings, and a government, to be democratic, must be, as Lincoln put it, "of the people, for the people and by the people." A government that is afraid of the influence and power of three or four per cent of the people isn't able to live, and it doesn't deserve to.

Gladly Obeyed Lenin.

Lenine issued his famous order, "Peasants, seize the land." This command was obeyed with great enthusiasm. They forgot all about freedom and the constitutional convention. They understood what land meant, they had been taught that by being denied it. They knew little about political phrases and framework. The order to seize the land tore from the serfs their heaviest chains. Lenin became their liberator—his was the voice that said "seize the land." Probably the peasants would have done it anyway. Disorder and unrest had destroyed all respect for property rights. Property rights had a different meaning in Russia than elsewhere; property rights meant the right to beat human beings, to buy and sell serfs. Yet the fact that Lenin had uttered the words made them reverence and respect him, even as a man will be thankful to one who has told him to be careful of a hole in the sidewalk, notwithstanding the fact he has already seen it. Bolshevism started with great popularity. This was the secret of it.

Of course the order to seize the land, all land, was based on the idea that the owners of land held title by and through their own wrongful conduct. God had made the ground and sunshine, and those who had taken title to it had only moved on and forced others off. This is the way the bolsheviks reasoned, and from this point of view they were consistent. From the world's point of view it was confiscation. It was dishonest. Many people believe that acquiring property is frequently the result of industry and thrift; in some cases the title to property is based upon cunning, scheming and force. All of us know that there are some who are without any private property because they prefer to squander their time, dissipate their energy and live shiftless lives. After all, it is a matter of opinion, and from the point of view of the bolsheviks the order "Peasants, seize the land" may have been justified.

But when the order was given, the peasants seized it not for the community but to own it privately. On this point there can be no difference of opinion among honest, impartial, fair-minded men, and when the peasants seized the land to hold, use and own it as their private property they were guilty of taking title by the very means others had taken the land, and against whom they had complained and cried "Thief!"

The Russian people have the power to think. They realize that they have acquired property by the very methods they have always condemned in others. Their natural selfishness may constrain them to keep this property. The sufferings they have gone through may mitigate the offense, but one effect was inevitable, and that effect the most serious that could happen to a people on the threshold of a free future. I refer to the weakening of their moral nature, the making of a precedent justifying dishonesty. I have found the ill effects of this act on the patient, Russia, in every subsequent symptom.

To Do Away With "Slackers." Eliminating the "work slacker" is the new job which the American legion has taken upon itself, acting in conjunction with the war department's chain of employment bureaus throughout the country. This type of ex-service man, while not numerous, is occasionally a serious detriment to the work of placing ex-soldiers and sailors in satisfactory jobs. Their attitude of shiftlessness after getting the place causes dissatisfaction among employers who are really trying to help and gives a black eye to other service men who still need work.

CONTRACT FOR NEW PLANT

The plant of the Massachusetts Oil Company, located on the Fore River at East Braintree, will refine by a new process 3,000,000 barrels of fuel oil for the Navy Department by the award by the department of a contract for that number of barrels of fuel oil to Cochrane, Harper & Co., of Boston, which, by developing a new process for "cracking" oil, has opened practically the world's supply of this fuel for naval use. By the new process the Navy will effect an immediate saving of $1,500,000, if not more, and in the future will be able to refine its own oil.

In the past the Navy has been compelled to use a "Grade A" oil of such high quality that it could be supplied only by the fields in Texas, Oklahoma and Indiana. By the new process, which the Boston firm has undertaken, the Navy can use almost any oil found in any section of the world, and by "cracking" it and taking off the impurities can have not only the necessary "Grade A" oil, but gasoline and many byproducts at a cost much below market prices. The process opens to naval use, oil found in all parts of the United States, Mexico and South American countries and Eastern countries.

The refining of crude oil by the process will be done at the new plant of the Massachusetts Oil Co. at East Braintree, with naval officers in constant attendance.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY" COMING

Anita Stewart makes a startling leap on horseback over a broken bridge above a chasm, taking great risks, in a scene from the First National special feature, "In Old Kentucky", in which she stars. This great American classic will be shown at the Odd Fellows Opera House, East Weymouth, on Wednesday and Thursday, June 2 and 3.

The bridge is a draw over a ravine more than 100 feet deep. But the draw has been wrecked. In the story it is necessary for Miss Stewart to leap over this broken draw to reach a man who is lying unconscious in the road far beneath her, where the villain has placed a dynamite bomb beneath him.

The horse upon which she is mounted at first refuses to make the jump, but she starts again, and spurring it to the utmost speed, rides straight for the broken bridge. The horse rises to her spur and makes the jump. But it reaches the opposite side by such a narrow margin that broken bits of the bridge are kicked from beneath its feet into the chasm beneath.

Miss Stewart admits that she was terribly frightened, but had every confidence in the horse, as it had made greater leaps than the one taken in the picture, though never such a dangerous one.

This thrilling scene is clearly shown in this picture, which is the story of an untutored girl, who after risking her life for her friends in the mountains, goes to the city where she wins laurels for herself.

RECORD AUTO SALE

Temple A. Winslow, owner of the Wollaston Center garage and agent for the Oakland and Davis motor cars is establishing a record for sales in southern Massachusetts. He has sold seventy Oaklands during the last two months and although agent for the Davis motor car only ten days he has disposed of eleven cars. He expects arrival today of a trainload of Oakland Sedans, thirty cars in all and has placed an order with the Davis concern for the delivery of 200 cars this season.

Mr. Winslow also finds time during his "idle moments" to do good work for charity and is one of the hustlers on the Salvation Army drive.

Mr. Winslow is arranging for an auto show at his garage as soon as alterations, costing several thousand dollars are finished. He plans to exhibit all models of the Oakland and Davis cars together with all the latest automobile accessories.

FAINTING AND DIZZY SPELLS

The Cause of such Symptoms and Remedy Told in This Letter.

Syracuse, N. Y.—"When I commenced the Change of Life I was poorly, had no appetite and had fainting spells. I suffered for two or three years before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Liver Pills which I saw advertised in the papers and in your little books. I took about twelve bottles of your Vegetable Compound and found it a wonderful remedy. I commenced to pick up at once and my suffering was relieved. I have told others about your medicine and know of some who have taken it. I am glad to help others all I can."—Mrs. R. E. DEMING, 437 W. Lafayette Ave., Syracuse, N. Y.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moreover this reliable remedy contains no narcotics or harmful drugs and owes its efficiency to the medicinal extracts of the native roots and herbs which it contains.

Beautiful Women of Society, during the past seventy years have relied upon it for their distinguished appearance. The soft, refined, pearly white complexion it renders instantly, is always the source of flattering comment.

CHINESE HOLD HILL SACRED

Huang Shan Created a Shrine More Than Three Hundred Years Ago, Is Tradition.

More than 300 years ago in the Ming dynasty, a Buddhist priest named Pu Men visited the Huang Shan in the South Anhui hills. He was charmed with the place and became infatuated with the idea of making it a sacred mountain. A journey to Peking and an audience with the royal household resulted in an appropriation of large sums of money for developing this fairyland of the gods. A brass pagoda was prepared for the first temple. It was decorated with 1,000 little Buddhas and was called Thousand God pagoda. The temple whose halls it decked was christened the Purple Sand temple and is now restored and called Merciful Light hall.

At that time, says the North China Herald, hundreds of priests came to the mountains, and there was a period of Buddhist prosperity. Roads were built to the tops of all the important peaks, and at least one temple was erected far above the line of perennial springs.

BABOON PUT TO USEFUL TASK

As Shepherds, the Animals Are Said to Develop Traits That Are Almost Human.

I have often wondered, remarks Mr. W. C. Scully in the Atlantic Monthly, why more baboons are not trained as shepherds. The creatures invariably develop an absorbing affection for any young animals, human or other, that are placed in their charge, and there is a well-authenticated instance of a baboon taking charge of a motherless Kafir infant, and guarding it night and day for more than two years. The simian foster parent performed every necessary function except feeding the child.

Several baboons have been trained as shepherds. In a case that Mr. Scully himself observed the baboon had charge of several hundred sheep. He became passionately attached to the members of the flock, and remained with them all day long at pasture and brought them back to the corral in the evening. His only fault as shepherd was the outcome of extreme selfishness; if he heard the voices of wild baboons in the distance at any time of the day, he would at once collect the sheep, and with every appearance of the liveliest terror hurry them home.

BLUFFING UNCLE JAMES

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Phillip Merrill threw down the letter in disgust. "What the—! Why the—!" He refrained from completing his sentences in deference to his secretary, Miss Cowles, who sat watching him in astonishment.

"My uncle absolutely refuses to lend us that money which would put us on our feet, unless—well, read for yourself his idiotic foolishness!" He thrust the letter under her nose, and, hands in his pockets, began a necessarily limited walk up and down his small office like the pacing of an angry lion in his cage.

Marjory Cowles read through the letter twice with businesslike precision:

"My Dear Nephew:

"I was interested in your statement of the assets and liabilities of your business of the moment. But I do not forget that you have been enthusiastic over various other enterprises. When you give any evidence of settling down, by getting married, for instance, I shall be more convinced of your seriousness, and be glad to help you. By the way, if you are married, let me know. It might alter the case. Your affectionate uncle, James B. Chase."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Merrill," she said, then added with a sigh: "If only he could have seen his way to making the loan, it would have meant such a lot!"

"A lot!" echoed Phillip. "Why, it would mean all the difference between pulling through and going under!"

Marjory Cowles had been associated with the Goodfide Tire company since its inception, and had been through so many of its ups and downs that she had acquired some of the privileges of a partner without its responsibilities. Now she pondered the situation with half-closed eyes, her pencil tapping her firm red lips.

"There—there isn't anyone you would want to marry on short notice?" She hoped her employer didn't hear the beating of her treacherous heart as she waited for the answer she had been longing to know ever since her discovery that Phillip had the most attractive blue eyes of any man she had ever seen.

"Indeed there isn't!" declared Phillip so emphatically that her heart beat faster than ever.

Marjory was about to remark that his uncle was evidently eccentric, when Phillip gave a positive shout. "I have it! And he deserves it for being so peculiar and tightfisted. Please take this letter." And he was dictating before she had picked up her pad and pencil.

"Dear Uncle James: You want to know if I am married. Well, am I? I wish you could see my wife (that's true enough, Miss Cowles. I wish he could, and tell me what she's like.) If you will reconsider the making of that loan, I assure you that you will never regret it. Yours, Phillip."

"P. S.—If the wife knew I was writing this I feel sure she would send her love."

"I am going out for lunch now. Get that letter off as soon as possible, please." And Phillip took down his coat and hat and went out. Left alone, Marjory sat for a moment idly wondering how the affair would turn out, and absent-mindedly testing one of her pencils with scribbling on a sheet of typewriter paper lying on the desk. Then she rose, straightened things out and took from her drawer the few sandwiches and an apple which made up her midday meal, after which she got down to the business of getting off that letter in time for the mail.

Three weeks later Phillip sat at his desk figuring the extent of his smash-up about to occur, and wondering why he had not heard from his uncle, when he was interrupted by the jangle of the telephone bell.

"You take it, Miss Cowles," he said morosely.

Marjory took down the receiver, then almost dropped it. "His Uncle James? Pll—I'll tell him."

But there was no need. Phillip had risen and stood as one petrified. His Uncle James came all these miles to investigate the business! That meant almost surely that he would loan the money. Joyfully he took the receiver from Marjory's hand, not observing the strange thoughtfulness of her expression.

"Uncle James! I am pleased!—How long you here for?—Fine! Simply fine!—My wife! My wife!—Oh—yes, yes, yes, very well, very—well put you up there—All right. Yes. Of course—er, we'd ask you to stay with us, but we've only two rooms. —Yes, two rooms, but there's an excellent little family hotel near. We'll, we'll put you up there—All right. Yes, come right up."

Phillip turned from the telephone with so woe-begone an expression that Marjory's heart melted within her.

"My uncle is coming up, will be here any moment, and how the deuce can I produce a wife in that time?" Phillip paused with the despair of one whose game is up. Then, "I say, Miss Cowles, you wouldn't—oh, it's a crazy scheme—but would you consider being my wife?"

Marjory couldn't resist. "This is—so sudden!" she said quite soberly, then didn't know whether to be more charmed or amused at the look of alarm on Phillip's face.

"Oh, I didn't mean really—that is—oh, just pretend you're—my wife, while Uncle James is here this morning. After that I'll undeceive him. But if he'd only go over the works first and see what a first-rate proposition it is, he'll forget this wife business and loan the wherewithal."

Marjory debated within herself. Playing the part of a make-believe wife to the man you're in love with might have its tragic moments. But, because she was in love with him—"All right," she said at last, "for the sake of the business I will."

"You're a brick, Miss Cowles!" he grasped her hands gratefully. Then, as the color mounted slowly in his cheeks, "He'll think I'm a darned lucky dog!" he added. It was the first personal note that had ever crept into the conversation.

Half an hour later Uncle James arrived—a tall individual with keen, snapping eyes. He greeted his nephew affectionately, then turned to the girl as Phillip said, a little awkwardly: "My—er—wife. She is putting her shoulder to the wheel, too, for a while."

The difficult moment was past and Uncle James was launched in descriptions of his trip east. As he rose to go after steadily refusing to talk business, Uncle James uttered the fatal words that lengthened indefinitely the conspirators' plan of an hour.

"I'm glad you did so well, Phillip, because I'd rather made up my mind, if your wife was one of those extravagant creatures wearing her husband's earnings on her back, I'd have nothing to do with your business, no matter how promising. But before we discuss that I intend to see the whole of New York and the two of you must be my guests."

As he went out, the two young people looked at each other. Then "Stick by me a while longer," begged Phillip miserably, and Marjory consented.

Followed busy evenings at theaters, automobile rides up the Hudson, dinners. When they were riding Uncle James usually insisted on occupying the front seat with the chauffeur. "Even old married people like to sit by themselves and talk," he said indulgently.

And Marjory, sitting snugly wrapped up at Phillip's side, watching the river, felt sometimes that she had stepped into a dream. While Phillip—well, Phillip grew to long for the right to reach out and grasp the slim hand resting beneath the robes a few inches away.

For Marjory in the hours of companionship, had shown herself to be a wonderful comrade, eminently desirable. In wondering how he could afford marriage, if the business failed, he sometimes forgot his feeling of guilt at the deception he was practicing on his uncle and his anxiety as to the outcome.

Then one day, Uncle James wandered into the office when Phillip was out. Finding Marjory alone, he hesitated, then sat down in his nephew's chair.

"What's my nephew playing the fool for?" he demanded.

"What do you mean?" she asked, trying to speak calmly.

"Just this—he's no more married than you are! I'll tell you how I know. Reaching into his pocket, he extracted the envelope Marjory recognized as the one she had addressed. Out of it he took the letter and turned it over. On the back she saw her handwriting, and a delicate flush stole over her face. "Marjory Cowles—Marjory Cowles Merrill—Mrs. Phillip Merrill!" She had picked up that paper with its scribbles to typewrite the letter on!

"When I saw P. M. M. C. at the bottom of the letter, I put two and two together. The girl in my nephew's office was in love with him, even as she took down a letter indicating that he was married! It made me a mite suspicious of that letter, and gave me an excuse to come on."

"And now that I have come—well, he can have that money on one condition—that he makes good his bluff and marries you right away. You suit me down to the ground as my nephew's wife."

Rising, he went slowly out, leaving the girl speechless and indignant. Then the hot tears welled into her eyes and she buried her face in her arms on the desk. Nor did she hear the door open softly. Suddenly, two strong arms swept her to her feet and held her close.

"I met my uncle downstairs. He said 'my wife' wanted me very badly. But it's nothing, Marjory darling, to the way I want my wife. When can I claim her, sweetheart?"

Marjory lifted her wet eyes, now shining with happiness. "Any time that suits Uncle James," she said, and Phillip forgot to be mystified in the wonder of the first kiss.

This merry inn is the portrait of a child which was painted without any particular aim as to character. When Alderman Boydell saw it, he said: "Sir Joshua, if you will make this pretty thing into a Puck, for my Shakespeare gallery, I will give you a hundred guineas for it." Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

Sergeant Barker was in a bad temper, and the recruits under instruction were having a hard time of it.

The squad had to 'bout turn so many times in a few seconds that it was no wonder the poor fellows got dizzy, and Smudger Smiff finished up by turning about the wrong way.

Sergeant Barker got in a towering rage and striding up to Smudger roared:

"Where the dickens do you think you are? On parade, or what?"

"Well, sergeant," replied Smudger, meekly, "I began to think I was at a fancy-dress ball dressed up as a bloomin' leg o' mutton, and twisting round and round on a meat-jack."

Utterly Impossible.

It was at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado last fall. I stood on the brink of that mighty chasm in easy converse with Albert, the king of the Belgians.

"What a fine place this would have been to drive the German army into," I remarked, with that disregard for precise diction that comes in casual talk.

The king looked appraisingly out over the vast cleft, and down into its dizzy depths, and with that regal dignity that so becomes him, and those impressive pauses between his words that marks his speech in English, replied gravely, after he had fully surveyed the situation:

"But, my dear sir, that was quite impossible. There was no German army here, you know!"—Samuel G. Blythe in the Saturday Evening Post.

The Milkman's Error.

Guy Oyster, the brilliant secretary of Samuel Gompers, said in a recent interview:

JACK DEMPSEY'S WALLOP BROKE ROPE

Half the youngsters who have boxed on the west side of the Rockies knew Jack Dempsey when he was first trying to get started in the boxing game. Eddie McKenna tells us of one of Jack's first bouts somewhere up in Utah.

"I went in Jack's corner one night when he was boxing one of those birds who stands with his right hand and foot extended," says Eddie. "In the first round the fellow's awkward style puzzled Dempsey and between rounds I started to suggest to him how he should avoid that right hand. Dempsey wouldn't listen at all. 'I'll show you how to handle this stuff,' he said, and, believe me, he did.

"He stepped out of his corner with his right hand and right foot out, just like the other fellow. Then he let go with his left hand. He slammed that fellow so hard that he broke the top rope of the ring and the bird was out for ten minutes."

BIG SEASON FOR DEL GAINER

Former Detroit and Boston Star Expected to Boost Pennant Chances of Brewers by Hitting.

Outfielders throughout the American association this year will move back toward the fence when Del Gainer comes to bat. The former Detroit and Boston star, now with the Brewers, has been hitting 'em far and wide in the spring games and Manager Egan expects him to have a big season. Gainer has slowed up some in his footwork but he could increase the Milwaukee pennant chances by reason of his hitting. He started in the game with Jimmy Burke at Ft. Wayne back in 1910.

Cut your Kitchen Hours

No more getting up to kindle fires. No more coal sentries to fill or ashes to carry, and no more soot. All the drudgery that makes kitchen hours drag, abolished. The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove gives full cooking heat the instant the match is applied.

The long, blue chimney on this stove concentrates the flame and gives just the proper draft for perfect combustion. At the same time this chimney drives all the heat directly to the spot where it does the most good.

A special feature of the built-in oven cook stove is the heat-retaining oven. Give it thirty minutes of quick heat—close the damper and turn the burner off. All the heat is retained in the oven until the food is to be served.

The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove has 3,000,000 users. It comes in 1, 2, 3 and 4-burner sizes.

GAVE AMATEUR "SOFT" PART

Pompous Individual Duly Awarded His "Place in the Sun," as He Had Requested.

The Swampton Dramatic society wanted their annual performance to be a success, so they engaged a professional from London to arrange it all. As soon as this gentleman appeared, one of the amateurs tackled him.

"I must have a role to suit me," he began pompously. "I always play one of the principal parts in our shows, and so far I've been most successful."

"Excuse me," interposed the professional, "but you must allow me to be the judge of the most suitable cast."

The first rehearsal occurred a few days later. When the cast was read out the pushing amateur found he had been left out altogether.

"Why have I not got a part?" he demanded angrily.

"You have a part, all right," replied the producer. "You are to be the first banana in the fruit-market scene!"—London Answers.

Severely Practical.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "that was a beautiful bouquet you brought me."

"Glad you liked it."

"But—"

"But what?"

"Bread is expensive and liable to be scarce. The next time you have anything sentimental on your mind tell it with flour."

ASKING A LITTLE TOO MUCH

Under the Circumstances, Actor Was Justified in Refusing Parts Manager Allotted Him.

Owing to the limitations of his purse the manager of a theatrical show on the road traveled with a short company.

One afternoon he called one of his players to him and remarked:

"Look here, Wellington, you'll have to play three parts tomorrow night in 'The Silent Foe'—Henderson, Uncle Bill, and the Spider."

"Can't do it!" retorted Wellington briefly, but firmly.

"Can't do it? Won't do it, you mean!" snorted the manager. "Why won't you do it?"

"Because it can't be done. No human being could play these three parts at the same time. In the third act Henderson and the Spider have a fight and old Uncle Bill rushes in to separate them."

Requires Brains.

A certain Englishman, famous for his erudition, played such a wretched game on the links that he remarked one day to his caddie: "How is it that I, a man acquainted with all the arts and sciences, cannot play this confounded game of golf?"

"Well," said the caddie, "it's like this—ye ken a' about they sma' affairs, an' w' things connect wi' them, but we maun understand that it tak's a heid to play golf!"—Boston Transcript.

WELCOME, EDITORS

All next week, editors from all parts of the country will be in Boston and vicinity for the 35th annual convention of the National Editorial Association. The delegates are expected early Monday morning and will make their headquarters at the Copley Plaza. The daily business meetings will be held at Faneuil Hall, the Copley Plaza and the Boston Public Library.

The social attractions will include a banquet Monday night with Gov. Coolidge as the guest of honor, a trip to Plymouth, shore dinner at Nantasket, banquet at Boston City Club with Secretary Daniels as guest, an automobile trip to the North Shore, a trip about Boston harbor, and a trip to Lexington and Concord.

All members of the Massachusetts Press Association have been appointed on the reception committee, so that the editor of the Gazette and Transcript will be off duty next week, extending a welcome to fraternal guests.

COOLIDGE FOR PRESIDENT

Each day the voters of the Bay State have reason to feel proud of the fact that they have an able man in the Governor's chair. A man of few words, but when uttered ring in sound judgment and good common sense.

And very noticeable it is that slowly but surely, eyes from all over the nation are being directed his way. Hardly a day passes but what some paper or magazine outside of the State, is giving him praise for acts, and many favorable endorsements are heard as they consider him for higher honors. That is why we suggest: can the convention that meets in Chicago in a fortnight's time, do better than give the name of Calvin Coolidge good, earnest consideration. What may be Massachusetts' loss, will be the entire country's gain—if this is done.

We quote from a recent issue of Harvey's Weekly:

Despite the fact that the 275 beer bill passed the Massachusetts Senate 26 to 6 and the House 145 to 38, Governor Coolidge promptly vetoed it, uttering these words of wisdom:

"There is little satisfaction in attempting to deceive ourselves. There is grave danger in attempting to deceive the people. If this act were placed on the statute books of this commonwealth today it would provide no beer for the people. No one would dare act upon it, or if any did he would certainly be charged with crime. Similar laws in other States are to date ineffective. I am opposed to the practice of a legislative deception. It is better to proceed with candor. Wait until the Supreme Court of the United States talks."

"We have had too much legislation by clamor, by tumult, by pressure. Representative government ceases if outside influence of any kind is substituted for the judgment of the representative. This does not mean that the opinion of constituents is to be ignored. It is to be weighed most carefully, for the representatives must represent, but his oath provides that it must be faithfully and impartially, according to the best of his abilities and understanding, agreeably to the rules and regulations of the Constitution and laws."

"The authority of the law is questioned in these days all too much. The binding obligation of obedience against personal desire is denied in many quarters. If these doctrines prevail all organized government, all liberty, all security are at an end."

Good sense! Sound judgment! The more we hear of and from Calvin Coolidge, the better we like both his character and his way of putting things.

PROFITEERING

As a remedy for the high cost of living, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts introduced into the National Senate last week, resolutions for a committee, and suggesting several remedies. His speech has received much favorable comment, and seems a step in the right direction.

Drastic measures to check the "orgy" of profiteering, he declared, are the only effective remedy for the unrest—and this remedy must be applied without delay. The unrest, he said, is seeping into the minds of the stanchest elements of the population, and is not confined, as it is preferred to believe in some quarters, to more recent arrivals from foreign lands.

To prosecute the leaders of revolutionary agitation and to denounce "their constantly increasing following as bolsheviks, Socialists and anarchists," he declared a futile expedient. "Only superficial observers," he went on, "believe that the radical element exists only among the non-assimilated foreign classes. Were this so we might feel no special alarm over the security of our institutions and the future of our country. However, our daily experiences show clearly that the American people, native and foreign alike, are seething with discontent and dissatisfaction with the existing social order."

"This spirit of unrest, discontent, and dissatisfaction, this growing conviction of the alleged ineffectiveness and powerlessness of our institutions to help eradicate the notorious abuses that have grown up under the cover of the doctrine of equality of opportunity, exists in the ranks of all classes. The great middle class, the salaried employees in and out of the Government employ, the preachers in the pulpit, the teachers in the classroom, are espousing the cause of radical ideas to a greater extent than ever before."

The paramount issue before the people of the country today he declared to be the question of curbing the profiteer, and he predicted that it will be the outstanding issue in the coming Presidential campaign. "The most necessary Americanization work needed today," he said, "is the Americanization of the greenback and the selfish profiteers."

Congress he held up to merciless reproach for its failure to heed the cry for relief which has been coming from the country. "While the story of profiteering is being recited from pulpit and soap box," he said "prices continue to rise unhindered and unchecked and the whole Nation is seething with a growing resentment and alarm."

"The inactivity of Congress presents a spectacle of indifference that has seldom been surpassed since the courtiers of Louis XVI revelled while the French peasants were eating grass. Congress has been culpably inactive."

"The time has come for our Government to show the people that it has the power and the inclination to right their wrongs and that it possesses public servants courageous, intelligent, and patriotic enough to seek a remedy and find a solution. The most dangerous condition in American today is that arising out of the thought and belief that our Government has broken down; that we have not the form of Government, or the instrumentalities in the Government to grapple with a great public abuse, such as now confronts us, speedily, definitely and adequately."

Senator Walsh suggested several remedies.

Address to G. A. R.

queaths this sacred duty to the olive-drab of the American Legion.

Young Men of the Legion, remember that no work can long endure, unless that work is built on God. Rome and Greece fell because they were built on the passing sands of Time. The discoverers of America and the fathers of this country were men of God. Faults they had without doubt, but they worshipped God North and South, East and West the early pioneers were men who prayed.

And so I say to you all, whether you are of the Catholic Faith, or the Protestant Faith, or the Jewish Faith, live up to the best of your knowledge in serving God, and you will be better men unto your fellow-men. Follow the golden rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Keep always before your minds these three ideals: The sanctity of womanhood, the innocence of childhood, the majesty of law.

All lawful authority, in whomsoever vested, is from God. And he who resists lawful authority resists God Himself who gave it. Success in life is not to be measured by money, but in doing faithfully that particular work which God gave you to do, and which no one else can do as well. Remember, that life is lent to us by God, and becomes a sacred trust. In this way will the world be better because you have lived in it, and will be poorer when you shall have passed out of it.

And as of old, may the poor and oppressed of every land look with longing eyes and yearning hearts and outstretched hands to our country as the land of the free and the home of the brave.

TIME AND SPACE LIMITED

Have you tried of late to accomplish certain work on a certain date? The publishers of the Gazette and Transcript have, but have not always been successful, for various reasons. During the winter it was because of the storms, lack of transportation, scarcity of coal, illness of employees, scarcity of help etc.

Many weeks it has been impossible to put into type the volume of news that has come into the office on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. People can help considerably by forwarding advertisements and news to reach us Monday or Tuesday, remembering that time and space are limited after Wednesday morning.

All notices for change of advertisements should reach us Monday, and copy should follow as soon as possible. Some of the pages of the Gazette are printed early in the week.

ONE OF WAR'S MASTER MINDS

Britain Owes Deep Debt of Gratitude to Patrick Quinan, of Whom Little is Known.

One of the most vital and at the same time mysterious figures in the war on the British side was Patrick Quinan, an American of Irish descent. Vital because he planned all the great munition works which enabled Great Britain to supply not only her own but her allies' needs in munitions; mysterious because his name was never allowed to be mentioned during the war and because he would never be interviewed.

Mr. Quinan reached England by way of South Africa. Trained at du Pont's, he went to the South African Explosives company at Cape Town, then the largest in the British empire, owing to the demand for explosives for mining purposes. The vast factories laid out in England during the war—now somewhat of a white elephant, as their conversion to peace purposes is still unsettled—were all designed by Mr. Quinan.

Quinan is just over 40 years of age, and since the close of the war has disappeared. His name was never in any "honor list"—which is rather a distinction these times. He was never given any public recognition by any member of the government or the army. Still no one man did as much to help win the war as this retiring Mr. Quinan.

WAR TAUGHT HIM SOMETHING

Returned Doughboy Convinced. Among Other Things, That There Is Little Gained in Kicking.

"There are thousands of returned soldiers to whom the war was a spiritual university," says Maude Radford Warren, in Everybody's. "They have won an understanding and a tolerance beyond their years. The best example I know is my friend Sidney, aged twenty-two, and endowed through the hard means of shot and shell with a maturity beyond his years."

"At home," Sid said, "I used to kick if things didn't go right. Well, sitting around in the mud over here I have begun to think a lot about some of the older people I know. They take things just as they come, I notice; don't kick much. Life seems to teach them that. Well, the war strikes me as just a lot of concentrated life. It's been that to me, anyhow. If ever I kick, it's sort of from force of habit. I honestly don't want to very much. I let the bad luck go with a grin, and if not, with set teeth, and I try not to count it at all. The good luck I count as clear velvet. It may not be a logical way of looking at life, but it's a practical way. Sitting here in the mud and getting old myself, I figure that is about the way the nice middle-aged people I know at home look at things. Being a good sport is about as good a thing as anyone can contribute to the world."

Mauritius.

Mauritius, the home of the dodo, is in the political limelight, or so it would appear from the announcement that the Bordeaux chamber of commerce has requested the French government to enter into parleys with Britain with a view to restoring former French supremacy. Since the dodo is extinct, it will be more accurate to speak of Mauritius as once the home of that now almost fabulous creature. Mauritius was once known as Cerne, a name which it is said to have derived from ceras—the dodo, or, more unromantically, the ground-pigeon. Portuguese, French, Dutch, and British have all been connected with the history of Mauritius. It was discovered by the Portuguese. It was French for 100 years and then British. It became British in 1814 but during the French Revolution it had served as a refuge for many emigres to whom the Emerald Isle of the Indian ocean was known as the scene of Bernadine de St. Pierre's "Paul et Virginie." In size it equals about the eighteenth part of the area of England and Wales.

Was Variety the Spice of Her Life?

It is commonly thought that a very long series of names is reserved for kings and the sons and daughters of kings. We have frequently exclaimed over the seven names with which King George's eldest son is afflicted, or the former crown prince, for that matter. But probably the longest name in the world is attached to a mere laundryman's daughter. She was born in 1883, and her parents, surely from a sense of the ludicrous, gave her a name for every letter in the alphabet, to-wit:

Anna Bertha Cecelia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypatia Inez Jane Katherine Louisa Maud Nora Ophelia Patience Quince Rebecca Sarah Teresa Ulysses Venus Winifred Xenophon Yetty Zeus Pepper. What will Miss Pepper do when it comes to finding new names for her own future family?—Boston Post.

Machine Does Work Quickly.

A piece of drudgery that has been assigned to machine labor is applying stucco. A new electric machine, with blades making 1,500 revolutions per minute puts on the material, and the operator and an assistant feeding the hopper cover the space rapidly and efficiently. The plastic substance is projected with such force that a thin film of moisture is squeezed out behind it, causing a waterproof protective coat of enamel to form upon the surface.

Where to Dodge Tips.

In India a native barber can shave a person while asleep without awaking him, so gentle is his touch.
